Repeal of Mediation Act

King Won't Say When—or If

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — For the first time Wednesday new B.C. Labor Minister William King put some of his cards on the table for labor, but made it clear they didn't come from a stacked deck.

If he is holding any aces, however, he isn't prepared to say. In two encounters with reporters he refused to say if or when the B.C. Mediation Act (Bill 33 would be repealed. Such a move was among the campaign promises of the NDP before it was swept into office in the Aug. 30 B.C. election.

In winding up a 15-minute address to International Woodworkers of America convention delegates here, King said:

"I want to listen to your ideas and industry's ideas. I believe in justice. I don't believe in stacking the deck in terms of labor laws from one side or for the other.

"I believe all any fair-minded person can ask is for just and fair laws."

It was King's first appearance before a labor body since his appointment to cabinet in the fledgling government of Premier Dave Barrett. Barrett is to address the convention today.

In addition to disclosing some of the philosophy he is carrying into his new job, King made these points during an interview:

- He plans to introduce some minor labor legislation changes at the special fall session.
- He is adopting an open-door policy and will consult labor, management and representatives of the public in advance of new legislation.
- He opposes compulsion

Life for Trafficker

Term B.C.'s most severe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joseph Donzell, 39, was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment for possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The sentence — most severe ever handed down in British Columbia for a narcotics offence — was imposed by Judge Arthur McClellan in County Court. He told Donzelli he was engaged in a "slimy business."

Police found more than nine pounds of heroin — in 146 one-ounce packages — in Donzelli's possession when they entered his home in July of last year.

The wholesale value was estimated at between $233,000 and $354,000, with a street value of more than $1 million. It was the largest heroin seizure ever made in Vancouver.

"It's frightening to think of the bodies and souls that would be prostituted and the lives that would be ruined to raise the more than one million dollars this drug represents," McClellan said.

He said no legislative body or person, no matter how permissive, had ever recommended leniency for traffickers.

Donzelli, who had no record. said the heroin was given to him by a man named "Tom or Sam" who asked him to hold it for a couple of weeks.

A spokesman for the National Parole Service said Donzelli would be eligible for parole after serving seven years.

Quinsam Ponds Ready in '74

Biggest Fish Hatchery Slated for Mid-Island

Tenders for B.C.'s biggest and most expensive fish hatchery to be built near Campbell River will be called in January.

The salmon hatchery at Quinsam River is only the second in the province and is expected to cost more than $4 million. (The Big Qualicum River establishment is not primarily a hatchery.)

A $3 million salmon hatchery has been built by the federal government at Capilano near Vancouver but George Neilsen of the fisheries service in Vancouver said Wednesday the Quinsam River project would be bigger and more expensive.

The Capilano hatchery has 10 ponds and Quinsam will have 15. He agreed that the final cost could be "around $4 million."

Neilsen said the fisheries service planned to start building the Vancouver Island hatchery next April and construction would take about 18 months.

Potential tenders were invited to pre-bid inspection tours set for Oct. 12 and 13 in advertisements in many B.C. newspapers this week.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has promised up to five hatcheries in the next few years and Neilsen said sites being considered for future projects were all off the Island.

Currently fisheries officials are studying the Chilliwack River, Indian River at the head of Burrard Inlet and Cheakamus River, a tributary of the Squamish River.

However, he said the environment department under which the fisheries service operates has just completed two small hatching ponds on the Puntledge River which runs through Courtenay.

The Quinsam hatchery will breed 1.85 million coho smolts — one-year-old fish — and 3.75 million coho fry for transplant to barren streams allowing nature to rear the fish.

Because of the low survival rate, he said only about 176,000 coho would be available for sports and commercial fishermen for exploitation.

As well, Quinsam will raise three million juvenile chinook (90 days old) and 20,000 steelhead smolts.

This is expected to produce 23,000 chinook adults and 1,700 steelhead for exploitation.

Neilsen explained that the survival rate was often less than 1 per cent, but many thousands of fish would be kept in the hatcheries for breeding purposes.

The aim of the federal fish hatchery program in B.C. is to feed the Gulf of Georgia commercial and sports salmon fishery.

Juneau Won't Switch Cable Hearing Site

● Pay TV will be run by licensed companies, says CRTC. Page 11

EDMONTON (CP) — The rates charged by a cable television company should not be primarily determined by the profits that company is making, a representative of Victoria Cablevision Ltd. said Wednesday.

Barrie Adams, lawyer for Victoria Cablevision, told a Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearing that radio and television broadcasting stations do not have their advertising rates regulated and cable companies should not be tied to low charges just because they are making good profits.

Victoria Cablevision is applying for a rate increase to $5 monthly from the present $4.50. It says the increase would be followed by more extensive service to its subscribers in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

"If the consumer feels it is worth the price to pay for that service, I think that should be the dominant fact," Adams said.

CRTC Chairman Pierre Juneau said that the CRTC believes, in the case of broadcasting stations, that revenue beyond those necessary for a reasonable profit should be used for improved service. The CRTC paid close attention to broadcasters' profits in judging what services they should give.

Juneau suggested that, in the case of Victoria Cablevision's proposed rate increase and expansion, the public might say the company can "quite easily absorb this cost and pay for it out of profits."

At the beginning of the discussion on the rate increase application, David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, and representatives of Victoria and Esquimalt argued that the case should be adjourned until Victoria Cablevision provides a financial statement to the public.

J. W. K. Shortreed, an Edmonton lawyer representing the city of Victoria and township of Esquimalt, said that without the statement Cablevision's application cannot be effectively opposed.

Groos said the case should be heard in Victoria or Vancouver so that local people

Brezhnev Plans Spring U.S. Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed during their talks this week that Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will visit Washington next spring, probably in April.

Diplomatic sources said Wednesday that an official announcement of Brezhnev's state visit probably would be withheld until after the Nov. 7 U.S. election, but that Nixon and Gromyko settled the major details.

During his summit trip to Moscow in May, Nixon invited Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit the United States.

Soviet officials said that all three could not make the trip at once, but they indicated Brezhnev probably would be the one to visit Nixon.

Kraft Guilty on False Ads

MONTREAL (CP) — Kraft Foods Ltd. was found guilty Wednesday of a charge of false advertising in its "Explore Canada 70" contest.

Mr. Justice Claude Vallerand set Oct. 18 to hear arguments before sentencing.

The sales promotion contest sponsored by the company offered participants "15 big chances to win" a plane trip to any Canadian city, free use of vehicles, $1,000 spending money and a set of luggage.

Chief federal prosecutor Louis-Philippe Landry said no contestant had "15 big chances to win" and 120,900 of the 271,000 entrants had simply wasted a stamp.

Prizes and weekly drawings were done on a regional basis with three prizes going to Quebec and Ontario, two to British Columbia and the Yukon Territories and one to each of the other provinces, he said.

The contest ran from January to April, 1970.

Convicts Do Surgery

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Conditions are so bad in Alabama prison hospitals, a federal judge said Wednesday, that convicts perform surgery and rags are used as substitutes for bandages.

United States district court Judge Frank Johnson ordered prison authorities to take immediate steps to provide adequate medical care for all prisoners.

Johnson said penal authorities "have clearly abused their discretion" in denying proper medical treatment to the almost 4,000 prisoners in custody.

Johnson's decision came on a suit filed by prisoners contending they did not receive adequate medical treatment.

"Unsupervised prisoners, without formal training, regularly pull teeth, screen sick-call patients, dispense as well as administer medication, including dangerous drugs, take x-rays, suture and perform minor surgery," the court said.

And, it continued, evidence showed a "chronic shortage of medical supplies throughout the prison system."

Militant Leader Target

BELFAST (AP) — William Craig, leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Vanguard movement narrowly escaped an assassination attempt Wednesday.

Three bullets from a speeding automobile hit Craig's car as he drove from Belfast to his law firm's offices in nearby Lurgan.

Craig, 48, blamed the attack on the Irish Republican Army and said: "I don't know what they wanted . . . whether to kill a loyalist leader or produce a loyalist backlash."

A Modest Proposition

Indians 'demand' role in Arctic love industry

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories has submitted a bitterly sarcastic brief to the territorial government to parody the idea of legalized prostitution in the North.

The paper, aiming to condemn the idea through satirical praise is designed to "expose the idiocy of the whole exercise," says a spokesman for the brotherhood.

Part of the paper says:

"The government of Canada had been prostituting this country to the Americans for years. Why should the native people not be given the opportunity to participate? They could then say at last that they were enjoying the full rights of Canadian citizenship."

The territorial council last summer asked for a report on the feasibility of licensing prostitutes. Tom Butters, elected member for Western Arctic, said the plan could be a method for controlling the soaring venereal disease rate in the North.

The Indian brief says that typically in history, prostitution has been motivated by economic reasons and prostitutes and their protectors came from the ranks of the economically disadvantaged.

"It can be said that the merits of legalizing prostitution in the N.W.T. are obvious.

"Since the native people are the most disadvantaged in the N.W.T. from the economic viewpoint, and since the business of prostitution draws upon the ranks of disadvantaged, prostitution must be developed for the advantage of the native people."

The brief says that under federal guidelines northern development must have as a first priority the welfare of the native people. Legalized prostitution, therefore, was the opportunity the government has been looking for.

"If oil companies are going to import 5,000 pipeline workers, surely they must be told to hold the line.

"Under no circumstances must they be allowed to import prostitutes from the south, thereby taking away traditional job opportunities from native people."

The sarcastic brotherhood paper recalled Jonathan Swift's satirical A Modest Proposal, which recommended the consumption of babies as a solution to Irish famines.

The brotherhood recommended a three-point plan of action, starting with the establishment of a department of prostitution in the territorial government. An alternative would be a prostitution control board with terms of reference similiar to provincial liquor control boards.

Mocking the territorial government's concern over the federal presence in the North and northern autonomy, the brotherhood says it would give all necessary assistance to the territorial government "to ensure that this valuable resource is not taken over by the federal government."

It goes on to call for training courses in prostitution at adult vocational colleges.

"The department of industry and development should make available large sums of money to native enterpreneurs through the small business loan fund to set up native-owned-and-operated houses of prostitution."

A brotherhood spokesman said there has been no response to the paper from the territorial government.

A government report of the feasibility of licensing prostitutes is expected to be tabled during a special session of the territorial council that starts Oct. 10 at Frobisher Bay.

Dozen Dead Aboard Bus

BELGRADE (UPI) — A bus-train collision Wednesday at an unprotected grade crossing near the southeastern Yugoslav town of Prizren claimed a dozen lives, police said. They said an express train from Belgrade smashed into a packed bus taking workers to a factory near Prizren. All the victims were aboard the bus.

Soviet Crash Kills All 100

King Won't Say When

(this is the ingredient that touched off labor's war against Bill 33) and would tolerate government intervention only in extreme cases.

- He is adopting an open-door policy and will consult labor, management and representatives of the public in advance of new legislation.
- He believes in union organization and feels more than 42 per cent of B.C.'s work force should belong to unions.

King's refusal to say whether he would dump bill 33 or section 18, where the compulsory powers of government internvention are contained, was based on the argument that he would be bypassing the Legislature to announce his intentions to reporters.

He was asked what would happen now if some union took the familiar stand of refusing a back-to-work order under terms of the act.

These were problems that would have to be faced if and when that arose, he said.

The minor legislation changes this fall will be followed hopefully by major changes at the spring session, according to King.

"I am looking at a number of methods that are under consideration on labor legislation."

He said he was looking at the possibility of expanding and improving mediation services, possibly along the lines of those used by the federal Liberal government.

"I am impressed with the federal system of mediation," he said. "They have a very flexible system. This is the type of thing I am very interested in."

Under the federal system, specialists are assigned to various industrial fields on the presumption that they might provide a preventive medicine before disputes reach the strike stage.

On other subjects:

- Union organization: "I'm concerned with the need for greater organizing. It seems to me that with only 42 per cent organized there is a need for the labor movement to get out and do the job of organizing the unorganized.

"If there is any legislative impediments to achieving the goal I am prepared to take a close look at them to relax the provisions.

"It is recognized by management and labor that union workers are more contented and productivity increases comensurately. And I think this is a desireable goal."

- Collective bargaining: "I believe free collective bargaining should be just that — free collective bargaining. A government should intervene in only extreme cases."

The "judicial framework" of settlement leaves a lingering feeling of bitterness with the parties.

- The future: "I hope the labor and management sectors will be somewhat innovative with the knowledge that we have a unique opportunity to take bold steps and try new methods of resolving disputes. I would encourage some experimentation along this line and perhaps get away from traditional methods.

"I think that if the two parties are convinced the government is giving fair treatment to both, and preferential treatment to none, there will be a greater chance they will act responsibly."

In his address to the 180 convention delegates, King said the failure of collective bargaining in B.C. in recent years was due to compulsive legislation "administered by people given to making inflamatory statements which seem to aggravate the industrial scene rather than bring harmony to it in any degree."

He said there is now a chance to demonstrate to the nation at large free collective bargaining is not outmoded.

"It is something like democracy," he said. "Many say it's clumsy, wasteful, has many faults. But it is still the safest and best guarantee of individual and economic liberty in this province."

Giant Diamond Changes Hands

NEW YORK (UPI) — The third-largest diamond in the world, the 969.8-carat egg-shaped Star of Serra Leone, valued at up to $11 million, has been purchased by Harry Winston, New York jeweler, from the government of Sierra Leone, where it was found. No price was given, but a spokesman said it was "several million dollars."

Winston said he would display it for charity and then cut it up.

The largest diamond is the 3,106-carat Cullinan, and the second is the 995.2-carat Excelsior, both discovered in South Africa.

Poison Bread

ACIREALE, Sicily (UPI) — Pesticide-poisoned bread killed two children and sent about 80 persons to hospitals for treatment in this town at the foot of the Etna volcano, police said Wednesday.

Police cars toured the streets after the first poisoning cases were reeported, warning people not to eat bread.

Iodized Salt Helpful

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have always been of the opinion that a person should use iodized salt unless he lives in a section of the country in which the water contains iodine naturally. Having seen people with goiters, I am very concerned.

My husband feels that one should use iodized salt only when a doctor recommends it, and since no doctor has told him to use it, he uses plain salt, buying a separate package when I buy iodized salt.—I.H.

You have the right idea; hubby is a bit confused. It's not just iodine in the water, but in the soil. In some parts of the country (and in other parts of the world, too), iodine has gradually leached out of the soil and virtually none is left.

Elsewhere there is some iodine, and vegetables will have traces of it — all the body needs is small traces of it, but without those traces the thyroid gland enlarges and the result is that swelling that we call a goiter.

The amount of iodine in iodized salt is so slight that it isn't going to be harmful — but it can be mighty helpful.

Use of iodized salt started nearly half a century ago, and the amount of goiter was greatly reduced. Today, we have much faster and wider transportation of food (seafood shipped in, vegetables and fruits from various parts of the country) so people in the iodine-poor areas are more likely to get at least a little iodine. But use of iodized salt continues to be a good precaution.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain to us what "crabs" actually is?—A.B. and L.V.

Short term for "crab lice," one of several types of lice, the crab lice primarily infesting the hairy area around the genitals. The pests can spread elsewhere, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My lower eyelids are inflamed and sore. I have bathed them with boric acid and a mild salt solution. Neither has worked well. What should I do? J. E. G.

It sounds like an infection of some sort. (Allergy is a possibility, too.) Better have your doctor, or an eye specialist, diagnose the trouble. Eyes are too important to risk with hit-or-miss treatment.

Hefty Chunk for Training

L.I.P. Accent on Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — A $125 million fund to be used for the Local Initiatives Program and on-the-job training will emphasize the creation of jobs for people on welfare and unemployment insurance, Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

Mackasey said last week that $40 million of the fund would be used for on-the-job training. The remaining $85 million will be used for L.I.P., he said, confirming earlier reports that about $80 million would be available to pay for approved projects.

The L.I.P. funds represent a decrease of $5 million from the initial $100 million provided for the program last year. The $40 million for the on-the-job program doubles initial funds for the plan last year.

The total spent on L.I.P. from last fall until now amounts to $195 million. After the initial $100 million, $50 million was added in January, $30 million in May and $15 million in September.

The last $15 million was to continue 750 projects until the end of November.

Mackasey said the decrease in funds to L.I.P. was nominal.

"On-the-job training is a permanent feature of manpower, while L.I.P. at best is an ad-hoc program."

Giant Bomb Rocks Derry

BELFAST (CP — A 600-pound bomb, the biggest charge used in Northern Ireland's three years of bloodshed, blasted a half-built police station in Londonderry Tuesday and two other bombs ripped open Roman Catholic bars in Belfast.

No one was hurt in the Londonderry explosion, but at least 20 persons were injured in the bar bombings.

Anker Jorgensen Leads Danes

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Anker Jorgensen, a self-educated labor leader, was unanimously elected as Denmark's new prime minister Wednesday by the 80-member executive board of the Social Democratic party.

Outgoing prime minister Jens Otto Krag, who stunned the nation Tuesday by resigning only 12 hours after leading Denmark into the European common market, announced approval of his successor after a 75-minute meeting at Christianborg Palace seat of the Folketing (Parliament).

"We will go to the queen tomorrow," Krag said. "I shall hand in my resignation and then Anker Jorgensen will give his credentials.

"Then the heavy burden is yours," Krag said, turning to the 50-year-old Jorgensen, who sat next to him at a table decorated with red roses.

Coin in Space Worth 50 On Old Earth

HOUSTON (AP) — A 179-year-old U.S. coin secreted on board the Gemini 7 spacecraft in 1965 was sold recently for $15,000 and the man who sold it said now it could be worth as much as $100,000.

The coin is a 1793 large cent which normally sells in coin-collecting circles for about $2,000.

A space agency spokesman, in response to a query from The Associated Press, admitted that the coin had been slipped aboard Gemini 7, the 14-day Earth orbit space mission in 1965. The spokesman said that no one connected with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, including Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, profited from the transaction.

In a prepared statement, the space agency said: "The coin was placed in the in-flight medical kit by Dr. Howard Minners, a flight surgeon who left NASA several years ago."

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg butcher, Joe Reisen, says he has found a captive market here for goat's meat, a popular delicacy in India. During one week all but two of a dozen carcasses were specially ordered from his shop, many by Indians who eat the meat according to religious customs.

The Teacher Surplus

THE DEANS OF EDUCATION of the Universities of B.C. and Victoria and the co-ordinator of teacher recruitment for the provincial government are unanimous in expressing the belief that a dropoff in enrolment in teacher training programs will result in a severe shortage of teachers in four or five years. They see a danger of overreaction, among students who might want to become teachers, to a current surplus of teachers which they say is small and does not extend to all parts of the provinces but only to the more attractive districts.

They may be right. Nevertheless it should be noted that the number of elementary and secondary teachers in Canada increased by 67 per cent in the past decade, while the population grew by only 18 per cent, and that with elementary school enrolments easing off, many teachers across the country are out of work. (And according to Statistics Canada, British Columbia has the highest proportion of teachers with certificates from another province or country, so it is of considerable consequence that teachers elsewhere are hungrily looking for work.)

It should also be observed that while the population bulge of the post-war baby boom has reached the working force (or the would-be working force) and the teacher training programs, the biggest wave has yet to roll into the labor market, including perhaps the teaching profession. Sometimes forgotten is the fact that the baby boom did not end soon after the war; that the birthrate has only been declining since 1961. Figures from the 1971 census, newly published, show that the country's (and British Columbia's) biggest age-group consists of children from 10 to 14 years old — 2,310,740 of them in Canada and 222,305 in B.C.

In the age-group from birth to four years old there were 1,816,155 children in Canada, 175,440 of them in B.C., at the time of the census. Thus we are several years from seeing the peak of young people entering the work force while the number of children about to enter and go through school is declining as a proportion of the population.

In a letter to The Ottawa Journal, Vice-Dean Paul Merkley of St. Patrick's College, Carleton University, says the bitterness of unemployed teachers is entirely justified; that the school boards and teachers' federations have an obligation to increase the ranks of teachers.

To this end, he suggests:

"The teachers can make their contribution . . . by settling for salary increases which, for the time being, may do little more than mark time against the workings of inflation, while demanding greatly reduced teaching schedules, and better sabbatical and study-leave arrangements — thus making way for new teachers. The school boards can make their contribution by acceding to these demands — and closing ranks with the teachers in facing down the inevitable short-range outrage of the taxpayers.

"I suggest that this outrage will be of the short-run, because I am convinced that parents would soon see and appreciate the improvements that would follow in the schooling of their children . . ."

Is Vice-Dean Merkley being too idealistic all around?

The Biggest British Issue

GREAT BRITAIN'S LABOR PARTY has veered sharply to the left, according to decisions taken at the big Blackpool conference last Monday, where representatives of the more than six million members responded to former prime minister Harold Wilson's war cry with enthusiasm. Mr. Wilson challenged Prime Minister Edward Heath to call a general election to head off what he calls an economic crisis in the country.

But Mr. Wilson did not spell out precisely what a Labor government would do to check inflation in Britain, other than to promise the re-nationalization of the steel industry. It was nationalized by a previous Labor administration, but Mr. Heath turned it back into the private sector with what have appeared to be beneficial results.

Then, on Wednesday, as the conference continued, Mr. Wilson accepted the delegates' demand that a future Labor government would be bound to seek sweeping new terms for Britain's continuing membership in the European Common Market. This he may have done with some reluctance because he has always favored membership, although he can truthfully claim he wanted better terms than those Mr. Heath found acceptable.

But in any test of the electorate it is the domestic economic situation that will be the biggest issue. As in Canada, inflation and unemployment are the problems foremost in the public mind. In this country the government continues to gouge the taxpayer for funds to stimulate industry and to circulate more currency by huge expenditure on welfare and unemployment insurance — and without noticeable success. In Britiain Mr. Heath has proposed voluntary wage and price controls; and they may not work either.

It is on the success or failure of these controls that the fate of Mr. Heath's government probably depends.

Mr. Wilson may scoff at the effort, but Victor Feather, general secretary of the Trades Union Council, supports the prime minister.

The objectives of the unions, of industry and of the government are one, he says, and he would deplore any "hasty and unconsidered action" which would prejudice ultimate agreement on the proposals.

It is expected, however, that the Trades Union Council will try to influence the government to include in its control program tough measures to freeze dividends, hold back rent increases, improve pensions and introduce stern sanctions against property speculators. These would seem sound suggestions, and if ever a Canadian administration were to undertake a system of controls ought to be thoroughly examined for possible inclusion.

If Mr. Heath is willing to accept the council's items he would immensely and immediately strengthen his position in a purely political sense.

For even if the remedy didn't work he would get full marks for trying.

Paradoxically, nearly all Britain's nationalized industry is seeking price increases in defiance of the government's target of restraint. The gas, electricity, coal and road services industries, as well as the post office, are all planning increases in rates of as much as 10 per cent. Mr. Heath must put a stop to this rebellion within the government structure. There can be no exceptions to the rules if his proposed controls are to succeed.

Successor to the Diefenbuck

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

REMEMBER the "Diefenbuck," the 92½ cent "Diefendollar" of the election of 1962 when former Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his embattled Conservatives devalued?

The Liberals capitalized on it, printing up thousands of these discounted "Diefenbucks," little realizing at the time that very quickly devaluation was going to become a plus thing for the enormous segment of Canadian industry that works and lives for export.

It was a tremendous boost for the economy, but it didn't develop in time — or the voters didn't realize the prosperity potential soon enough — to rescue the then-floundering Conservatives from their impending minority mandate.

The "Diefenbuck" of course was an election gimmick and the Liberals quickly and successfully exploited it, picking up votes before devaluation began picking up the economy.

Now a different — but this time politically non-partisan — money gimmick is being tried out, the "Just-a-Buck," issued on the authority of the "Bank of the Just Society," and printed by the "Fuddle Duddle Bank Note Company of Canada Limited."

The notes, printed with blue-green ink on paper not too dissimilar to that of ordinary Bank of Canada stock, are the same size as dollars.

These "Just-a-Bucks" are bilingual, too, printed in English and French, and instead of the portrait of Queen Elizabeth, carry a photo engraving of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau with the caption "Just let me try once more."

The message on the back of the note instructs the bearer to "deduct 10 per cent a year for inflation."

The gimmick is entirely non-partisan — although obviously aimed at the government — because it is being printed for profit by a stamp and coin dealer rather than for political gains by one of the opposition parties.

★ ★ ★

This new version of election-campaign funny money, swears coin dealer Peter Degraaf of Ottawa, is "strictly a fun-thing, printed only for laughs — and to make a little money, of course."

As befits a discounted dollar, daily being diluted in value by inflation, the "Just-a-Buck" sells at 20 for $1.

"Fair enough," says dealer Degraaf, "isn't it, with the buck just not being worth what it used to be, or even was last week, what with food prices going up the way they are?"

The opposition, Conservatives, New Democrats, and especially the Creditistes who think the Bank of Canada is a sort of financial bucket-shop, are naturally enough delighted.

★ ★ ★

The "Just-a-Buck," underlining inflation, the prime minister's often profane way with words, and the government's casual disregard of the taxpayers' dollar, is just the kind of thing they might have wished to have come on with themselves.

For the Conservatives, it would have been a sweet 1972 tit for a sour 1962 tat.

But it's so much better to have a political neutral like Peter Degraaf do it for them.

This way there's no suggestion of playing dirty pool politically.

And Mr. Degraaf is playing the part of non-political involvement perfectly.

For while the Liberals, quite understandably, are frothing at the mouth in righteous indignation over his "Just-a-Buck," he is saying, with straight and honest face, that it is all a gag.

"A gimmick," he swears, "just to make a buck, even if it is an inflated 60-cent Canadian dollar, worth a few cents less every month."

★ ★ ★

He insists he could have done the same to the Conservatives or the New Democrats — with different portraits and messages, or course.

And the Liberals wish he had.

Social Reform Collapse

U.S. Congressional Inertia

By RICHARD L. STROUT from Washington

COLLAPSE of various social reform hopes in Washington as Congress races to adjourn revives again the question of the adequacy of existing U.S. governmental institutions.

● President Nixon three years ago announced that welfare reform was his No. 1 domestic priority; after 15 months' delay the Senate finance committee has dumped a 964-page bill in Congress in its last three weeks, virtually inviting postponement and rejection.

● The House Ways and Means Committee has endorsed a bill giving Mr. Nixon authority to cut spending this year to $250 billion, implying its own inability to make the cuts, hinting that Congress is unwilling to take responsibility, and transferring new authority to the increasingly dominant executive.

● A two-year drive to regulate private industrial pensions involving 50 million workers and $150 billions in funds appears blocked by opponents in the Senate, who transferred it from the sympathetic labor committee to the hostile finance committee.

● Controversial "no fault" insurance, affecting most automobile drivers, after six years of congressional study, was sidetracked in the Senate by procedural manoeuvre.

● Congress made no major change in health care, although Mr. Nixon in 1969 said failure to meet the "crisis" in the "next two or three years" would cause "a breakdown . . . affecting millions of people throughout the country."

Other reform proposals seemed doomed, like gun control and strip-mining control, while shrewd operatives made ready to slip through the usual so-called "Christmas tree" bills with special privileges in the last days.

There is a tendency to ascribe congressional inertia to temporary circumstances, unusual political conditions, or poor leadership, but actually it appears to go deeper. Common Cause sees a "steady, progressive decline in citizen confidence in their institutions of government in general and in Congress in particular."

A Louis Harris Poll (1971) reported that 60 per cent of the public at that time felt the country was not being run for the benefit of the average person.

Writing in the current Atlantic, Elizabeth Drew, the magazine's Washington correspondent, asks why Congress does not do more and replies that "a substantial proportion of the members . . . do not see that there is anything to do."

If Willy Brandt in Germany or Trygve Bratteli of Norway loses a vote of confidence, he resigns and precipitates an election. There is no machinery for a similar mandate here where a president of one party uneasily faces a legislature controlled by another party.

Canada, Australia, and New Zealand are having elections almost simultaneously with the United States, but the participants there are unequivocal politicians, whereas the participants in America run, not merely as politicians, but seek the ceremonial and almost sacred office of the president. No major modern democracy follows this practice which might be caricatured as England's Prime Minister Heath and Queen Elizabeth running on the same ticket!

There is no consensus in this situation. Representative views include:

● Congressional reform would meet most problems; the seniority system discriminates, particularly against cities; committee secrecy protects injustices like oil-depletion allowance; two-thirds of the real power of the House is accountable to only one fourth of the American voters, due to stacked committees. Most observers believe that if reform comes to Congress, the major impetus must come from outside Congress.

● Reform political parties: U.S. political parties are normally shifting coalitions of divergent interest groups but, according to this view, tighter discipline could be imposed by a new structure in Congress and by biennial or annual party conventions. Democrats show some signs of moving in this direction.

● Educate voters not to split tickets. President Eisenhower faced a Democratic Congress for six of his eight years; President Nixon for all of his term. It is acknowledged, however, that a degree of deadlock is built into the U.S. political system with its fixed, biennial elections.

● "Curb the president": This ambitious but vague proposal is sometimes recommended. Rexford Tugwell (The Enlargement of the Presidency) urged a series of vice-presidents; others urged creation of independent agencies; the fact remains that the executive has steadily grown in Washington in 50 years and the legislature has shrunk.

● "The system works pretty well": This school contends that the size and diversity of the U.S. makes congressional inefficiency inevitable, and delay, in fact, invaluable; all the public needs is patience. The problem here is that a change is accelerating. With one in 14 Americans receiving welfare and with 25 million below the poverty line, anxious observers ask: How much time is there?

Congress, however, seems content. Its only hurry is to get away.

Flag Wavers

The fears of BMritish Columbians at the proud furling of the American flag on motels, restaurants, marinas, etc., of our imminent arrival as the 51st state are completely unfounded.

We are merely showing courtesy to our American visitors! At least that is the lame excuse used by these pseudo-patriotic scramblers of the tourist buck.

Of course, the merchant owners of the Stars and Stripes don't give a fig about the U.S., its flag, or its people. Depth of intelligence appears to be a rare commodity. This lack of character is not lost upon natives and Americans, alike.

The native views the feeble efforts of the U.S. flag-waving merchant with amusement and disdain. Most Americans, who perhaps have the greatest experience in being culled by tourist traps, regard these "American loving" Canadians as simple-minded, hypocrites. Many Americans have told me one of the saddest sights they see in B.C. are the phoney tourist establishments flying the Stars and Stripes.

"Well, everyone does it you know; I'd better follow suit."

What does the American tourist really want when he comes to Canada? Deep down he really doesn't believe this is a foreign country — it's too near — too easy to get to. But secretly he hopes it is a foreign country. What is the biggest symbol of a foreign country? The flag — a foreign flag. When an American goes to England or Switzerland his biggest thrill is seeing the British or Swiss flag. He now can tell himself he's in a foreign country.

This, dear merchant, is the biggest thing we have to offer the foreign visitor — our foreigness. And our flag, our Canadian flag, sums it all up.

Do you suppose they fly the Canadian flag in Los Angeles? Do you think they fly the Stars and Stripes in Stockholm, Zurich, or Amsterdam?

Of course not! The natives of those countries would be embarrassed at the obvious usage of so noble a thing being used to make another kroner, mark or guilder.

The charm that attracts foreign visitors must be different and local. Businessmen needing the tourist trade must add to this charm and be most subtle in their blandishments. This keeps the tourist dollars coming. To diminish our uniqueness, our foreigness, in order to make Americans of foreigners feel at home will succeed eventually in keeping them at home. Why come to Canada when it looks just like the Good Old U.S.?

Bethune Happening

After spending a year in Montreal, I have harbored memories of a visit of delegates from People's China in honor of the death of Norman Bethune. I was attending McGill, where there had been a close awareness of affairs on the international front. It was close to last February , when last I was invited to this meeting.

Out of the five foreigners, two spoke about Norman Bethune almost as if he were a legend in China. The head of McGill's Asian Studies department found difficulty in giving the people present any clear idea as to what was happening. Despite the difficulties of communication, everyone was treated to a buffet of Chinese dumplings and tea. Not much impressed by the continuous repetition of compliments to Norman Bethune, I could not overlook the possibility that these Chinese people were desperately trying to elevate our political consciousness through an elementary form of suggestion.

Then, there was a kind of spirit which I had never felt in the Union Building — a very homogeneous atmosphere. Whether this kind of encounter may be thought of as pro-racism on the part of the Chinese, or a political gimmick, is difficult to determine. However, what is perhaps most important is, legend or not, Norman Bethune happened. It relieved me to release one identity hangup which had stirred like a toad in my brain for so long. Now, if I want to emanate a good Canadian, at least I don't feel the need to knock an American. I appreciated such a visit.

Help Needed

I am one of the many almost disabled, due to aging, of Victoria senior citizens, who would be grateful if some large company of retail meat and groceries, etc., would be kind hearted enough to consider the plight of thousands of frail elderly Canadians, who are hardly able to walk, often barely escaping being run down by impatient motorists at street crossings.

Chinese grocers will take telephone orders, also deliver, but often do not stock fresh meat.

I have inquired of all our big store grocery departments, and am told it is too expensive to them to deliver unless the customer goes and picks out orders to be sent. With the winter fast approaching, I for one, am less able to carry even small items. I am hoping some organization such as Silver Threads or others could start a project of this nature to cut down on the many fatalities likely to occur again this winter.

Relieving Poverty Good Investment

McNamara

Robert McNamara, who was appointed for a second five-year term as president of the World Bank in April this year, is becoming a giant in the field of world development.

The bank, which has just presented its annual report, can be proud of its achievements. When McNamara became president five years ago, he promised to double the amount of finance spent by the group in 1964-68.

This has been achieved. In the last five years the bank loaned $30,000 million. Now McNamara is promising $50,000 million for 1974-78, and he has never failed on his target yet.

By ALAN RAKE
from London

All this comes out clearly in the now traditional annual speech that McNamara has made since the report, to his board of governors.

Last year he took the world by the ears with his outspoken comments on how the world was losing out in the development race and how the gap between the rich and the poor was opening faster than ever.

This year he has repeated the theme, but now he turns traditional economic thinking on its head by coming to the conclusion that aid should be concentrated on the poorest nations and the poorest sections of the community, even though many will say that this is certain to slow world growth.

This is a truly revolutionary proposal because in the past the world bank has always had to borrow its money from market sources and charge high international interest rates on its projects.

It has been forced to earn a return on its money, and to do this it has concentrated its spending on profitable projects.

Now McNamara is saying that a way must be found to finance the broader problems of rural development, employment, and poppulation growth where money can be spent without showing an immediate return.

McNamara starts by saying the developing countries, forming 64 per cent of the world's population managed to achieve an annual growth rate of only 4.1 per cent. Most of this was eaten up by population growth and inflation, so there has been virtually no improvement in the desperately low standards of living of 1,100 million people.

The rich are expected to be getting incomes of $8,000 a year by the end of the century while the pooor, who at that time will have multiplied to 2,250 million, will be getting less than $200 and 800 million of these less than $100 a head.

An average world growth rate of 4.1 per cent may seem a reasonable achievement, but it masks the fact that some developing countries are shooting ahead far faster than the others. The oil-producing countries, for example, have achieved staggering growth rates over the past year.

Here something is being done to iron out inequalities. The UN has designated the 25 poorest countries of all and has plans to give them special assistance.

But McNamara wants to go even further. He points out that inside any developing country there are huge inequalitities in wealth. In 39 countries studied, the top five per cent get more than 30 times more than the lowest 40 per cent. This is the group that presents "the largest, most pervasive and most persistent poverty problem of all," he says.

Economists in the past agreed with this analysis, but argued that a country will not grow rich unless there is a wide income gap to give intrepreneurial incentives, a hands of the few running the high rate of savings and investment.

In other words, unless the money is concentrated in the modern, industrial, mining and oil sectors of the economy the rate of growth will not be high enough to increase national wealth and allow a more equitable share out.

But McNamara has now come out with the revolutionary finding that there is very little difference between the average rate of growth in the group of countries with the greatest income inequalities, and those with the smallest.

In the meantime, he says, the task for the governments of the developing countries is to reorientate their policies to attack directly the personal poverty of the most deprived 40 per cent of their populations.

"They must be prepared to give greater priority to establishing growth targets in terms of essential human needs in nutrition, housing, health, literacy and employment — even if it be at the cost of some reduction in the pace of advance in certain narrow and highly privileged sectors whose benefits accrue to the few."

BACKGROUND

Vital General Election

Polls Favor Labor In Australia Vote

By DON WHITINGTON
From Canberra

McMahon

Australia is about to plunge into its most vital general election campaign for nearly a generation. After 23 years in office, the Liberal-Country party coalition is facing its most serious threat, and possibly defeat.

A Labor party that has achieved a greater semblance of cohesion and unity than at any time since the immediate postwar years is predicted by public opinion polls at this stage to have a better than even chance of victory.

Over the years since 1949, when Sir Robert Menzies steered his non-Labor coalition parties to their first great triumph, Labor has seldom been nearer victory.

In 1954, and again during the past three years, the government has had a majority of only six after electing a speaker. Only at the 1961 election was the margin smaller. Then the government had a margin of only one vote in the house after having elected a speaker.

The decline in the government's stocks began with the retirement of Sir Robert Menzies early in 1966.

The new leader, the late Harold Holt, did not control his followers with the firm hand of his predecessor. There was considerable unrest and discontent in the party at the time he disappeared in the sea off the Victorian coast at the end of 1967.

★ ★ ★

In a desperate effort to give the government a new image and to recover some of the electoral ground that had been lost, the government parties then arranged for the transfer from the Senate to the House of Representatives of John Grey Gorton and he became the new prime minister, after a campaign by all candidates that did the Liberal party's public standing no good.

★ ★ ★

Gorton was a disaster. He had a style of his own that made some appeal to some sections of the electorate, but he antagonised big sections of the public, his own party, and several representatives of foreign powers in Australia.

At a general election in 1969, the Labor party made a net gain of 17 seats, and six months later the Liberals, again desperate, deposed Gorton and installed in his place William McMahon.

McMahon has been little better than Gorton. He was less spectacular and less controversial, but he brought in a budget in 1971 that sent unemployment soaring to two per cent of the work force — a high percentage in Australia.

An earnest and hard working man, he has not captured public imagination, and in public opinion polls his personal rating is lower than any prime minister since the polls began here in the mid-40s. At one stage McMahon's personal rating had fallen to 28 per cent.

During all this time the Labor party, which had been torn by ideological, philosophical, political and personal conflicts for a generation, was steadily consolidating under the new-look leadership of Gough Whitlam, who boldly tackled the reactionary elements of the party in his efforts to rid it of antiquated policies.

The 17-seat gain in 1969, which brought it within four seats of victory, together with subsequent public opinion polls, was a tremendous fillip for Labor's morale, and the party has harried the government and enunciated new and imaginative policies, ever since.

★ ★ ★

The position today is that in the betting charts Labor is given a better than even money chance of victory. It holds 59 seats in the House of Representatives to the government's 66, so needs to win only four seats to have a narrow majority. If the public opinion charts are right, however, it could make a net gain of around 10 seats.

It is too early to make firm predictions, but unless the government can pull something spectacular from the hat it could be in real trouble this time.

Labor has promised to end conscription for military service — a very vital issue with young people; to withdraw troops now stationed in Malaysia and Singapore; to abolish the means test on all pensions, and to support a 35-hour week in industry as one of several remedies it has for unemployment.

It also has progressive ideas on education and investment in Australia of foreign capital, two subjects that appear likely to be important issues.

Primitive Sociability Led to Violence

Fire, Speech Ruined Mankind

In recent years, progress has become something of a dirty eight-letter word. Many people seem to have become increasingly suspicious about innovations.

One is tempted to consider this dilemma as a strictly modern problem. Not so, according to Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, the famed anthropologist, who died this week, aged 69. Where, then, did man go wrong? What was his first mistake?

★ ★ ★

In Leakey's view, man headed down the primrose path when he first "captured" fire. His second mistake was to learn how to talk. The two events are connected, he suggested. Who can sit around a campfire and not talk? Leakey put it this way in a recent issue of Psychology Today:

"We became violent when we became psychosocial men — when we invented fire. speech, abstract thought and religion, magic. This change occurred probably 30,000 to 40,000 years ago.

"Since then we have developed a way of life that throws us together into great masses of people and gives us more and more leisure to think up things like jealousy, hatred and malice, and then indulge in them."

The first men were not like this at all, Leakey argued. "These men and manlike creatures were like the animals themselves and wer not . . . aggressive or violent toward each other."

The ability to control fire, to make it and use it, changed all that, he said. Man began to group together in caves, to gaze at the fire, to talk.

"And the arrival of speech gave us time and leisure to invent ideas. Some of those ideas were the causes of our aggression (language, names for our enemies — but the biggest enemy is the name, not the person)."

According to Leakey, everything since then, all our progress, has been colored by this separation and differentiation prompted by fire and language.

"Our talks suggest that we have become so violent now that there is no hope for the future," he said. "I personally don't believe this at all. I think we have reached a point where we certainly have a very short time in which to make up our minds what we are going to do.

"We can, because we're the only animal . . . who amongst his evolutionary developments developed a thinking brain and precision grip.

"And if we don't want to destroy ourselves in the very near future, we can and we must today set to work jointly and all together — over the whole world — say to each other and to our leaders, we are not prepared to allow man to destroy himself and the whole beauty of the arts, of the music that we have inherited from our forefathers."

New Minister on Ownership

Time Will Come, Mines Warned

The time will come when mining operations in B.C. will be expected to be more than 50 per cent Canadian owned, Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Wednesday.

Nimsick said earlier reports Wednesday that any mining company starting a new venture in the province now will have to be at least 50 per cent Canadian owned were erroneous.

No legislation had been considered yet, there was no timetable for it, there had been no government discussions and it wasn't "right-now policy" of the NDP, Nimsick said.

"We hope to have this policy and bring it in with the cooperation of mining companies.

"It is the hopeful objective of this government to control our own resources."

The minister said control should be within B.C. boundaries and profits should be returned as much as possible to the province.

However, he stressed that his government had not "changed anything yet" and there were no current restrictions on mining company ownership.

Backing up his hope that mining ownership would eventually be more than 50 per cent Canadian he said if it isn't the control would be "in the board room of some foreign country which is no good for this country or this province."

Nimsick set the priorities for his department as an assessment of the "whole value" of mining in B.C. and preparation of an inventory of all mineral reserves in the province to have depletion on a planned basis.

At present mining was like forestry was 40 years ago when the policy seemed to be "get in, cut, and get out."

"We shouldn't be out to deplete our natural resources as fast as we can," he said.

He also thinks mining should provide more jobs.

"It doesn't provide many now and each year we have to dig more ore to keep one man working."

Ideally as many jobs as possible should be created per ton of ore mined.

"We can't do that if just raw products are shipped out of the province. Processing, fabricating and refinery plants should be set up," the minister said.

Other Nimsick ideas include making all of B.C. a clean air zone instead of the present system of dividing up the province into clean and dirty air zones.

Any mining operation will have to come under the strict control of the Pollution Control Board and no mine venture will be allowed to start up if it contributes to pollutiohn.

The minister is counting on mining companies to come up with suggestions on how a system of royalties may be devised to give the provincial treasury a share in non-renewable resources exported.

Nimsick also told reporters that a proposed smelter in the Cariboo to be built by a consortium of companies "doesn't conform to our ideas of pollution control" because it plans high stacks dispersing sulphur dioxide fumes into the air.

And a proposed Cominco Ltd. smelter at Kimberley could be built if it is proved to be pollution free. A government decision would be announced later.

In the earlier report, Nimsick was quoted as saying a copper smelter could be built on Vancouver Island if it were pollution free "and there is some remarkable progress being made in that direction right now."

Nimsick also indicated he was in full support of the use of coal for thermal power stations in B.C. as there was much cheap coal in the province.

Canadian Portion Declining

The major mining operations in B.C., either working or under construction, are 54 per cent owned by Canadians and 58 per cent controlled by Canadians.

Price Waterhouse and Co. has recently completed a detailed study of the industry for the Mining Association of B.C. The percentage of Canadian ownership in each mine is shown in the accompanying table, and has been determined from participating companies and the reported residence of the individual and corporate shareholders.

Price Waterhouse states that based on the market value of the issued share capital of each company as at Dec. 31, 1971, or an estimate based on the book value of the investment where the company's shares are not publicly traded, the effective Canadian ownership of the B.C. mining industry is 53.9 per cent. This represents a slight decline from the 54.4 per cent Canadian ownership in 1970.

It should not be concluded, says the report, that, because 46 per cent of the beneficial ownership of the B.C. mining da, the same percentage of industry is held outside Cana- the effective control of the B.C. mining industry is held outside Canada.

Effective control of a company as defined here means ownership of more than 50 per cent of its issued common shares. On this basis, as indicated by the table, some 12 of the 25 companies currently owning major mining operations in B.C. are effectively controlled outside Canada.

The 13 companies which have more than 50 per cent of their issued common shares owned in Canada represent 58.5 per cent of the total market value of the shares of all the companies, a reduction from 61.2 per cent in 1970.

Factors affecting this reduction in the percentage of Canadian ownership include changes in the shareholdings of Lornex, Granby and Western mines, and signficant reductions in the market values of several of the large Canadian-controlled companies included in the study.

The inclusion for the first time of Gibraltar Mines which is 75 per cent effectively Canadian owned, had the effect of limiting the reduction in 1971.

Notes:
(1) Direct ownership is based on the reported residence of individual and corporate shareholders.
(2) Effective Canadian ownership is the percentage of equity beneficially owned by Canadians after taking into account the foreign ownership of Canadian corporations holding a direct or determinable indirect investment.
(3) The shares of these companies are not publicly traded. The value shown is an estimate based on the book value.
(4) The value of the Bradina Joint Venture has been based on the market value of shares in Nadina Explorations Ltd. who are entitled to receive 50% of the profits of the mine. Ownership was calculated on the basis of the division of future revenues between Nadina and the joint venture partners Bralorne and Pacific Petroleums.
(5) The value of the Cominco Ltd. interest in both Coast Copper and Fording Coal has been eliminated from the market value of Cominco's shares. The market value of Cominco's total issued shares at December 31, 1971, was $373,600,000.
(6) The property operated by Granduc Operating Company is leased from Granduc Mines Ltd., who will receive royalties from the operations of the property. The market value of Granduc Operating Company has been estimated based on the market value of the shares of Granduc Mines Ltd., which are publicly traded.
(7) The Granby Mining Company Limited holds 67% of the issued share capital of Granisle Copper Limited. The market value of this investment has been deducted from the value attributed from the value attributed to Granby's share.

All Crops Smaller

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian wheat crop is estimated at 526.2 million bushels this year, about 1 per cent lower than the 529.6 million bushels produced in 1971, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The lower production resulted from a 10-per-cent-decrease in yield-per-acre this year which offsets a 10-per-cent-increase in acreage. The 10-year average for wheat production between 1960-69 was 609.5 million bushels.

For other grain crops the 1972 production is generally forecast to be lower than that of 1971, but higher than the 1960-69 10-year average.

New York City Sues GM

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City filed a class action suit Wednesday on behalf of all cities in the U.S. against General Motors Corp. charging it has a monopoly on the bus market, resulting in excessive prices for public transportation vehicles.

The federal antitrust suit asked for triple damages and a directive that GM divest itself of some bus-manufacturing facilities.

General Motors denied the accusations and promised to "vigorously defend itself against these meritless charges."

Norman Redlich, the city's chief legal official, told a news conference he could not estimate how much money the city was asking. But he did say the city had purchased $40 million worth of public transportation buses from GM.

Mayor John Lindsay said the suit represented the first time a local government asked the courts to order a corporation to divest itself of facilities. All previous actions of this kind have been initiated by the federal government.

Famous Players

Coronet Theatre Has New Owner

Famous Players Ltd. has acquired its fourth Victoria-area movie theatre with the acquisition this week of the Coronet on Yates Street.

The movie house was sold for an undisclosed sum by Astral Communications of Toronto to Famous Players after Astral had operated it since June of 1966. Astral just last month indicated that it was selling off several of its movie theatres to concentrate its efforts on film distribution and other enterprises.

Other area theatres now controlled by Famous Players are the Royal, Capitol and Tillicum outdoor.

Famous Players' district manager, James Dudley of Vancouver, said in an interview that his company plans a complete turnaround on the quality of films to be shown in the Coronet. For instance, he said that this weekend will see the start of a Walt Disney film, Now You See 'Em, Now You Don't.

Last August city detectives acting on a complaint closed the Coronet as it was showing two Swedish films, Wild Honey and Do You Believe in Swedish Sin?

Charges were laid against Manager Frank Sannor under Section 163 of the Criminal Code which reads: "Everyone commits an offence who . . . allows to be presented . . . an immoral, indecent or obscene performance, entertainment or representation."

The case will be heard early in November.

Dudley said it was too early to disclose any plans for the future but that the theatre will carry on as usual with its present staff.

The theatre first was called the Atlas when it was built in 1936 by Dr. Gustave Preiswerck. It was an oddity at the time as it was the first air-conditioned theatre in the city. Preiswerck ran the Atlas until 1940 when it was leased to Famous Players.

Famous Players closed the Atlas in 1956, blaming the heavy effect of then-novel television for loss of customers, but retained the lease nevertheless.

The theatre remained dark until 1961 when Famous Players failed to renew the lease and Preiswerck's son Helmuth then resumed operations.

The Atlas declared a policy of family-type films, — at least on the weekends — and won a PTA award for this policy. However, its last movie, when it closed again in April of 1966, was the controversial Damaged Goods.

Astral bought the theatre then and reopened it two months later as the Coronet.

Potash Production, Staff Chopped

TORONTO (CP) — Central Canada Potash Co. Ltd. announced that effective Wednesday it is curtailing production by 50 per cent in its Saskatchewan mining operations to meet provincial government restrictions in the industry.

President D. E. G. Schmitte said at a news conference the Saskatchewan government indicated it would cancel the company's sub-surface mineral lease if it failed to comply with the production cut.

He said the company will be forced initially to lay off about 120 workers.

Central Canada Potash is 51-per-cent owned by Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto and 49 per cent by CF Industries Inc. of Chicago. It holds potash mining rights on some 70,000 acres 40 miles east of Saskatoon. Production started in August, 1969.

Schmitte said cancellation of the company's mineral ease "would amount to expropriation with uncertain compensation" of Central Canada's operation which was placed in production at a capital cost of $95 million.

He said the company shipped about 1.1 million tons of product in the 1971-72 fertilizer year. It has contractual obligations to supply 1,235,000 tons in the fertilizer year that began July 1.

However, on the basis of a Saskatchewan government decision to restrict each producer in the province to the same percentage of capacity in the current year, irrespective of supply contracts, Central Canada Potash is being allowed to produce only 730,008 tons.

Net Earnings

Campbell Chibougamau Mines Ltd., year ended June 30: 1972, $39,000, 1 cent a share; 1971, $1,914,000, 43 cents.

Fleet Manufacturing Ltd., year ended June 30: 1972, $306,000, 12 cents a share; 1971, $110,000, four cents.

MCF Management Ltd., three months ended June 30: 1971, $18,366; 1971, $41,466.

Trans-Canada Resources Ltd., nine months ended July 31: 1972, $112,586, 4.3 cents a share; 1971, $83,173, 3.1 cents.

Own Doing --Premier

REGINA (CP) — Problems being encountered by Central Canada Potash Co. Ltd. in having to curtail production by 50 per cent were brought on by the company's own doing, Premier Allan Blakeney said Wednesday.

Blakeney said the company had felt it didn't get an appropriate allocation under the province's prorationing system and had proceeded to produce "pretty well flat out."

Now the company, which had been unsuccessful in its challenge of the prorationing system in the courts, has to bring its production into line with other potash producers in Saskatchewan.

The province restricts the percentage of capacity each potash mine in Saskatchewan can produce. This is to avoid overproduction and resulting depressed prices.

Harvesting Bee Suggested

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government has proposed a modern version of the old-fashioned harvesting bee to help get the province's rain-and-snow battered crops out of the fields.

Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner said Tuesday residents of cities and towns should telephone friends or relatives on farms and volunteer their aid in completing the harvest.

"If we don't get the crop off, Alberta may have to import feed grain, maybe even from the United States."

The agriculture department has set up a "hot line" telephone exchange with the Alberta Grains Commission and district agriculturalists to advise farmers where extra help and threshing equipment is available.

The minister was speaking at a new conference to start Agriculture Week which is replacing the master farmer awards.

Dr. Horner also announced the provincial government will help Alberta forage processors set up a provincial storage bank and west coast storage facilities.

The coast facilities would be aimed at capturing a bigger share of Japanese and British Columbia markets.

Details have yet to be worked out but such facilities seemed practical with the advent of forage processing into cubes and pellets which are easily handled and keep well.

The provincial forage bank would be used to move supplies into areas suffering from adverse weather.

Juneau Won't Switch Cable Hearing Site

can make their views known. He added that he is not qualified to judge the merits of the application itself.

Juneau, however, rejected the motion for an adjournment. He said Cablevision had complied with CRTC procedure by giving the CRTC its financial statement on a confidential basis.

If Groos' argument was adopted, Juneau said, the CRTC could find itself holding 125 to 150 hearings a year instead of the current practice of grouping cases by region and having fewer than a dozen a year.

Such a large number of hearings in so many different locations "would bring the administration of broadcasting to a halt."

Juneau added that the CRTC will examine its procedures to see whether they should be changed in view of Shortreed's arguments.

In testimony on the rate-increase application, Cablevision representatives said they have been charging $4.50 a month for 11 years, providing 11 television channels and 26 FM radio stations.

Adams said the entire Victoria Cablevision system is to be rebuilt, using solid-state equipment instead of tube-type equipment. The new system would be able to provide more than 20 television channels and live local television coverage through a two-way capability.

The two-way capability would permit television signals to be sent by cable to the company studio and then back to all subscribers. The studio would also be enlarged.

Total cost of the modernization and expansion would be $1,375,000 and it would be complete in three years, Adams said.

Replying to questions from CRTC members, he said it would take at least twice as long to finance the project without a rate increase.

John McKeeman of Victoria Cablevision said that the firm would have to go ahead with most of the modernization in any case, even without the rate increase.

He was asked about criticism by Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria concerning the links between Cablevision and Victoria Press Ltd. publishers of the Colonist and the Times.

Pollen had submitted by mail an intervention stating:

"It should be pointed out that the parent company of Victoria Cablevision Ltd., Premier Cablevision Ltd. is substantially influenced if not controlled by our local daily newspaper company Victoria Press Ltd. We believe that ownership by a virtual monopoly daily press is demonstrably against the public interest."

Adams said he sees nothing wrong with Victoria Press having representatives on the board of Victoria Cablevision and that Victoria Press owns less than 3 per cent of Premier.

He denied that newspaper coverage of the rate-increase application had been affected by the relationship between the companies.

Adams also denied that Victoria Cablevision is buying equipment from Cascade Electronics because Premier has an indirect interest in Cascade.

He said Victoria Cablevision usually bought from Cascade before Premier obtained its indirect interest.

POLLUTION
EVERYONE IS TALKING, WHO'S ACTING

Environmental control is something everyone is talking about but who is doing anything?

THE REAL THREAT TO VANCOUVER ISLAND AND PARTICULARLY TO VICTORIA IS THE PROPOSED ALASKA-BELLINGHAM SUPER-TANKER ROUTE. My opponents and I, in fact I think all Victorians, are concerned that one major marine collision near here could ruin our beaches and damage our marine life for untild years to come.

MY CAREER AS A SAILOR GAVE ME YEARS OF EXPERIENCE IN PRACTICAL MARINE NAVIGATION. During my 9 years in Government meeting and talking to experts, both here and abroad, I have developed a plan for navigational controls in our coastal waters which in my opinion will provide the best possible safeguards against marine collisions and groundings.

MY PROPOSALS ARE CONTAINED IN 3 BILLS, AND A MOTION I TABLED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS THIS MAY. Had Parliament not been dissolved, I am sure they would be before a committee of the House right now. I am also sure my proposals will have the backing of the Government. With your support for re-election I will be able to complete this work.

In true Avis tradition, we announce the end of the mileage charge.

In line with the Avis tradition of trying harder, we proudly announce that we've cleaned up the rent a car rate jungle.

We've abolished the annoying, confusing, chaos of rent a car rates. Instead, Avis has one single daily rate with three important advantages.

1. You can drive all the miles you want with no mileage charge—no matter how far you go.

2. It's much easier to calculate how much you're going to spend—before you spend it. All you pay is the straightforward daily rate, plus the gas you use.

3. You enjoy traditional Avis we try harder service and, in most cases, real savings we invite you to discover.

How about the Avis 20% discount? Simple. It no longer applies because the new daily rates have all been adjusted to compensate.

Avis. A tradition you'll want to experience.

Car	Daily rate
Economy (Colt, etc.)	$12.00
Compact (Valiant, Duster, etc.)	$13.00
Intermediate (Satellite, Coronet, etc.)	$14.00
Full size (Fury III, Polara Custom, etc.)	$15.00

Avis no-mileage-charge rates available across Canada except in some smaller centres. Other models such as sports cars, convertibles, wagons, luxury cars, etc. available at higher daily rates—still no mileage charge.

CRTC Stand:

Pay TV by Licence

EDMONTON (CP) — If pay television develops in Canada, it will be run by companies with broadcasting licences, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission said Wednesday.

The announcement, distributed at CRTC hearings here, said pay television is in an experimental stage but there is growing interest in it. Under the system, viewers pay only for those shows they actually watch.

The CRTC said:

"The commission considers it possible that pay television services will play a significant role in the development of the Canadian broadcasting system, and that it is very much in the public interest to ensure that such services be developed through broadcasting undertakings licensed under the Broadcasting Act."

Robert Short, president of the Canadian Cable Television Association, welcomed the announcement, saying:

"This statement is tremendously important in the competition between licensed cable companies and unlicensed video publishers, who are mostly foreign-owned."

In an interview, Short said there now are unlicensed pay-TV operations in Royal York Hotel, Toronto, and Hotel Vancouver.

Short's written statement said "events now are taking place which are tending to bypass the CRTC and its licensed broadcasting undertakings."

"It is true that video publishers have business plans to serve not only apartments but also individual homes.

"The association is confident the CRTC announcement on pay TV will encourage cable licencees in the major markets to promptly submit plans for subscriber-response-type services."

The announcement said the CRTC will continue discussions with the cable association and other interested groups on how to make pay-TV services an integral part of the broadcasting system.

Jack Almost Surely Back

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — By Wednesday night it wasn't hard to find convention delegates willing to bet that Jack Moore will be returned by acclamation today as president of the Western Canada region of the International Woodworkers of America.

A far cry from other years and pre-convention predictions this time that Moore and his regional officers would once again be challenged for their jobs.

This convention — prior to today at any rate — has been so calm by comparison that some veteran officials have been visibly stunned on occasion.

Matters that usually bring sounds of hostility from the enemy camp have been put through the convention mill with few discouraging words.

There was a good example Wednesday when delegates passed, with no argument at all, a resolution raising the monthly regional office assessment per member from $1.05 to $1.25.

Considering that there are 42,000 members, this means a yearly increase in funds for the region of more than $100,000.

Moore has said extra money was needed for an education program. The regional officers also wanted 30 cents of each $1.25 assessment allotted for a stepped up program in organizing (the use of six full-time organizers in the place of four. Two of the four have been off the job because of illness.

The officers got their wish. But in this case there was a touch of the old-time argument. There wasn't really much opposition to the use of six organizers but there was a faction that thought their expenses should be met in some manner other than the 30 cents per member paid the regional office.

While it went unsaid, it was obviously one of the signs of conflict born from a power struggle between the regional office and the big, strong coast locals. The locals want control, in some cases, of such operations as organizing.

Murray Drew, president of the 2,100-member Victoria local, said in an interview that his local has taken care of its own organizing drives. But Drew had also gone on record as saying the days of the regional office may be numbered—that the locals will soon be able to function adequately without such outside help.

Wednesday he said it would be "a sorry day for the membership" if Moore were unopposed today when nominations are called.

He also said, however, that there appeared to be a lack of likely challengers for the job because of an unwillingness of some to "drain the strength from the locals." The good men, he said, wanted to stay with their locals.

There are some who believe this lack of a worthwhile opposition slate has been responsible for the near silence so far of the enemy camp — The "Presidents' Club," which has normally been accepted as the presidents of some of the more influential locals.

But if you ask them, Drew, Vancouver local president Syd Thompson and Ernie Freer, president of the loggers' local, will tell you no such group ever existed — that they all go their independent ways.

All have been instrumental in the past, however, in attacking the leaderrship of Moore as ineffective.

Some of the feeling between the regional office and a few of the locals showed up briefly Wednesday when second-vice-president Jack Munro uttered what were probably the angriest words of the convention to date.

Dealing with the past reluctance of locals to release money for regional organizing, Munro said the large locals were using their own funds to "buy land and skyscrapers all over the place."

Traffic Death: Another Trial

A hung jury late Wednesday night resulted in an order for a new trial in the case of a 25-year-old Vancouver man charged with causing death by criminal negligence.

Accused is Wayne Richard Trueman, who was on trial in connection with the death of Ronald Morriss, 21, of 2720 Foul Bay Road, in a two-car collision at the Oak Bay junction March 5.

The B.C. Supreme Court jury deliberated for more than four hours Wednesday, then announced to Mr. Justice Peter Seaton that it could not reach a verdict.

Seaton then ordered a new trial and remanded Trueman on his own recognizance until Oct. 16.

Trueman was the driver of a car that collided with the dead man's car.

Earlier in the day Trueman took the stand in his own defence, and told court his story of the accident.

Although he had drunk about three bottles of beer and three glasses of wine during the evening, he was not drunk, he said, and he did not believe his driving ability was impaired by alcohol.

He said he was going "about 40 miles an hour, no faster than 40," not 60 miles an hour or more as crown witnesses stated. "I'm no speed artist," Trueman said.

He also said he was sure the light was green at the intersection as he approached it, and he expected the car he hit to move across the intersection, not to remain stopped.

Before he realized the car wasn't going to move, "I'd gotten too close, I couldn't stop." Trueman testified. He admitted he was going somewhat too fast coming into the intersection.

When he realized he couldn't stop, he tried to swerve to avoid hitting the Morris car, he said, but he couldn't do that either because of traffic coming the other way.

This morning, the trial of Roydon Gaylord Morrison will open in B.C. Supreme Court.

Morrison is charged with assault causing bodily harm with intent to wound in connection with the stabbing of Michael Borushko July 2. A jury for the case was chosen Wednesday.

Broad Theft Bared

Victoria police are investigating what for Perry Mason would be The Case of The Doll's Disappearing Drapery.

Between 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and 12:55 a.m. Wednesday someone darted into an unlocked dressing room at the Harem Club, 1318 Broad, and stole a gown and matching negligee owned by Nancy Olson, the club headliner.

The diaphanous raiment of Miss Olson, billed as The Fabulous Swedish Doll and runnerup in a Miss Sweden beauty contest is described as a floor-length light blue chiffon gown studded with rhinestones and having a dark blue feather trim at the bottom.

Gown and negligee were valued at a total of $200.

New Indian

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

Seven more Indian police constables will begin training in Victoria later this month for duties on their home reserves.

The new recruits will train at the RCMP school in Victoria for about two weeks from Oct. 16 and will bring Indian constable strength in the province to 15.

When the scheme was introduced in May last year eight Indians passed a short RCMP training course and tackled the problems of working for their band councils policing the reserves.

The seven new recruits come from reserves at Cowichan, Bella Bella, Clemtu, North Vancouver (Squamish), Burns Lake and Creston.

Sooke District

$3 Million In School

Sooke school district has asked permission to put a capital referendum for close to $3 million before the voters on Dec. 9, district superintendent E. E. Hyndman said Wednesday.

The referendum would cover construction of a junior high school in the eastern portion of the district, Hyndman said, "probably on the north side of the highway near Goldstream or Millstream."

A school district press release noted that growth in Elizabeth Fisher and Belmont senior high schools has been phenomenal over the past six years, the former having increased 53 per cent in enrolment, the latter 95 per cent.

This growth pattern is unique in the Greater Victoria area, the release stated, and the projected population for 1981 in that area is 30,530 compared to the 1961 figure of 13,717.

How do you tell Canadians nicely that they don't know a thing about eating fish?

And what do you do about consumers in this country who don't know they are wasting many varieties of tasty fish because the market has concentrated on salmon and salmon alone at the expense of black cod, hake, tuna, ling cod, sole and halibut?

Should you tell consumers that Russian and Japanese fishermen are hauling in "fantastic catches" of these fish just off the Canadian west coast because the B.C. fleet is only an infant outside the salmon field?

Experts Trying

Now if only the press doesn't get on to these puzzles before the experts in the federal fisheries department can find a way to break it to Canadians before it's too late.

The experts are trying to find ways to get consumers to eat fish outside the "delicacy line" which Canadians demand for their diet.

Salmon is the fish and always has been on the west coast but now a new industry is struggling for growth.

Incentives are now luring fishermen to net the black cod and other fish which have up to now often been thrown away by Canadian fishermen and scooped up with a smile by the large factory fleet operations of Russia and Japan.

Few landlubbers know that there are more Russians involved in fishing off the Cana-

New Constables Swell Indian Police Ranks

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

Seven more Indian police constables will begin training in Victoria later this month for duties on their home reserves.

The new recruits will train at the RCMP school in Victoria for about two weeks from Oct. 16 and will bring Indian constable strength in the province to 15.

When the scheme was introduced in May last year eight Indians passed a short RCMP training course and tackled the problems of working for their band councils policing the reserves.

The seven new recruits come from reserves at Cowichan, Bella Bella, Clemtu, North Vancouver (Squamish), Burns Lake and Creston.

If they pass the course they will join existing constables in Bella Bella (Campbell Island), Quadra Island, Kincolith, Fort Simpson, Kitimat and two in the Nass River area. A constable in the Cowchan reserve was fired and the band is sending a replacement to the course.

This year the course will be longer and more involved, Staff Sgt. Bob Miles of the RCMP training school said Wednesday.

While he thinks two weeks is still not long enough, he explained that the project was still in a fledgling state" and "enough for them to do their job on the reserves."

Miles said some of the constables had great trouble being accepted by the Indians and one was even assaulted within his home reserve.

However, "drastic action" through arrests and the Indian constables "proving themselves" turned the venture into a success.

The main offences on the reserves were assaults, family disputes, curfew breaches by younger band members and violation of band bylaws, he said.

The band pays for equipment and wages and the RCMP provide the training and oversee reserve policing.

Miles said "any job the reserve constables do is going to help relations between the police and Indians" and he summed up the first year with the words "a darn good job."

Staff Sgt. Ray Nelson, a liaison officer with RCMP E division in Victoria, is working full time on Indian policing problems and has been associated with B.C. Indians for 25 years.

Reflecting on the success of the Indian constable scheme he said the Cowichan firing was "unfortunate" as there was nothing wrong with the constable's policing and other differences of opinion could have been resolved "very easily."

(Larry Joe of the Cowichan reserve was fired after a dispute over car mileage rates. He was replaced by George Auckland who is understood to be one of the men taking the Oct. 16 course in Victoria.)

Barry Goodwin of the Indian affairs department in Vancouver said the Indian constable system was unique in B.C. because this was the only province where they had wider powers.

He explained that B.C. constables were sworn in as police officers under provincial legislation while in other provinces similar Indian constables worked under the "more restrictive" Indian Act.

The only Indian MLA in B.C., Minister without portfolio Frank Calder, said this week he was "quite satisfied" with the job done by the reserve constables.

Some had run into difficulties but they knew the job was not an easy one.

Calder said the people in the Indian villages were "getting to know what law and order is."

He listed liquor as the biggest problem on the reserves followed by thefts, street fighting, stray dogs and sanitation.

But he was strong on one point — the Indian constable system was one asked for by the reserves and not one forced on them.

Sooke District

$3 Million Goal In Schools Vote

Sooke school district has asked permission to put a capital referendum for close to $3 million before the voters on Dec. 9, district superintendent E. E. Hyndman said Wednesday.

The referendum would cover construction of a junior high school in the eastern portion of the district, Hyndman said, "probably on the north side of the highway near Goldstream or Millstream."

A school district press release noted that growth in Elizabeth Fisher and Belmont senior high schools has been phenomenal over the past six years, the former having increased 53 per cent in enrolment, the latter 95 per cent.

This growth pattern is unique in the Greater Victoria area, the release stated, and the projected population for 1981 in that area is 30,530 compared to the 1961 figure of 13,717.

Present enrolment at Elizabeth Fisher is 880 and is expanding at the rate of 9 per cent annually. Belmont's enrolment is 600 and is expanding at a rate of 16 per cent.

At the start of the next school year the combined pupil population of the two schools will be 1,652.

Present capacities of the two schools are 1,590 students. Five years from now it is estimated the combined pupil population will be 2,600.

The school district's release called the referendum "a positive blueprint prepared by a board anticipating growth and attempting to meet it by a staged school construction schedule.

"Passage of the capital referendum will mean schools will have the necessary space for pupils living in this booming 'housing start' community."

Heckling Greets Candidates

Speakers encountered an attentive and polite crowd during their allotted time for speeches and rebuttals at Victoria area's first all-candidates meeting Wednesday night.

However, candidates for the Oct. 30 federal election faced light-hearted heckling and name-calling whenever they strayed over allotted times for speeches and during later questioning.

The meeting at Camosun College, sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Committee for an Independent Canada, was to discuss foreign economic influences in Canada.

Eight candidates for the Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich ridings were at the meeting, which attracted about 70 persons.

Only candidate absent was David Groos, incumbent Liberal MP for Victoria, which left Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm holding the fort for his party against an often raucuous audience.

Groos was in Edmonton attending a Canadian Radio and Television Commission hearing.

The candidates who stuck mainly to the topic of the meeting, often engaged in amicable off-the-podium banter among themselves.

Roger Smith, New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said in his speech, "If you're shipping out raw materials, you're shipping out jobs." He mentioned a national unemployment figure of 500,000.

"The only party that has consistently followed a Canadian policy is the NDP and the party that has consistently sold out the Canadian people is the Liberal party," Smith said.

Flemming Hansen, NDP candidate for Victoria, said American companies respond to American and not Canadian needs and pointed out they do not always work within the framework of Canadian law.

The candidate said private Canadian companies should receive more assistance from the Canadian Development Corp., federal exchange account fund monies could be used "to buy back the resource industry" and there is no effective screening agency to prevent new foreign investment in Canada.

Lindholm, defended the Liberal government's past record. He acknowledged the accuracy of NDP facts and figures but said there "is no simplistic solution" to foreign economic influence in Canada.

Pointing out Canadian consternation in 1970 over the U.S. plan to offer companies tax concessions to help fight American unemployment, Lindholm said Canada would not be prepared to pay the "massive unemployment costs" of NDP proposals.

ROAD TO OTTAWA 72

"What we must do in the short run in this country is not to own all manufacturing plants in this country but achieve effective control over the resources of this country," Lindholm said.

Donald Munro, Progressive Conservative candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said, "I am unabashedly nationalistic," pointed out Canada must be an independent world partner and advocated a revival of the shipbuilding industry to export secondary industry goods abroad.

Munro said there should be regulations governing foreign acquisition of Canadian businesses and called for more incentives for Canadian-owned industries.

Allan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative candidate for Victoria said his party would require all federally-incorporated companies to have at least three Canadian directors.

After pointing out that he personally feels that a majority of directors should be Canadian, McKinnon said his party would require all foreign and Canadian private companies to make financial disclosures to ensure tax equity.

Clifford Stretch, Social Credit candidate for Victoria, who spoke against federal or provincial borrowing, said "We must never, never mortgage our country to a foreign land."

Stretch, who criticized pollution and the national debt, said that the Bank of Canada could be used to eliminate the national debt. "If the Bank of Canada can do it for foreign countries, they can do it for us," he said.

John Tisdalle, Social Credit candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, criticized both "old-line parties" for leading Canada deeper into debt.

Daniel Heffernan, Progressive Independent candidate for Victoria, said he wanted to depart from the meeting's stated topic because there are more important issues at hand.

EATING FISH:

No One Has Yet Told Canadians There's More Than One in Sea

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

(Last of three parts)

How do you tell Canadians nicely that they don't know a thing about eating fish?

And what do you do about consumers in this country who don't know they are wasting many varieties of tasty fish because the market has concentrated on salmon and salmon alone at the expense of black cod, hake, tuna, ling cod, sole and halibut?

Should you tell consumers that Russian and Japanese fishermen are hauling in "fantastic catches" of these fish just off the Canadian west coast because the B.C. fleet is only an infant outside the salmon field?

Experts Trying

Now if only the press doesn't get on to these puzzles before the experts in the federal fisheries department can find a way to break it to Canadians before it's too late.

The experts are trying to find ways to get consumers to eat fish outside the "delicacy line" which Canadians demand for their diet.

Salmon is the fish and always has been on the west coast but now a new industry is struggling for growth.

Incentives are now luring fishermen to net the black cod and other fish which have up to now often been thrown away by Canadian fishermen and scooped up with a smile by the large factory fleet operations of Russia and Japan.

Few landlubbers know that there are more Russians involved in fishing off the Canadian west coast than Canadians, says one Victoria fisherman, Dick Williams, owner of the Seabeam.

Most of the salmon market for Canadian fishermen is outside Canada and this has kept prices high for local consumers.

Wide Demand

Europeans and Britons gobble most of this country's salmon exports and love it. They demand it in fact.

And while B.C. fishermen were heading for a dismal year as coho virtually disappeared this season this demand saved them from disaster.

Fish packers in Victoria Nanaimo and Vancouver paid up to $1 a pound for coho and $1.25 for spring salmon this season, setting new records, according to many fishermen.

Poundage plummeted but the purses stayed healthy.

Need Market

And while the fishing industry might be ailing, there is a clear message being repeated and gaining momentum from fishermen — diversify.

There is no use returning from days at sea with holds bulging with black cod if there is no market back in B.C. for the fish.

So you have to teach the people to eat a wider variety of fish, the fishermen say.

Aim Changes

This season more and more boats turned from the frustration of poor salmon catches to tuna, something other large fishing nations, includng the United States, have been doing well for years. Tuna catches were the best ever.

More B.C. fishermen are also eyeing abalone, black and grey cod, halibut and lesser known varieties.

In 1971, the tuna catch was 4,011,000 pounds, a sharp rise from the 1,545,000 pounds the year before. Marketed value of the 1971 tuna catch was $1,499,000 compared with $984,000 in 1970.

Cod Figures

Grey cod catches in 1971 totalled 8,749,000 pounds and had a marketed value of $1,299,000. In 1970 only 5,018,000 pounds reached the shore for a marketed value of $752,000.

Black cod is a more recent attraction. In 1971 the black cod poundage only rose 2,000 over the 493,000 pounds the year before.

Marketed value dropped from $226,000 in 1970 to $219,000 in 1971, indicating that much of the consumer sales pitch work has still to be done.

Meanwhile, the salmon catch in 1971 was 132,367,000 pounds and drew a market value of $96,926,000. This was down 22,119,000 pounds and $2,671,000 on 1970 performance.

Halibut had the second highest market value, with the 1971 catch of 25,294,000 pounds fetching $11,367,000. But here the catch was down 4,231,000 pounds and the market value up at $779,000 over 1970.

One man considering black cod fishing is troller Carl Gark, a 26-year-old from Campbell River, who lives on board his boat the Starlet.

Switch Seen

He wants a bigger boat so he can explore the "wide open industry" outside salmon. Black cod sold at 40 cents a pound in Vancouver this season and that's far better than it has been before, he said.

The biggest problem facing the fishing industry today, according to William Pitre, of 6940 Sooke, is that Canadians don't eat fish.

Boat Sold

"A great deal of premium fish are expected as that's all Canadian consumers will eat," he said.

And Pitre, who recently sold his boat Petrel through the buy-back scheme, said Canadians had such a precise attitude toward fish that you could offer to give some types away and still wouldn't have any takers.

Another fisherman said he was puzzled over an apparent consumer fixation over red flesh fish like salmon.

He claimed that it had got so bad that some fish packers were adding an artificial red coloring to white-fleshed cod because it helped sales.

Cash Sought

Getting more Canadians to eat more varieties of fish is matched in concern by fishermen who feel the future of their industry is not being catered to with more large hatcheries for salmon and restocking of streams ruined by logging and pollution.

Many would rather see the cash put into the buy-back scheme redirected to hatcheries and restocking and some said fishermen were even willing to work on the construction of hatcheries in B.C. during the winter.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has one hatchery almost completed at Capilano, near Vancouver, and another in the works at Courtenay. Sites for three other hatcheries were being selected and one would start annually in the years 1973, 1974 and 1975.

Commercial fishermen get into a tizzy about their not too dear friends, the hordes of sports fishermen in B.C., who they say get more direct attention from federal fisheries people and also seem to be in the position to get most from hatcheries either built or planned.

Pride also comes into conversation about the future of the fishing industry. Some fishermen say it would take "moving heaven and earth" to get them out of the business.

Talk Reveals

This group see the B.C. salmon potential as the greatest in the world.

But in talking to the gritty men of an ocean that is never still, a quieter group of thinkers emerges.

These men would "move heaven and earth" to keep their sons from entering a dead-end industry. Besides, they say, it is so costly to get into the business now that few of the young men with the stamina for the trade have the cash.

And most agree the industry is already too heavily over-capitalized without more men risking their necks.

Mays
... won't quit

Age Taking Toll on Baseball Superstar

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays had his worst baseball season ever this year as he suffered from leg and back ailments, but his major enemy, one he can do nothing about, is advancing age.

Mays will be 42 next May 6, about one month after the start of the 1973 season. He says he is not ready to quit the game which has been his whole life, and it's doubtful the game is ready to quit on a legendary superstar, even one who is 42.

New York Mets acquired Mays last March for a minor league pitcher and an undisclosed amount of cash. San Francisco Giants, the team he had played with for 21 seasons, gave him up because it was going with a youth movement and Mays was expendable, especially his large pay cheques.

The Mets made a strong bid for the National League East pennant in the early months of the season, but injuries to key players forced the team down in the standings for a third-place finish.

Mays hit eight home runs and batted .250, his lowest figures since 1952 when he hit four homers and averaged .236 in only 34 games before entering the U.S. army. He began the 1972 season with a .305 lifetime batting mark.

He played outfield and first base for New York in 88 games. Manager Yogi Berra said he used Mays at times even when he had wanted to rest him, because injuries to regulars forced Mays into the lineup.

His chances of eclipsing Babe Ruth's home run record of 714 are almost non-existent. Mays has 652 career homers, but Atlanta's Henry Aaron now has a lead of over 20 homers on him.

Will Willie Mays play next season?

Two people hold the answer — Mays and Berra.

Stapleton Ponders Retirement

CHICAGO (AP) — Defenceman Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks may have played his last hockey in the recent Team Canada-Soviet series.

Stapleton, 32, told Hawk coach Billy Reay Tuesday night he would decide within the next few days whether he intends to retire and concentrate on his operation of two suburban ice skating rinks.

Stapleton, member of the Black Hawks since 1965-66, is winding up the final season of a three-year contract but money is not the issue.

"Pat was very serious in our discussion," said Reay. "He feels he is serving two masters with his ice rinks and his Black Hawk duties. He wants a few days to decide whether he can do both and which would be best for his family."

Stapleton is married and has five children.

Ladies' Day Within Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ladies' day at a race track "may be an anachronistic device" but it does not violate a man's civil rights, District Court Judge Harry Pregerson has ruled.

The judge granted a motion of dismissal from the defendants, Santa Anita Park and the Oak Tree Racing Association, in a suit brought by Donald J. Boss, a lawyer.

Boss argued that ladies' days held during the 1970 and 1971 Oak Tree meetings, which allowed women over 18 free admission, violated his right of equal protection under law.

Ali Fight Cancelled

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali will not fight Al Jones in South Africa because it "became obvious that the South African government did not want to hold it," Bob Arum, Ali's lawyer, said Wednesday.

Arum said there were problems with the dates and seating.

"Blacks would have had to have at least 50 per cent of the seats and as good as seats as whites," Arum said.

He denied that pressure from black groups in the United States forced the cancellation of the fight.

"If the arrangements had been satisfactory, we would have gone ahead," he said.

"Now it's off absolutely."

Expos Find New Site

MONTREAL (CP) — Agreement has been reached between Montreal Expos and the Daytona Beach city commission, for the National League baseball club to establish training facilities in the Florida city next spring.

General manager Jim Fanning of the Expos said the agreement was reached Wednesday for the club to use City Island Park in Daytona Beach for their major league spring training site. He said a three-year lease will be signed.

Since their establishment in 1969, the Expos had shared spring training facilities with Atlanta Braves at West Palm Beach, Fla.; while their minor league clubs trained at homestead, Fla.; 100 miles away.

Fanning said agreement is pending to have the club's minor league affiliate set up camp on airport property, adjacent to Daytona Beach Speedway.

The minor league agreement must be reached with another committee from Daytona Beach, he said.

Vikettes Good Bet To Retain Hoop Title

University of Victoria Vikettes look capable of successfully defending their Canadian senior women's basketball championship.

Vikettes, whose victory over University of British Columbia Thunderettes for the provincial, Western Canada Intercollegiate and national titles last year was considered a big upset, have five holdovers and an impressive list of newcomers this season.

Returnees to coach Mike Gallo's squad are Rose Josul, Lawrie Atkinson, Lorna McHattie, Mary Clarkson and Linda Braun. Lydia Gledhill, Vikettes' manager last season, is back with the team in a playing capacity.

Among the new faces in Gallo's lineup is Diana Brozuk, who was with two Canadian-championship teams in her four seasons as a Victoria Maplette. Miss Brozuk is in her last year of an education program at UVic.

Another valuable addition to the club is six-foot Edna Ritchie, who played for Campbell River High School Tyees last season. She is expected to get the starting assignment at centre.

June Piggott is considered a good prospect for Vikettes. She was a B.C. all-star forward last season for Salmon Arm Jewells, runners-up to Mt. Douglas in the provincial high school tournament in Terrace.

Rounding out the 12-member team are local high school graduates Cathy Auburn (Belmont), Donna Blackstock (Victoria) and Rita Clarkson (Oak Bay), a sister of Mary.

Reserves are Kathy Jones, a guard from Campbell River, and Bev Draper, a graduate of Mt. Douglas.

Vikettes' home opener in the Canada West University Athletic Association league is Nov. 17 against University of Alberta from Edmonton. Vikettes will play an exhibition game at home Nov. 11 against British Columbia Institute of Technology.

A bonus for this year's Canadian University champion is a berth in the World Student Games which will be held in Moscow.

Masters Curling Curtailed

CALGARY (CP) — The masters curling championship, held here for the last three years in January, has been cancelled for 1973 because of a heavy curling schedule in Alberta.

"We're dropping the masters just for this year," said Vic Wintoniak, with an Edmonton organization which runs the tournament.

"It was a difficult decision to make but we felt there was a chance that we wouldn't be able to guarantee a hign standard of competition . . ."

Wintoniak said that top curlers have only so much time to spare and they want to prepare for two main events in 1973.

They are the Canadian men's championship March 5-9 in Edmonton and the world competition March 20-24 in Regina.

"Everybody is booking off for these events," said Wintoniak.

Mayhew Event Friday

Vancouver Island Seniors Golf Association's final event of the season Friday, the Bob Mayhew Day tournament, has drawn 107 entries.

Terry Jackson of Nanaimo will defend the Mayhew Trophy for low net honors and Bill Thompson of Victoria, the Pacific Northwest seniors titleholder, is defending the low gross title. The tournament will start at 9 a.m. at Uplands Golf Club.

Problems Predicted for Future Hockey Series

CALGARY (CP) — More international hockey series like that between Canada and Russia will undoubtedly be played, says president Joe Kryczka of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"It's inevitable. The public will demand them."

"The sad part is I don't think the public cares how or under whose auspices. They won't be worrying about where the money goes."

The CAHA, which helped arrange the series, would like to see any profit from the games used to develop the sport.

The association is to receive $100,000 from the recent series after expenses with the remainder divided between the National Hockey League, the Players' Association and Hockey Canada.

The form that future confrontations will take might come into focus as soon as Oct. 14-15 when the CAHA meets in Toronto, Kryczka said. Discussions would be held then among the CAHA, Hockey Canada, the NHL and the Players' Association.

"Don't be surprised if Hockey Canada in its original form is dissolved right then.

"I understand government officials are having second thoughts about it. The CAHA has regarded it as a somewhat unnecessary concept and has made it clear it is willing to accept the responsibility of working toward its aims."

The rumored visit of a Russian team to New York, Boston and Chicago in February is another area for discussion, Kryczka added, but the U.S. amateur body would have to handle talks with U.S.-owned teams.

The amateur organizations are not aiming to cut the professionals of the action, he said.

"They own the best Canadian players and merit a piece of the cake. Our concern is that they don't envelop the picture and arrange their own inter-continental pro regime.

"That would be a disaster, particularly in Europe, because it wouldn't take the pros nearly so long to dilute the calibre of hockey over there.

"Of course, we haven't been doing all the spade work with view toward lining the pockets of the pro team owners."

Kryczka said the team owners are probably looking now to ease the amateurs out but that will not be simple because of good amateur relations with the Swedish and Czech federations.

With the Russians it would be a different matter.

"... The Russians are getting the message now that they may be sitting on a gold strike."

It is no secret they met with NHL officials in Moscow during the series and that they want more money for their own program, he said.

Bunny Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, was probably the only person who did not gain from the series, Kryczka said.

"The job now is to make certain international hockey doesn't fall into the wrong hands."

Red Sox Finish with Win Against Champion Tigers

Boston Red Sox scored a victory Wednesday on the closing day of the major league baseball schedule, but it was one game too late.

The Red Sox beat Detroit, 4-1, Wednesday to finish a half-game behind the Tigers in the most exciting pennant race this season, the Eastern Division of the American League.

Tigers, who clinched the title Tuesday with a 3-1 triumph over the Red Sox and were trying Wednesday to get the 20th win for Joe Coleman, were stopped by the four-hit pitching of Marty Pattin.

Shortstop Ed Brinkman of Detroit appeared briefly in the final game, enough to establish two major league records. One of only three players in the league to appear in all his team's games this season, Brinkman didn't make an error and finished with seven miscues, four fewer than the previous low set by Larry Bowa of Philadelphia and Leo Cardenas of California Angels. Brinkman also finished with a .990 fielding percentage, .0003 better than Bowa's old mark.

Both the Tigers and Red Sox finished with 70 defeats, but because of the unprecedented players' strike at the start of the season which scrambled the schedule, Detroit played one more game than the Red Sox, and won it.

Other highlights:

● Claude Osteen got his 20th win just in time, hurling Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-1 decision over Atlanta Braves. Osteen scattered eight hits and catcher Steve Yeager ripped two home runs, driving in three runs. The Dodgers, despite Houston Astros' loss to Cincinnati Reds, finished in third place, one percentage point behind the Astros.

● San Francisco Giants finished their poorest season since 1957 on a happy note, downing San Diego Padres, 6-4. Bobby Bonds' 26th home run, a three-run shot in the eighth inning brought the Giants from behind.

● New York Mets scored all three of their runs in the sixth inning on one hit — Jim Beauchamp's two-run homer — to beat Montreal Expos, 3-1. A crowd of 18,142 was on hand at Jarry Park, giving Expos 1,142,145 fans over the season.

Late Goal Wins Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rod Dyck's goal at 4:13 of a sudden-death overtime period gave Vancouver a 7-6 victory over Bellingham Blazers Wednesday night in a British Columbia Junior Hockey League game.

It was the second straight win of the just-started season for Vancouver, and it was the second straight setback for the Blazers.

Dale Costanzo led the Vancouver attack with his second three-goal performance in two games. Sandy Bain, Alex Tidley, Steve Clippingdale and Dyck rounded out the Vancouver scoring.

Dave Robinson, Larry Davies, Gary Criss, John Stone, Mark Arnett and Wyn Wynosky scored for Bellingham.

Eight Victorians Named to Squad

B.C. Reps To Play All Blacks

Eight Victoria players were named Wednesday night to the 23-man squad from which the B.C. rugby team to play the New Zealand All Blacks, Oct. 19, will be selected.

The All Blacks play B.C. at 4 p.m. at Vancouver's Brockton Oval on their way to Europe and a tour of Britain and France. The New Zealanders' only other game in North America will be in New York.

Two New Zealand-born players, scrum-half Bruce Howe of Oak Bay Wanderers and winger Dave Leonard of James Bay Athletic Association, are among the Victoria players in the squad.

Other Victorians selected are forwards Gaither Zinkan and Rod Hindson of the University of Victoria, forward Ken Wilke and centre Alan Rees of Castaways, standoff-half Tim Cummings of Oak Bay and centre Stu Barber of James Bay.

UBC REPRESENTED

Nine members of the strong University of British Columbia team are included in Vancouver's 15 players but Don Burgess, Victoria Rugby Union president and one of three selectors, said Wednesday, choice of fullback had been a problem.

Veteran B.C. fullback, Barrie Burnham of Vancouver, is still recovering after being injured in a boat accident, Cliff Yorath, Castaways' big kicker, has returned to Wales and Jim Wenman of UVic is injured.

Selectors will go with Barry Legh of UBC, normally a centre, in the fullback berth and the other Thunderbirds in the squad are Steve Owen, Ken Harravil, Garth Hendrickson, Bruce McAvity, Andy Hillier, Spence McTavish, Eric Lillie and Don Born.

Rounding out the squad are Gary Fumaro, Fred Sturrock, Ron Morita and Ted Bain, all of Meralomas, Rick Johnson of Ex-Brits and Paul Templeton of Trojans.

B.C. will play a Victoria XI at 2:30 p.m. Monday at Macdonald Park and following that, the starting lineup to meet the All Blacks, plus four reserves, will be named.

Argo Quarterback Charges Eskimos

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Theismann said Wednesday he heard Edmonton Eskimos were under instructions last Saturday to work on his once-broken ankle.

The Toronto Argonaut quarterback got into the game in the second quarter and aroused the Eastern Conference club to its best offensive performance of the year.

Theismann, however, re-injured the ankle in the third quarter when tackled by Edmonton's defensive end Tom Gay and the Eskimos hung on for a 31-30 victory in Canadian Football League interlocking action.

Theismann, who got into a game for the first time since breaking his ankle in the Argos' season opener against Montreal Alouettes, told the luncheon: "I found out later they, Edmonton were under instructions, if they had a good shot at the leg, to give it a little twist."

The Toronto quarterback would not elaborate later on his talk to the Playback Club, a discussion group with fans, how he found out about the plot and who had issued the instructions.

"I'm not going to say how or why or anything. I just know that's the way it is."

Edmonton head coach Ray Jauch denied the charge in a telephone interview from Edmonton.

"I think Theismann is a high-class young man, but where he would get an assumption like that is beyond me. It's unfortunate that he was injured in the first place .... I'll tell you the truth, I don't even know what ankle it was that was hurt."

Henderson Rejects PM

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada hockey star Paul Henderson has turned down an invitation to campaign this weekend with Prime Minister Trudeau in the Oakville area.

Nora Henderson said her husband's decision had nothing to do with the opening home game of Toronto Maple Leafs against Chicago Black Hawks Saturday night.

"It's just that we've had enough excitement to last us for a long while," she said.

Mrs. Henderson said she and her husband are not attached to any political party.

Timbermen Topple JBAA Mustangs

Cowichan Timbermen scored two first-half touchdowns and held on for a 14-7 victory over James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday night.

The win lifted Cowichan out of a deadlock with James Bay in the basement of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

Defence-end Milt McCool and quarterback Rick Roberts got the touchdowns and Mike Jones kicked two converts as the Timbermen grabbed a 14-0 half-time lead.

Mustangs got back into the game in the second half, when fullback Steve Hunter scored a touchdown and Bill Galego added the convert.

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts

Next game: Sunday, Oak Bay vs. Hornets, Glanford Park.

Lions Juggle Offence Line

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference released offensive guard Layne McDowell Wednesday and replaced him on the roster with Lynn Larson.

McDowell, 24, came to the Lions from the New England Patriots and played three games.

Larson, a 255-pound 23-year-old, came to the Lions on a five-day trial from the Baltimore Colts. He'll see his first action Sunday in Regina when the Lions put their one-game winning streak on the line against the Roughriders.

Thetis Lake Run Most Informal

There's no entry fee and there are no awards.

In fact, you don't even have to enter — just show up and run.

That's just how informal the Thanksgiving Day cross-country meet being organized by Invictus at Thetis Lake Park Monday is.

Invictus chairman Ron Bowker explained Wednesday that the object of the run is to provide a competitive opportunity for the rapidly increasing number of serious cross-country athletes in Victoria as well as provide "recreation for the not so serious."

"We encourage anyone, regardless of age and ability, individuals and teams from other sports, to come and enjoy a run in the most unspoiled natural environment near the city," Bowker said.

There will be four separate runs — for 13-and-under, 17-and-under, open and recreational — in the meet, which starts at 2 p.m. Distances will range from one and-a-half miles to four miles.

Kings Snap Winless Streak

Los Angeles Kings broke into the win column Wednesday night at the expense of Vancouver Canucks.

Kings, winless in four previous National Hockey League exhibitions, downed Canucks, 4-1, before 15,570 fans at Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver in one of six games involving NHL clubs.

Butch Goring and Bob Berry got Kings off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period and Gilles Marotte made it 3-0 early in the second period.

Jocelyn Guevremont ended Rogatien Vachon's shutout attempt at 13:08 of the second period but the stocky goalkeepr was unbeatable after that, making good saves on Gerry O'Flaherty, Orland Kurtenbach and Don Lever in the final period.

Mike Corrigan, a former Canuck; finished the scoring by shovelling in a pass from Juah Widing.

Kings, who had a three-week training camp at Victoria's Memorial Arena, finish their pre-season schedule tonight in San Diego against the Gulls of the Western Hockey League and open their season in Pittsburgh on Saturday against the Penguins.

Jacques Lemaire's goal, 26 seconds from time, gave Montreal Canadiens a 5-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs before 6011 spectators at the Montreal Forum.

Serge Savard, Peter Mahovlich, Yvan Cournoyer and Guy Lafleur were the other Montreal scorers. Dave Ken scored twice and Dennis Dupere and Danny Osburn once each for Maple Leafs, who led, 4-3, entering the third period.

A power-play goal by Walt Tkaczuk with less than five minutes left lifted New York Rangers to a 3-3 tie with the Bruins in Boston. Jean Ratelle and Brad Park got the other Ranger goals while Fred Stanfield Garnet Bailey and Terry O'Reilly replied for the Bruins.

Lowell MacDonald scored his fourth and fifth goals of the exhibition season in Pittsburgh Penguins' 4-2 win over Chicago Black Hawks MacDonald, working at left wing for the first time in his NHL career, scored his goals in the second period after Al McDonough got the Penguins even at 2-2. Ron Schock opened the scoring for Pittsburgh. Chico Maki and Jerry Korab fired the Chicago goals.

Minnesota North Stars trimmed St. Louis Blues, 4-1, in a game at St. Louis. Jude Drouin, Charlie Burns, Buster Harvey and Dennis Hextall scored for North Stars after Mike Murphy gave the Blues a 1-0 lead.

Atlanta Flames needed a come-from-behind effort to down Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, 4-3. Goals by Jacques Richard and Noel Price, 42 seconds apart late in the final period, pulled out the triumph.

Pechet For To

Coach Mitch Pechet of the Victoria Cougars has set his lineup for the Western Canada Junior Hockey League season-opener at New Westminster tonight.

Pechet will start Sam Clegg in goal against the Bruins with 15-year-old Dan Rogers serving as backup. Clegg came to the Cougars this week from Saskatoon Blades, filling a gap created when Ron Bourcier, expected to be the club's first-string goalkeeper, was suspended for a curfew violation during training camp.

Tonight's game between Victoria and New Westminster will be broadcast on radio station CIVI (900) starting at 8:30.

Murray Worley, one of three holdovers from last season, is paired on defence with Rick Williams. Blake Robinson, also in his second season with the Cougars, will partner Kim Clackson and Cal Kitching and Peter Lemon will form the third defensive pairing.

Victoria For Volle

Victoria won four straight games Wednesday night to pull into a first-place tie with Mt. Douglas in the Victoria Senior High School Boys' Volleyball League.

Playing in its own gym, the Victoria team crushed Mount View, 15-5, 15-3, while at Belmont, Mt. Doug dropped its first game, 12-15, to Claremont before recovering to beat Claremont, 15-9, in the second game and then down Belmont, 15-10, 15-3.

In other games at Belmont, the host school beat Oak Bay, 15-13, 15-5, and Claremont downed Oak Bay, 18-16, 15-3. In the other game at Vic High, Reynolds split with Mount View, 16-14, 10-15.

In the "A" Division of the Senior Girls' League, Reynolds swept all four games to move into a first-place tie with Belmont, which lost one game.

At the Reynolds gym, the host school struck top form to trounce St. Ann's, 15-0, 15-0, and then defeated Victoria, 15-7, 15-5. Victoria also beat St. Ann's in two straight games.

Signings Steal Spotlight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Team managers took the spotlight Wednesday as baseball's major leagues wrapped up the 1972 regular schedule.

Billy Martin of Detroit Tigers, Eddie Kasko of Boston Red Sox, Frank Quilici of Minesota Twins and Ken Aspromonte of Cleveland Indians were all rehired by their American League clubs.

The clubs announced that Martin and Quilici signed on for another year, Kasko for two years and Aspromonte put his name to a "multi-year" contract.

Martin's agreement with the American League East Division champions was an apparent change of mind.

He had said Tuesday night, after the Tigers clinched the divisional title by beating Boston 3-1, that he had already refused such an offeer.

When Martin joined the Tigers two years ago, he was by President Calvin Griffith. given a two-year contract. After the 1971 season, it was extended through the 1973 season. This is the second one-year extension of his contract, reported to be in the $65,000-a-year range.

The Tigers also said they rehired coaches Dick Tracewski, Joe Schultz, Art Fowler and Charlie Silvera for the 1973 season.

Kasko, considered on the way out just two months ago, before the Red Sox made their dramatic climb into the American League East championship race, received an estimated $10,000 increase to $60,000.

"I'm very pleased with the job he's doing," said general manager Dick O'Connell at a news conference.

All the Red Sox coaches were also rehired.

The rehiring of Quilici ended several weeks of speculation on whether the former infielder who took the reins in mid-season would be retained

Quilici was named to manage the club July 6, the day that Griffith fired Bill Rigney. The Twins were 36-34 under Rigney and 41-43 under Quilici.

Aspromonte's salary was not announced. The club said only that he had signed a multi-year contract.

Indians coaches Joe Lutz and Warren Spahn were rehired, but coach Bobby Hoffman "will not be returning," the club said, without giving any reasons.

Wednesday's rehirings followed the dismissal Tuesday of Bob Lemon as manager of Kansas City Royals. Jack McKeon, manager of the club's Omaha farm team, was announced as Lemon's replacement.

Pechet Names Players For Tonight's Opener

Coach Mitch Pechet of the Victoria Cougars has set his lineup for the Western Canada Junior Hockey League season-opener at New Westminster tonight.

Pechet will start Sam Clegg in goal against the Bruins with 15-year-old Dan Rogers serving as backup. Clegg came to the Cougars this week from Saskatoon Blades, filling a gap created when Ron Bourcier, expected to be the club's first-string goalkeeper, was suspended for a curfew violation during training camp.

Tonight's game between Victoria and New Westminster will be broadcast on radio station CJVI (900) starting at 8:30.

Murray Worley, one of three holdovers from last season, is paired on defence with Rick Williams. Blake Robinson, also in his second season with the Cougars, will partner Kim Clackson and Cal Kitching and Peter Lemon will form the third defensive pairing.

The Cougars will face a club tonight which is minus 10 of last season's players, including Lorne Henning, Bernie Lukowich, Alex Kogler, Ken Ireland, Don Martineau and Les Jackson. Together, the six represented 200 goals during the regular schedule.

Back, however, is goalkeeper Terry Richardson, who finished second only to Calgary's John Davidson in goals-against average among regular goaltenders.

Added to the Bruin lineup this season is Wayne Dye, a 50-goal scorer for Vernon last season in the British Columbia Junior league.

Vancouver Nats open their season tonight in Medicine Hat against the Tigers.

NO OVERTIME

The league has adopted a no-overtime format this season and, judging from last season's results, that should help the Cougars immensely. Victoria collected two points — from two ties — in nine games that were decided in overtime.

Pechet's club open their home season Saturday against the Centennials from Calgary. Game time at Memorial Arena is 8:30 p.m.

Maplettes a Team of Past?

Victoria Maplettes, who gave the city a Canadian senior women's basketball title in their three-year history, are in danger of folding.

Moe Turner, who coached the Maplettes the last two seasons and won the national title in his frst year, is going to concentrate his efforts this season on the Victoria First United Saints club which captured the Canadian juvenile girls' title in Victoria last spring.

"I told the kids at the end of last season that I didn't want to coach them again this year," Turner said. "There just aren't enough good players around. It's as simple as that."

The history of the team includes three national titles in the last five seasons. They won the title as Victoria Rawlings in 1967-68 and 1968-69. University of British Columbia Thunderettes took the crown in 1969-70 and last year's winner was University of Victoria Vikettes.

Turner cited the fact that at least three players from last season's club are not expected back. Lawrie Sawden has moved from Victoria to teach in Nanaimo; Barb Tribe, who suffered a knee injury last season is still having problems with the injury and Angie Radanovich of Nanaimo doesn't plan to play this season.

However, Mary Coutts, rated as the top women basketball player in Canada before she retired last season, disagrees with Turner.

"There are still people around who can play," said Mrs. Coutts, who plans a return to playing in a senior 'B' league this season. "I have time to play but no time to coach, sponsor and organize it. If someone wants to organize it and get it working . . ."

Victoria High Tied For Volleyball Lead

Victoria won four straight games Wednesday night to pull into a first-place tie with Mt. Douglas in the Victoria Senior High School Boys' Volleyball League.

Playing in its own gym, the Victoria team crushed Mount View, 15-5, 15-3, while at Belmont, Mt. Doug dropped its first game, 12-15, to Claremont before recovering to beat Claremont, 15-9, in the second game and then down Belmont, 15-10, 15-3.

In other games at Belmont, the host school beat Oak Bay, 15-13, 15-5, and Claremont downed Oak Bay, 18-16, 15-3. In the other game at Vic High, Reynolds split with Mount View, 16-14, 10-15.

In the "A" Division of the Senior Girls' League, Reynolds swept all four games to move into a first-place tie with Belmont, which lost one game.

At the Reynolds gym, the host school struck top form to trounce St. Ann's, 15-0, 15-0, and then defeated Victoria, 15-7, 15-5. Victoria also beat St. Ann's in two straight games.

At Esquimalt, Belmont beat Claremont easily, 15-8, 15-0, but split, 6-15, 15-12, with the host school to force a tie at the top. Esquimalt beat Claremont, 15-5, 15-9, in the other encounter.

And at Mt. Douglas, the home team won, 15-9, 15-9, over Mount View and split, 15-7, 16-18, with Oak Bay. Mount View and Oak Bay also split, 15-4, 4-15.

White, Love Taboo In Pro Tennis League

NEW YORK (AP) — "White is out and love is a forbidden word," a group of Pittsburgh executives said Wednesday in announcing the formation of a National Tennis League patterned after the big pro circuits in baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

"We are shooting to make this a major league operation," Charles Reichblu, owner of Century Features, Inc., a national news service, told a news conference.

"We hope to draw upon the fantastic growth and escalating popularity of this sport."

Reichblum is president of the new league, with headquarters in Pittsburgh. Bill Sutton, a Pittsburgh lawyer, is secretary and John Hillman III, a Pittsburgh industrialist, is treasurer.

CANADA IN CIRCUIT?

Reichblum said he was unable to release any specifics on the new circuit but stated that there were 32 cities under consideration for franchises, including Toronto and Montreal, and four cities on the verge of coming into the league—Pittsburgh, Miami, Houston and Los Angeles.

"We are incorporated in Wilmington, Del., for $1 million," he said. "A franchise will not cost millions, as in baseball and football. The price is $250,000.

"The overhead will be quite modest. It is our hope to use the big city indoor arenas, which largely are dark during the summer, and outside facilities as available and practicable."

MAY-AUGUST MEETS

Reichblum said the purpose is to promote team competition among major cities utilizing top tennis talent and principal arenas. Plans are to start play May 4, 1973, continuing through August.

In addition to bringing a new dimension to a sport that has been largely individual in nature, the Pittsburgh news executive said plans are to give the game a more modern look.

"We will stress colorful balls and uniforms," Reichblum added. "The traditional white not only will be discouraged, it will be banned. We also aim to get away from the Victorian scoring which has been a major drawback to the game's popularity.

"We will play 21-point games, as in ping pong. There will be no deuces and ads. Love is out and excitement is in."

Marshall Top Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — Relief pitcher Mike Marshall has been voted Montreal Expos Player-of-the-Year.

Marshall, who finished with a 14-8 won-lost record, was unanimous selection in the vote by five travelling writers for the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He receives a new Cadillac.

Veteran goalkeeper Denis DeJordy, above, was traded to Detroit Red Wings, Wednesday, by New York Islanders, a new team in the National Hockey League this season. Islanders obtained defenceman Arnie Brown, a seven-year NHL player, and young goalkeeper Gerry Gray.

New Conditioning Program Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada must change the approach to training programs to compete successfully in international hockey, says a team of University of Ottawa physical fitness experts.

Assistant Prof. Maurice Jette, head of a six-man research team on hockey in Canada, told a news conference this week the recent Canada-Russia series has proven "beyond a doubt" that the conditioning of National Hockey League players is far from satisfactory.

"It is impossible to adequately condition a hockey player in a mere 21 days so that he can resist to the stress and strain of professional hockey," he said.

"It is obvious that what our players need is a year-round training program." How this might be done was another question.

Hal C. Hansen, a member of the research team that visited NHL training camps this year, said only two NHL teams have shown interest in year-round training.

He said a scientific approach to hockey is needed and the Canada-Russia series has shown "that if you are in condition, patterns of play and systems that are innovative can easily be performed."

Victorians To Play For B.C.

Seven Victorians are members of the British Columbia team which will take part in the Candian women's field hockey tournament starting this weekend in Montreal.

Jenny John the squad's captain, Jill Boyd, Gill Hawkins, Caroline Penn, Diane Whittingham, Shelley Winter and team-manager Gill Quiney are the Victorians taking part in the eight-team event which gets under way Saturday.

Other players on the club are Joyce Harris, Judy Sewell, Sue Rich, Anna Marchand, Olive Gilmour, Barb Lockyer and Jackie Price, all from Vancouver, and the team is coached by Eric Broom of Vancouver.

Defending-champion Alberta, Ontario, Nova Scotia and Manitoba are drawn in Section "A" for the preliminary round-robin play while B.C., runners-up last year, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec are grouped in Section "B".

The top two clubs in each section will advance to the semi-finals and the final will be played Monday. Selection of the Canadian national team will be made after the tournament.

Swim Coaches Oppose Reduction of Program

MONTREAL (CP) — The American Swimming Coaches Association has voted unanimously to oppose any move by the International Olympic Committee to reduce the number of aquatic events and contestants for any future Games.

More than 600 coaches from the 1300-member associations representing 27 nations were attending the second world swimming clinic here.

The IOC currently is pondering a move to reduce the number of swimming events and contestants, but still has not voted on the question.

The association's resolution said that it would be better to withdraw swimming from the Olympic program and to conduct their own aquatic Olympics, than see the present program reduced almost 40 per cent.

In making the protest to the IOC and to the International Swimming Federation FINA, the association noted that only in the events won by Mark Spitz of the United States, Shane Gould of Australia, Roland Mathes of East Germany, Gunner Larsson of Sweden, and Melissa Belote of the U.S. were there repeat medal winners.

Spitz won seven gold medals at the recent Munich Olympics, while Miss Gould won three gold, one silver and a bronze.

"Eliminating eight events from the Games would effectively dilute a world swimming program to the status of a second-class athletic event," the resolution stated.

Bob Ousley of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., president of ASCA, said Spitz, Miss Gould and Mathes are "super athletes who come once in a lifetime."

"Their dominance in the sport parallels the skills of the great Jesse Owens and others who also were superior in their events during previous Olympics," Ousley said.

Ousley said the proposed "decimated program robs the spectators of Olympic glamor" produced by existing aquatic competitions.

"It (the reduction) would make the Olympic swimming pool a financial hazard to the host country," he added.

Montreal Visit On Killanin Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the organizing committee of the 1976 Summer Olympics said Wednesday that Lord Killanin, newly elected president of the International Olympic Committee, will visit Montreal later this month to discuss the 1976 games.

The spokesman said no definite date for the visit has been set, adding that the date would depend on the IOC president's travel plans. He said that the Montreal committee has a heavy agenda to discuss with Lord Killanin, but could give no details.

The IOC president currently is in Bulgaria and is expected to visit IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland, before his North American visit, He will attend a testimonial to outgoing president Avery Brundage of Chicago in San Francisco. Oct. 21.

The spokesman said the IOC president will report to the IOC executive in November the results of his Montreal visit.

Best Back In Favor

BELFAST (AP) — George Best, tempestuous soccer star who failed to show up for an international game in the spring, was forgiven Wednesday and chosen for a World Cup qualifying game.

The Manchester United forward was named among 18 players for Northern Ireland's match against Bulgaria in Sofia Oct. 18.

Last May, Best flew to Spain instead of joining the Northern Irish team for an international game in Belfast. In Spain he announced he was quitting soccer. But later he returned to Manchester, was fined two weeks' salary and turned out for United at the start of the current season.

Olympic Lottery Under Discussion

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government is studying the possibility of a Canada-wide lottery to help finance the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal and train Canadian athletes, says Finance Minister Raymond Garneau.

Mr. Garneau said negotiations are under way between the Ontario and Quebec governments to arrange a system of sharing the profits of the proposed lottery.

When a suitable formula is worked out other provinces will be approached, the minister said Tuesday.

The Quebec lotteries and racetrack board would administer the lottery, which would be called Loto-Olympics.

A decision was expected by the end of the year on whether to go ahead with the lottery which would have one draw a year beginning in 1973.

Officer Killed In Base Attack

BANGKOK (Reuter)—Guerrillas attacked the United States air base at Udon Tuesday. Government sources said that one Thai security officer was killed and three American and two Thai security guards were wounded.

Send the FTD Thanksgiver™

There couldn't be a more perfect time to thank someone you love than at Thanksgiving.

And that's what the FTD Thanksgiver is all about. It says, "Thanks for being my mother or father." "Thanks for being my friend." "Thanks for being nice." "Thanks for memories we shared before you went away."

And it says it sincerely and beautifully with flowers. Lovely fall flowers elegantly arranged with golden wheat and slender cattails.

Sending a Thanksgiver almost anywhere is as easy as a call or visit to your FTD Florist (Most FTD Florists accept major credit cards).

Do it. And start a new tradition. It'll keep you close to friends and loved ones, no matter how far away. When you think about it, we all have a lot of thanking to do.

Usually available for less than $10.00*

Neil Diamond Music One of a Kind

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He will step into the spotlight Thursday night, standing where Al Jolson once stood alone, and he'll sing songs so unique he can describe them only as "Neil Diamond music."

To millions of fans the description is magic. Diamond compositions — Sweet Caroline, I Am, I Said, Stones, Dome Too Soon, Song Sung Blue, Porcupine Pie and more — have kept him perched at the top of music charts for three years.

The scheduled one-man show at Broadway's Winter Garden Theatre in New York is nearly sold out. And it comes just after a triumphant stand at Hollywood's Outdoor Greek Theatre where fans hung from treetops to get a glimpse of the 30-year-old superstar.

The Schubert Organization, which is bringing Diamond to Broadway, calls him "an American original" and says it's the first time since Jolson that a pop song star has been showcased alone on Broadway. Jolson appeared at the same theatre in the 1920s and 1930s.

There will be 20 Diamond performances through Oct. 21, and one show will be beamed by satellite to Europe and Iron Curtain countries.

Diamond, a native of Brooklyn, now lives in Los Angeles with his wife and small son.

"I went through seven years of total failure," he recalls in an interview. "My average income was $300 per year.

"But it was exciting. I was learning that there was a way in which I could express myself."

His seven years of failure were spent in New York, composing songs on a $30 piano and peddling them to publishers who didn't buy.

Finally, the first breakthrough came. A songwriting-record production team spotted him and offered him his first recording contract. The record, Cherry Cherry backed with Solitary Man, attracted immediate attention. Success had arrived.

Her Specialty

AUSTIN, Tex (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair says she will appear on the Johnny Carson show next week to respond to evangelist Billy Graham's claim that Mrs. O'Hair sent Graham a letter filled with four-letter words.

Last week she called Graham an "out-and-out liar" and demanded rebuttal time on the Carson show. She said Wednesday a spokesman from the show had invited her to be in California to tape the show Oct. 11, and it will be shown the next day.

The atheist leader said she had to join the actor's guild in order to get paid for her television appearances, and had to bill herself as a "specialty act" to belong to the guild.

"So I'm going to put my specialty act on for Johnny Carson," she said. "I have chosen to talk on obscenity, and I intend to answer Billy Graham at that time."

Concert Attack Feared

Audience Asked For Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusual appeal for audience participation in security was made at the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra's concert at the Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts.

With security precautions already at a high level because of the terrorist murders of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic Games, it was decided to insert a request in the programs handed to concert-goers. It read in part:

"If you notice anything unusual by way of a box or a package, or in the behavior of any member of the audience, please raise your hand high as a signal to a security guard who will be stationed nearby."

Elaborate measures have been taken to protect the musicians against possible attacks by Arab terrorists.

Conductor Zubin Mehta has been guarded by security men for a month.

The concert at the Kennedy Centre marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of the nation of Israel.

Among public figures who accepted invitations were Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and his wife; state Secretary William P. Rogers and his wife; and Henry A. Kissinger, national security adviser to President Nixon.

French View

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Film Board of Canada is producing a series of 13 films of French Canada "to show Quebec just like it is and not just give an explanation of French Canada to English Canada," says Ian McLaren, executive producer of the series entitled Adieu Alouette. The title, says McLaren, is meant to suggest a farewell to the old stereotype image of Quebec society. The series will be seen on CBC television early in 1973.

Scientists Advise U.S.:

Shift Into Low Gear

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientific group, reporting under government contract, urged Wednesday that the United States begin limiting its population and its consumption of resources.

It said the United States, already heavily dependent on foreign raw materials, must shift its industrial base to materials domestically plentiful, or face a disastrous minerals crisis within decades.

The group needled its employer, the national commission on materials policy, accusing it of ignoring the demand factor in the growing supply-demand crisis in energy and raw materials.

The group, drawn from the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences, said, "It is clear that the difficulties imposed by growing U.S. and world populations pervade all other resource issues. . . ."

It said "there can be no effective national or international materials policy" that evades the relationship between population, per-capita demand and environmental impact.

Thus, in milder terms, the U.S. scientific group aligned itself with the general thrust of the Club of Rome report and British scientists' Blueprint for Survival, both published last January.

The Club of Rome, a group of international scientists and economists, predicted the collapse of modern industrial society, perhaps within a century, unless population growth and material consumption are stabilized within the next few decades.

The U.S. national commission on materials policy was appointed with the mission of recommending a national materials policy to the president and Congress by June 30, 1973.

The commission said, "There was but small support in the group for the view that market forces alone will solve the foreseeable problems."

It said appropriate governmental incentives and controls should be applied to increase production to meet the needs of unavoidable population growth, but at the same time convert the economy in the long run to a no-growth stability.

Piping Powder Triggers Blast

HIGH SPIRE, Pa. (AP) — An explosion rocked an industrial paint shop Tuesday afternoon, injuring six persons and causing damage estimated by a plant fooreman at $1 million. The blast ignited flames which burned out of control for two hours. The blast struck the Midwestern Coating Corp., officials said. Powder used to coat pipe triggered the explosion, an official said.

Shipyard Blast Kills Two

PASCAGOULA Miss. (UPI) — An explosion and fire ripped a commercial ship under construction in the Pascagoula River at Ingalls shipyards late Tuesday night, killing at least two persons and injuring three others.

Fishing in the Sooke-Becher Bay-Beechey Head waters right along to the Victoria waterfront continues to be good.

Mostly coho are being taken in the 12-15 pound range with a few spring (chinook) ranging up to 20-pounds. A 27-pound winter spring was caught and a few boats have limited out.

Bert Levings, 3000 Austin Avenue, hooked into an unusual coho on Tuesday, near Bedford Island. After landing he discovered that the fish had two mouths. He reported that the fish fought well and was in a healthy condition. The Coho had two sets of teeth with the upper mouth closed and the lower mouth in a gaping position.

One Mouth Too Many Unusual Coho Catch

Fishing in the Sooke-Becher Bay-Beechey Head waters right along to the Victoria waterfront continues to be good.

Mostly coho are being taken in the 12-15 pound range with a few spring (chinook) ranging up to 30-pounds. A 37-pound winter spring was caught and a few boats have limited out.

Bert Levings, 3000 Austin Avenue, hooked into an unusual coho on Tuesday, near Bedford Island. After landing he discovered that the fish had two mouths. He reported that the fish fought well and was in a healthy condition. The Coho had two sets of teeth with the upper mouth closed and the lower mouth in a gaping position.

RCMP Bonds, Weapons Found

TORONTO (UPI) — Police said Wednesday they have recovered some $400,000 in stolen securities plus a stack of controversial RCMP documents said to contain names of paid drug informers in Ontario.

The securities and documents, in addition to RCMP weapons, were recovered Tuesday afternoon when an anonymous telephone caller told police to investigate a white car parked on a downtown street.

In the car police found Stanley Herbert Norman, 28, and some $150,000 in stolen bonds. Norman was arrested and charged with breaking and entering and possession of stolen property.

Police said further investigations led to Omemee, Ont., just west of Peterborough, where Norman had a camper trailer parked on property owned by his father.

In the trailer police found an additional $250,000 in stolen securities. Also found was a strong box containing a stack of documents, six revolvers and $7,000 in Candian Savings Bonds. The strong box was stolen in May 1971 from the Long Sault, Ont., detachment of RCMP, police said.

Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario Legislature, said the documents contained the names of paid drug informers used by RCMP in Ontario.

He said the documents showed RCMP uses high school and even public school-aged children as informers.

Shulman received widespread publicity last year when he acted as an intermediary between thieves who had the documents and police. The thieves were trying to ransom documents but did not succeed, Shulman said.

At that time Shulman accused RCMP of using underage informers. One of the youngsters allegedly named in RCMP documents came forward and identified himself.

Cheers In Order

Formal opening of handsome new building for Victoria Press Ltd. was held Wednesday, attended by municipal leaders and major figures of Canadian publishing. Above, coffee toast is proposed among Richard Bower, publisher of The Daily Colonist; J. C. Melville, general manager of VPL; R. S. Malone, president of FP Publications and publisher of Winnipeg Free Press, and Howard Webster, of Montreal, chairman of the board of FP.

Pluck of the Irish Pays Off Stylishly

Dr. J. F. Shields, ambassador of Ireland to Canada came from Ottawa and J. T. Garvey, director general, Irish Export Board, flew from Dublin, accompanied by their wives, for the opening of Pride of Ireland week here.

The board, Eaton's and Air Canada have worked together to make this an outstanding promotion.

The ambassador cut the ribbon in Eaton's on Wednesday morning declaring the event opened.

Later there was a luncheon at The Empress for the 24 members of the official party and Wednesday evening, before the fashion show at the Empress Hotel, Reg Hind, manager of Eaton's here and Mrs. Hind gave a dinner party at the Union Club.

This morning the Ambassador and Mrs. Shields will tour the University of Victoria and later call on Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson at Government House.

John Carey, Irish trade representative and manager for Canada, Irish Export Board, gave a reception at the Empress on the evening before the opening and a reception followed the fashion show at the Empress.

Also here for the opening were E. Popitt, western merchandise agent for Eaton's and Mrs. Popitt from Winnipeg, R. C. Kerr, Eaton's manager, and Mrs. Kerr from Edmonton and D. J. Hudson, vice-president of Eaton's B.C. stores and Mrs. Hudson from Vancouver.

The Waterford crystal display in Eaton's china department in the home furnishings building is magnificent and, of course, the Book of Kells is alone worth a trip into the store.

Also in the china department there is a display of Arklow pottery and other Irish features. The Abbey Theatre comes to life in the small dining room where Irish travel films are shown at 11 a.m. and again at 2 p.m.

Until Saturday, the Sons of Erin are singing in the store. The rest of the displays will be on the rest of this week and all of next.

Mary Rawnsley, special events and fashion co-ordinator for Eaton's, arranged the fashion show and was also commentator.

Kip Wallis, Penny Moyse, Betty Forgie, Nancy Newton, Flo Walther, Trudy Skillings, Gillian Regher, Maud Parks and lone man, Malcolm Anderson, modelled the beautiful Irish clothes. The ramp was draped in green and ended with a large shamrock. Bowls of white carnations and daisies decorated the stage.

The Ambassadors played the background music while the fashions were being shown and Jock Dunbar, turning Irish for the evening, sang several numbers and during the final showing of couturier gowns sang Jean.

A long straight yellow gold mohair skirt topped with a deep fringed, large matching stole and a blue, green long trumpet or tulip styled mohair skirt with matching stole were the show openers.

An outstanding outfit was a long dress, the bodice and skirt frill in black, the main part of the soft wool skirt in a fuchsia and black weave topped with a dramatic black wool cape lined and collarded in fuchsia satin.

One plaid outfit had both matching short and long capes and an off-white cotton open knit pantsuit was stunning. The couturier gowns ending the show were breathtakingly beautiful.

A model of blue gray silk moire could almost be styled as Elizabethean and was definitely in the romantic class. Another of deep gray silk velvet had a deep yoke heavily beaded back and front.

The couturier gowns were designed by Jorgensen of Dublin who is a big name in the fashion world. The House of Jorgensen is one of the seven designers whose clothes are in the international room at Harrods in London.

I. B. Jorgensen was born in Jutland, Denmark in 1935 and moved with his family from their farm in Denmark to a farm in Ireland in 1949. His first ambition was to be an architect but he changed to dress designing.

He was chief designer for a Dublin fashion house for three years and in 1956 set up the House of Jorgensen in a fine old Georgian house on Fitzwilliam Street in Dublin.

Mixed Crews Forecast

Sex Will Take Space Fling

Colonist-Gemini Services

Will sex soon become one of the experiences of travelling in space? Current plans for long-duration missions in space 'houses' around the earth suggest that it may be so.

And statements by top National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials indicate that the first American space woman may be selected before very long.

Early in 1973, the United States plans to launch the first of its earth-circling Skylab space stations. This will have a volume of over 10,000 cubic feet, the size, if not the shape, of a three-bedroomed house.

An all-male crew of three, including scientists, will spend several months at a time inside Skylab, making observations of the earth, sky, and each other's reactions to weightlessness.

This will be followed in the late 1970s by a much larger station, designed for a crew of 12. There will be much greater flexibility in choice of crew for this project. Almost certainly, it will see flights by women astronauts.

Former NASA administrator Dr. Thomas O. Paine once said: "In the future we will want to have both men and women from many nations working in our space stations."

From a purely biological point of view, female astronauts would add to our knowledge of prolonged weightlessness on the human body. But in the case of long, and perhaps uneventful, voyages to planets such as Mars, a little female company may go a long way towards making life more pleasant.

"The lack of normal sex relationships could cause a significant build up of tension during missions lasting a year or more," said NASA space medicine expert Dr. Charles Berry at a recent conference in Nice. He feels that such tensions could prevent the crew from working together successfully, and possibly wreck the mission.

"For missions such as the Mars type, mixed crews must be seriously considered," added Berry.

But would the astronauts — or even the general public — resent this female intrusion into a branch of activity that has always been considered man's work? Not necessarily, thinks Berry.

"The issue of the mixing of sexes in space crews in the future may not be the delicate one it has traditionally been expected. Sexual attitudes have changed significantly throughout the world. Consequently, living in proximity with persons of the opposite sex may seem to future space crews a comfortable and natural thing."

In 1975 there will be the first link up in space between an American and a Soviet craft, as part of the growing co-operation between East and West.

At the moment, only the Soviet Union has any space women in training. The exact number of these has never been revealed. But the Soviet Union already has the distinction of sending the first woman into space — 26-year-old Valentina Tereshkova. She flew in the spacecraft Vostok 6 in June, 1963, and made 48 orbits of the earth, lasting three days.

Valentina later married the Soviet cosmonaut Andriyan Nikolayev, who first flew in Vostok 3. They now have a perfectly healthy and normal daughter.

American spacemen have also fathered normal children after making space flights. Although it was predicted that radiation in space might cause sterility or genetic defects, there is obviously no sign of any real or lasting danger.

However, all these children were conceived and born on the ground, in a normal earth environment. No one knows what effect weightlessness in space would have on a child during its gestation period. Possibly, such an infant would be unable to withstand earth's gravity.

Certainly, no pregnant woman or a young child could undergo the high forces of reentry into the earth's atmosphere. Radiation in space would also almost certainly damage an unborn child.

So the rule must be — no babies in space. If sex is to be allowed, contraception must be foolproof.

Western space watchers believe that a second flight by a Soviet space woman is long overdue. The Soviet Union is developing its own space stations for long-term flights. Perhaps we shall soon see another Russian woman in space.

The U.S. has always insisted that its astronauts must be able to fly a plane. Although this requirement will be unnecessary when the space shuttle allows non-pilot passengers into space, at the time of the Tereshkova flight 21 women pilots had passed the U.S. astronaut physical examinations.

One of them, Mrs. Philip Hart, wife of Senator Hart of Michigan, commented that Tereshkova's flight showed that the U.S. was 100 years behind in using the full abilities of women.

There are still no American women astronauts at present, although Dr. Berry admits that this will have to change if his predictions are to come true.

At the moment, though, it seems that any space love links will involve Soviet women. "The idea of an American man and a Russian woman marking up a joint first in space would really set the seal on our co-operation," said Berry.

Organic Carrots Dangled in Vain

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An organic food venture is going badly here because its operators say housewives "think that a limp, small vegetable must have something wrong with it."

Despite customer reluctance, the youthful managers of the Goodnews, Sunshine, Fruit and Vegetable Co. are determined to make a go of it and their goal is education rather than profits.

Goodnews, which employs seven persons full time, is sponsored by a construction firm as a community service.

"I just know it's going to work," said Barbara Casselman, 30, who manages the retail stand. "We have to educate the consumers, too. People are afraid of something they don't know about."

"We do not use sprays and chemicals on our produce," said Barbara. "But the main problem we now face is that people do not like the looks of the vegetables. Our carrots look like short, squat Bugs Bunny types and housewives are used to seeing long, slender crisp ones in the stores — pre-packaged too."

Doctorate for Victorian

Receiving PhD in philosophy from Dr. G. J. de Vries at Free University of Amsterdam is Albert Marten Wolters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Syrt Wolters of 4821 Elk Road, Saanich. Wolters, Victoria high school graduate and former student at University of Victoria, received doctorate in special ceremony at which he defended his theses on Plotinus on Eros. Wolters was awarded Canada Council doctoral fellowship grant to finance studies at Free University of Amsterdam.

Alimony Dispute Aims Constitutional Shaft

OTTAWA (CP) — What started early this year as a dispute over alimony payments between a divorced Vancouver couple is threatening to turn into a full-scale constitutional issue before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court's ultimate decision could nullify the power of judges to order maintenance payments under the federal Divorce Act. That would leave the provinces with the responsibility of drafitng a complete set of laws dealing with alimony, child custody and other associated matters of divorce action.

Tuesday, the court decided to hear an appeal by Josephine Zacks against a ruling of the British Columbia Court of Appeal which had the effect of cutting off her support payments. The B.C. court ruled that her former husband, Louis Zacks, does not have to pay the $1,020 monthly payments ordered by the provincial divorce registrar because the maintenance order was not issued until the divorce already had been declared absolute.

In allowing the appeal, the Supreme Coutr agreed with Mrs. Zacks that the B.C. court had based its decision on unclear wording in the Divorce Act and it should be examined thoroughly at the highest level.

Zack's lawyer, Neil Fleischman of Vancouver, is hoping to fight the appeal on the grounds that the federal Divorce Act is unconstitutional.

His contention is that the British North America Act grants the federal government power over divorce, but is silent on all associated matters relating to the dissoultion of a marriage. Alimony, child custody and similar problems arising from a divorce are, he says, a provincial responsibility.

The Supreme Court is to decide within the next few weeks whether it will restrict the appeal to the interpretation of the Divorce Act or open up the whole issue of the law's validity.

Since the constitutional question was not raised during the B.C. appeal, the Supreme Court is not obliged to consider the matter itself.

If the court does agree to hear the constitutional challenge, the provincial governments will be invited to send representatives to agrue the issue in court.

A date has not been set for the appeal but it is expected to be heard before the end of the year.

Britons Fit

LEICESTER, England (CP) — Despite dreary predictions that Britons are being slowly poisoned by pollution, most of the population "has never been fitter," says one expert. Prof. Kenneth Mellanby told the British Science Association at a meeting that "if we were being seriously harmed we would probably by dying earlier and be in poor health." Statistics showed however that infant mortality, the physique of children and man's own survival suggested an environmental improvement, Mellanby said.

No Complaints

LONDON (CP) — Seventy middle-aged women looking for young husbands have been exceptionally lucky, says Evelyn Harrison, secretary of a lonely hearts club. The ladies received 60 proposals from men mainly under 30 offering them homes, security and sex. Most favored among the prospective husbands is a 30-year-old weight-lifter. "We didn't expect to hear from so many young men," Evelyn said. "Of course, no one's complaining."

Belatedly Legal

MILPA ALTA, Mexico (AP) — An elderly Mexican couple who fought in the 1910 revolution have made their marriage of six decades legal with a civil wedding ceremony. They were married in a church 60 years ago but the revolution led to a law requiring civil weddings.

This is how panti hose should fit, so why is it they often don't?

Because to ease the squeeze on your clothing budget you probably head for bargain pantihose. But it's fools' paradise. To give you a lower price, the manufacturer has to cut corners. Like not taking the time to make sure both pantihose legs are the same. And since a size range is expensive to set up, he'll make a one size to fit all, which won't fit anyone too well.

On the other hand, for $2.00, Phantom pantihose gives you sizes according to both your height and weight...

- The best fibres.
- Colours that won't fade.
- A choice of fashion details.
- A name on a label to complain to if you have to.
- And reliability.

After 40 years of making pantihose, we still believe that if the rest of you is first class, your legs should be too.

"What are you doing?" I shout. "You look like the groom on top of a wedding cake."

Silk Scores Dramatic Comeback

Colonist-Gemini Services

As a commercial fibre silk has been in the doldrums for years. First the development of rayon in the 1930s and then the production of nylon soon after gradually pushed silk out of the big women's hosiery market.

By The Second World War silk was generally regarded as a dispensible luxury product, and during the war mulberry bushes — the natural habitat of the silkworm — were grubbed out all around the world to make room for more essential food crops.

In 1946 world silk output was less than a quarter of what it was in 1938 and, with the man-made fibre industry expanding rapidly, there seemed little likelihood of a significant recovery.

But a remarkable change in fortunes of silk has taken place with production booming in many parts of the world, demand increasing, and prices rocketing by 70 per cent in the last five years.

Today several lesser developed countries, including India and Malagasy, are making mammoth efforts to expand export raw silk industries, and other countries are looking carefully into the possibilities.

The boom in demand for silk parallels the recent experience of wool and cotton. There appears to be a growing trend for a return to natural fibres in many of the world's richer market areas. Man-made fibre industries are now facing their worst trading conditions since the industry blossomed in the early post-war years.

World silk production has risen from an estimated 75 million pounds four years ago to more than 90 million pounds last year. The main reason for the rise in export prices has been the transformation of the situation of the industry in Japan.

From being the world's main silk exporter, Japan has become the prime import market for the fibre. Japan today consumes something like 60 per cent of the world's silk output, primarily because of the Japanese kimono-wearing habit.

Japanese silk production has stagnated and declined in recent years, despite government efforts to encourage farmers to extend their mulberry areas. Today Japan imports more than eight million pounds of raw silk a year and the chances are that demand for imports will continue to rise.

Commercial silkworms have almost disappeared in France and raw silk production is declining fast in Italy, the only other country in Western Europe to have, or have had, significant silk producing industries. European demand for silk and silk textiles is increasing and imports are expected to increase.

China has been quickest to exploit the new market opportunities with output up 50 per cent during the last five years. India, Brazil and South Korea are the other areas where production has expanded recently.

Not only is raw silk production expanding in several developing countries. Textile industries themselves are one of the first steps to national industralization and textile industries in these countries are expected to raise their demand for raw silk as demand for the finished article increases in the developed world.

Thus the export potential of the fibre is considerable.

Footnote: Silk is an extremely fine filament fibre which is extruded by the silkworm and spun about itself to form a protective cocoon prior to the process of pupation.

The fine fibre actually consists of two threads coated together with viscious gum. There may be up to 1,200 feet of fibre on each cocoon. The most important of the silk producing worm is the Bombyx mori which lives exclusively on the white mulberry bush.

I wish to heavens Amy Vanderbilt or Emilly Post would spell out what "come casual" to a party means.

Casual in my dictionary reads, "A thing that is accidental. Not planned or sought."

When I go to a party casual, that's exactly what I am . . . an unplanned, unsought accident.

My husband's idea of "casual" is going to bed without a necktie. If he would back me up in whatever style I chose, it wouldn't be so bad. But it never fails. We never match. I emerge from the closet where I am dressing and look at him for the first time.

"What are you supposed to be?" he grimaces, "Hansel or Gretel?"

"Look," I said, "The hostess made a big point of telling me to 'Come super casual.'"

"That doesn't mean wearing a gym suit with a whistle around your neck."

"This is not a gym suit. Why don't you at least take off your tie."

"I'll take off my tie if you wear a skirt."

"I got it. You change to a sport shirt and I'll put on slacks."

"I've got a better idea. You wear a dress and I'll wear a sport coat."

I retire to the closet again and come out a few minutes later in a sleeveless basic black and heels.

In the meantime, he has changed to a pair of baggy pants and a sweatshirt.

"She said 'casual,' not destitute," I said.

"Then why are you dressed up like a dining room hostess? I am going back and change."

After several trips to the closet, I finally decide on my original outfit and he goes back to his original selection.

At the party it becomes obvious that no one knew what "casual" meant. All of the women are formally attired as are all the men.

As I pass by a group, I hear my dapper husband explain, "I just picked Erma up at the gym and she didn't have time to change."

Boy, is he going to get a "casual" punch in the mouth on the way home.

If the no-good panti hose you bought isn't labelled, how can you complain?

Once the package they came in is thrown out, a label in the pantihose becomes very important.
So if something's wrong, you've got a name to complain to. You get that advantage with $2.00 Phantom pantihose. Our name is sewn into the back of every pantihose we package. You'll rarely find a name sewn into a cut-rate brand.
Mistakes happen to the best of us. The difference is, Phantom wants to know when you're unhappy with their pantihose. That's why we sew in our label, to assure you of our quality. Think of that next time you buy an unlabelled bargain. If its no-good, who are you going to complain to?

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My four-year-old sister loves your column. No, she doesn't read it. She eats it. And this is what I am writing about. The little rascal devours not only chunks of newspaper, but dirt from the houseplants, art-gum erasers, and table decorations.

My grandmother says to leave her alone — that this means her body needs certain elements she is not getting in her diet and it is nature's way of providing nutritional balance. My mother doesn't agree with her and our pediatrician is out of town. What about this? Is it harmful or beneficial? — Concerned Sis

Dear Sis: Young children should not be permitted to eat things they happen to find lying around. In fact, they should be taught at an early age to keep foreign objects and articles out of their mouths. "The body needs it" theory is an old-wives tale and has no scientific validity. Thousands of children die every year because they ate toxic substances such as chips of paint, detergents and a whole host of household items that should have been kept under lock-and-key or out-of-reach.

I am glad your little sister loves my column but please keep it away from her until she can read it. It's not for eating.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a socially prominent man and wife who entertain frequently in their beautiful home, have plenty of money, and refuse to serve alcoholic beverages to guests? When I say "guests" I mean respectable citizens who do not get stinking drunk, but people who enjoy a cocktail and behave like ladies and gentlemen at all times. I am sure you will concede that a highball or two can be a social lubricant and is not morally wrong.

Please answer this in the paper. The couple we want to see it are avid readers of your column. — Civilized Moderates.

Dear Mod: If a couple prefers not to serve alcoholic beverages in their home I see no reason for criticism. It's their home and they have the right to serve, or not serve what they please.

Quebec Experiment

Hypothyroidism Detected

MONTREAL (CP) — A new screening test to find newborn infants with hypothyroidism which, unless treated, can cause severe mental retardation — will be tried in Quebec starting in December, Dr. Claude Laberge of Quebec City said Tuesday.

If hypothyroidism is found and treated early mental retardation can be prevented, Dr. Laberge said in an interview after an address to the International Congress on Mental Retardation.

"The trouble is that most cases are not diagnosed early in neo-natal newborn life and that treatment . . . is most of the time started later than the first month."

Hypothyroidism means that the thyroid gland in the neck is not producing enough of a necesaary hormone. Thyroid extract can be given by mouth, however, so the treatment is relatively simple.

Unless the newborn infant is treated, however, seveal mental retardation and some physical manifestations will appear.

Laberge said the cause of hypothyroidism in newborns is not definitely known. It may be caused by an inherited defect, a malformation in development of the baby or be caused by environmental factors such as diet."

Laberge said that tests in research laboratories at the Laval University medical centre have shown that regular bold tests done on newborns for other screening tests may be useful in testing for hypothyroidism as well.

Under the Quebec Provincial Network program, routine blood tests for three other conditions that cause mental retardation are done on all babies in the province. The blood is pricked from the babies' heels during the first few days of life and mailed to labs at four universities for testing.

The disorders that can be identified by the present tests are phenylketonuria, commonly called PKU, tyrosinemia and Galactosemia. PKU and galactosemia can be treated by special diets.

Laberge said normal babies usually have a relatively high thyroid count, so the test appears to be a suitable one to find the absence of low amounts of thyroid.

Research has shown that the incidence of hypothyroidism is high in the Gaspe region of Quebec and some areas along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, so these tests, he said.

The pilot project will involve tests on the first 50,000 babies born in those areas.

The total cost of the screening tests on the newborns, including the cost of the new thyroid test and another set of tests on urine is "about $1 for each baby," he said.

Cost of caring for a child suffering for PKU, usually in an institution, have been estimated up to $38,000 a year.

Laberge said if the new test identifies even 10 newborns a year the saving to taxpayers in costs of medical care, special educational facilities, sheltered workshops and so on, "could be $500,000 a year."

Initial capital investment for the new program is fairly expensive, he said. A special machine for doing assay tests on the blood sample costs about $20,000 and initial investment is close to $35,000.

Lack Alcoh

Lack of control of a car driven by a 19-year-old Sidney man resulted in a traffic mishap in Sidney about 12:01 a.m. Sept. 17 which claimed the life of a Port Allberni hitchhiker, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night.

Driver of the car which struck a parked car on the northbound side of the Patricia Bay Highway about 150 yards south of Beacon was David Blackburn, of 10381 McDonald Park Road.

The seven-man jury, after deliberating for about one hour and 20 minutes, attributed Blackburn's lack of control of the car to weariness and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

The inquest, conducted by deputy Victoria area coroner G. A. Gerrie, was called to probe circumstances surrounding the death of Dale Milo Bodaly, 18, of Port Alberni, who was sitting in the back seat of the parked car at the time of the crash.

Sidney Highway Death

Lack of Control, Alcohol Blamed

Lack of control of a car driven by a 19-year-old Sidney man resulted in a traffic mishap in Sidney about 12:01 a.m. Sept. 17 which claimed the life of a Port Allberni hitchhiker, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night.

Driver of the car which struck a parked car on the northbound side of the Patricia Bay Highway about 150 yards south of Beacon was David Blackburn, of 10381 McDonald Park Road.

The seven-man jury, after deliberating for about one hour and 20 minutes, attributed Blackburn's lack of control of the car to weariness and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

The inquest, conducted by deputy Victoria area coroner G. A. Gerrie, was called to probe circumstances surrounding the death of Dale Milo Bodaly, 18, of Port Alberni, who was sitting in the back seat of the parked car at the time of the crash.

Bodaly died in Royal Jubilee Hospital abou 2:30 a.m. Sept. 18 as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

"I can't remember anything until I hit the car," Blackburn testified at the inquest. In reply to a question by a jury member, he said his blood-alcohol content was later found to be .09.

Lance Grant Sage, 20, of 915 Walfred, Langford, said he was the driver of the small car which he had parked on the paved shoulder of the highway.

Sage and two friends, Gary Ross Hamilton, 19, of 1953 Nicholas. Central Saanich, and Rene Karemaker, of 607 Oldfield, Saanich, had been drinking at the Red Lion Motor Inn earlier in the eveing, inquest was told.

Later, they decided to go to a restaurant in Sidney and picked up hitchhiker Bodaly en route on the highway. Bodaly sat behind the driver's seat.

Hamilton testified Karemaker later became sick in the car so Sage was asked to stop the vehicle.

While Karmaker and Hamilton went to the right rear of the parked car, Sage lifted up the hood to the rear engine to adjust an idling mechanism on the carburetor. Bodaly remained inside.

"I saw a car coming up towards us. I noticed it was starting to go over the white line that marks the shoulder," Hamilton testified.

"I was going to (yell to Sage) but I thought the car might swerve away.

"The next thing I saw was the Volks getting hit and it disappeared," Hamilton testified. He said Blackburn's car went into the ditch after the impact against the left rear at Sage's car.

"This sort of thing doesn't happen too often. It's the last thing you expect," he said.

"When it (Blackburn's car) failed to slow down, I was certain it was out of control. I mean the driver obviously did not know our car was there and did not intend to stop," he said.

Sidney RCMP testified that Blackburn's car, which had faulty brakes and worn tires, went through a signpost before rolling over once and coming to rest in the ditch. The other car was also knocked into the ditch.

RCMP Constable Michael Clarabutt said Bodaly was still in the small car and alive when he arrived. "His feet were wedged under the driver's seat and he was half lying on the rear seat and he was half lying on the floor."

Blackburn, the inquest was told, was an acquaintance of Sage, Hamilton and Karemaker and had been drinking at the same hotel earlier in the evening.

Vote Contemplated On Beer Parlors

Central Saanich council may ask the provincial government to hold a December plebiscite to see if Central Saanich residents want a beer parlor in the municipality.

A 344-name petition, organized by Brentwood motel owners, asking for the plebiscite was tabled in council Monday night so that the clerk can check the names.

It will be reconsidered at the next council meeting when council will decide whether to request the plebiscite.

The question arose once before in 1957 when residents approved licensed dining rooms in the area, but decided against beer parlors.

Provincial COURT

Residents of a home at 3100 Fifth in Victoria got quite a surprise Tuesday — they found a 19-inch color television set still in its packing box concealed in a bedroom closet.

A Victoria police detective testified about the discovery Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court after Guy Patrick Copley, 20, of 1139 McClure, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving more than $200.

The detective said Copley admitted taking the $445 set Monday from Butler Brothers Supplies, 3396 Douglas, Saanich, where he works. He said Copley hid the set in some bushes, then went back Monday night and drove the set to the home on Fifth, where he knew a boarder.

He also said Copley was an admitted user of heroin and "was very co-operative and apologetic." Judge F. S. Green remanded the case to Oct. 18 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

In traffic court, two persons were sentenced by Judge Harold Alder after pleading guilty to separate two-count Colwood RCMP charges of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath-analysis test.

Fines of $350 on the first count and an extra $200 on the second were levied against Kenneth Jerome Pierson, 38, address not known, stopped Aug. 21, and Harold James Gropp, 38, of 3110 Wishart, stopped Sept. 10.

Pupils, Police Battle in Chile

SANTIGO, Chile (AP) — Hundreds of anti-Marxist high school pupils swirled through downtown streets Tuesday, engaging in skirmishes with riot police and water cannon trucks. The pupils, most of whom belong to the opposition-controlled Federation of Secondary School Students, were protesting the appointment of a Marxist as principal of a girl's high school. Several pupils were reported injured.

Flu Injections Recommended

B.C. Public Health Service has recommended that perons with chronic, debilitating diseases receive a new type of influenza vaccine that has been especially formulated for outbreaks expected this winter.

Persons with congenital and rheumatic heart diseases, particularly those conditions that produce a weakened blood flow, and sufferers of asthma, chronic bronchitis, cystic fibrosis, emphysema, advanced tuberculosis and diabetes should be vaccinated by their doctors.

The influenza vaccine available this year differs from that of 1971-72 in that the potency of the type A strain has been increased and a more current type B strain replaces that used last winter.

However, the health department warns that physicians should take into account the difficulties inherent in predicting 'flu epidemics, the variability of the vaccine's effectivness, the high incidence of adverse side-effects and the cost to the patient of the vaccine.

The recommendation is for two doses, six to eight weeks apart, with the series completed by mid-November.

Museum Living On Wing, Prayer

The Maritime Museum of B.C. is operating "on a wing and a prayer, so to speak," the curator, Col. J. W. D. Symons, said Tuesday.

The museum was scheduled to close its doors for good last Saturday if it ran out of money.

"We're still in the black," Symons said, "but it will turn to red in three or four weeks."

The curator said the board is prepared to hang on "by hook or by crook until the end of the year but it will mean going into debt by borrowing."

The board is pinning its hopes of survival on "favorable" information regarding a possible federal grant.

"We're doing our best to be hopeful and patient," Symons said.

The request for a continuing yearly grant of $25,000, geared to a budget of $100,000, has been in Ottawa for some time. Letters from the state secretary's department early in the summer indicated the request was being considered, he said.

He added that Dr. Louis Lemieux, secretary of the consultative committee on national museum policy, then told him that the grant had been approved by state secretary Gerard Pelletier and it was "merely" a matter of getting treasury board approval.

"Our information is that the application has been with the treasury board since the end of July," the curator said.

Symons sent a wire to Lemieux Tuesday (a phone call elicited the information that he was away from Ottawa until Thursday) asking him about the status of the grant request.

"We have informed him that the situation in this museum is getting critical," Symons said.

"We do not feel justified in making a further approach to the provincial government until we know the status of or request for aid from the federal government."

The situation is, Sumons went on, that the date beyond which the museum could survive has come and gone.

"But in view of the information we received from Ottawa on the reception of our application, we felt justified in holding on beyond that date. Had we stuck to our original date, we'd have closed last Saturday. But it appeared to us it was so close to being favorably received that we decided to hold on for that life-giving shot of blood."

Meanwhile, the museum is hamstrung for funds.

This situation could be temporarily rectified by going to the bank and borrowing, using the collection as collateral.

If the grant is denied the board will approach the provincial government for aid, Symons said.

If there is no support coming from anywhere the museum will close and the collection will be sold.

"We'd realize enough to settle all obligations and debts," the curator said. "In that case, the collection could go piecemeal or it could be dispersed hither and thither all over the continent."

The Museum of History and Industry in Seattle would be glad to get the builder's model of one of the B.C. Coast steamships because of the long connection Seattle had with these Canadian Pacific ships, Symons said.

"It would be a shame if we lost our collection, which is mainly of B.C. origin, and it was scattered far and wide."

More Boys Wanted For Co-Ed Squad

There is still room for boys in 89 (Pacific) Squadron Air Cadets, the chairman of the sponsoring committee, Ken Cutler, said Wednesday. The quota for girls is full, Cutler said, but more boys are needed.

"I hope our quota will be filled this week, which is Air Cadet Week," the chairman said.

The squadron meets at 7 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at Bay Street armory. Classes are given in band instruments, link trainer, photograph, radio, airmanship, meteorology, flight theory, map-reading and other subjects.

Pig War Birthday

Canadian Armed Forces will join British and U.S. forces in a ceremony on San Juan Island Oct. 21 to commemorate the official signing of a treaty by Kaiser Wilhelm I of Germany on that date in 1872 which ended the Pig War.

The so-called war was waged half-heartedly over the issue of the boundary and was given its name because it involved a stolen pig. The German Kaiser established the U.S.-Canada boundary and San Juan Island became American territory.

To mark the date this year a contingent of British troops now training at Suffield, Alta., will be flown in to represent Great Britain. U.S. Air Force units, U.S. Army and Mrines, their bands and marching units will also be on hand.

About 90 members of the Third Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, of Work Point will be there as well as thhe naval reserve HMCS Malahat's gun team.

Also from this area, two minesweepers and two auxiliary craft for ferrying personnel. will be on hand. The vessels will take troops ashore from the minesweepers, anchored off Garrison Bay.

Board Teache

A decision by a provincial board of reference that two teachers dismissed last summer by the Greater Victoria school board should be reinstated will be appealed by the school board.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said Wednesday that the board would take to the B.C. Court of Appeal the decision of the reference board investigating the cases of Miss Bona McMurchie and Miss Evelyn Ball.

The two will not return to the classroom until the appeal is heard, McKinnon said.

He made the statement after the three-man reference board said in a written judgment that the stories of the two should be believed and therefore they should not have been dismissed.

The two were dismissed on grounds of "neglect of duty" which, the reference board wrote, amounted to "their failure to obtain a leave of absence from their teaching duties."

In outlining the circumstances, the reference board said that after being ill for some weeks with influenza in the fall of 1971, Misses Ball and MacMurchie, who lived together, consulted their doctor on what they should do.

The two testify the doctor, Dr. D. M. Whitely, told them they should go to Arizona, so they went to Phoenix on Nov. 9, 1971, not returning to Victoria untio late August.

Saanich Police Promoted

Two of the first staff sergeants appointed when the Saanich police department added that position in 1971 were promoted Tuesday to inspector rank as the force increased its total of inspectors by one.

The Saanich police commission announced Charles Truitt, 47, has been named an inspector while E. C. Owens, 42, is an acting inspector.

Chief R. A. Peterson said later that Truitt would continue in the detective section and Owens would work in the patrol division with Inspector Harry Adams. He said the extra inspector wiill allow "wider coverage" in the evenings and on weekends.

Municipal spokesmen said Owens would revert back to staff sergeant next August if Inspector John Post decides to return. Post was granted a one-year leave of absence in August to head the new legal services career program at Camosun College.

Truitt joined the Saanich force in 1954 and Owens joined in 1956. Owens retired recently as head of the Saanich police union and Constable Philip Jamieson has been elected by union members to succeed him.

Board To Appeal Teachers Ruling

A decision by a provincial board of reference that two teachers dismissed last summer by the Greater Victoria school board should be reinstated will be appealed by the school board.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said Wednesday that the board would take to the B.C. Court of Appeal the decision of the reference board investigating the cases of Miss Bona McMurchie and Miss Evelyn Ball.

The two will not return to the classroom until the appeal is heard, McKinnon said.

He made the statement after the three-man reference board said in a written judgment that the stories of the two should be believed and therefore they should not have been dismissed.

The two were dismissed on grounds of "neglect of duty" which, the reference board wrote, amounted to "their failure to obtain a leave of absence from their teaching duties."

In outlining the circumstances, the reference board said that after being ill for some weeks with influenza in the fall of 1971, Misses Ball and MacMurchie, who lived together, consulted their doctor on what they should do.

The two testify the doctor, Dr. D. M. Whitely, told them they should go to Arizona, so they went to Phoenix on Nov. 9, 1971, not returning to Victoria untio late August.

Whitely testified before the reference board that if he had made such a suggestion, it had been a facetious one. On this issue the reference board ruled that it "is satisfied on all of the evidence that Dr. Whitely did state to . . . MacMurchie that she and . . . Ball should go to Arizona to recover from their illness and that the Board of Reference is further satisfied that the appellants took this advice seriously."

The two teachers never, during their time in Arizona, applied for a leave of absence from the school board, but it was their position "that they were not obliged to do so by the regulations in that they were ill during the total period of their absence."

"The period of illness of each of the appellants was undoubtedly an exceptional one, but the board of reference accepts the evidence of the appellants that they were ill during the whole of this time to the extent of being unable to perform their duties as teachers.

"The board of reference is of the further opinion that if a teacher is ill to the extent of being unable to perform teaching duties, then such teacher is not required to apply for a leave of absence" under either provincial or local regulations."

Members of the board were B.C. Teachers' Federation representative W. T. Gutteridge, B.C. School Trustees Association representative Fred Gingell, and chairman Vancouver lawyer K. S. Fawcus.

Nursery Loses Licence

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich has suspended the pest control licences of David Hunter Landscape Nursery in Vancouver and two employees of the company.

Agriculture department spokesman C. L. Neilson said Tuesday the licences had been suspended following complaints by Richmond residents that their properties had been damaged by chemicals used to spray a B.C. Hydro yard in the area.

Programming Ruled Out

Saskatchewan's proposal to set up its own cable television system cannot include programming, federal Communications Minister Robert Stanbury said Wednesday night.

Federal policy, said Stanbury, has always been that no licence for broadcast programming would be given to a government at any level, including municipal.

(Victoria has proposed that it set up a municipally-owned cable television system).

Stanbury was speaking in an interview prior to addressing a meeting at the University of Victoria's Faculty Club.

Saskatchewan's New Democratic Party government, the minister said, already owned much of the province's cable facilities through the provincial telephone system.

So the Canadian Radio and Television Commissiin probably would have no objection to the province's operating the physical aspects of a cable television system, he added.

Stanbury was in Victoria in support of federal Liberal candidates in the forthcoming election. He was accompanied at noon Wednesday by Esquimalt-Saanich candidate Louis Lindholm.

Property Settlement Later

Martin Asks Fast Divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge took under submission Wednesday entertainer Dean Martin's motion to permit him to proceed immediately with dissolution of his marriage and leave a property settlement to a later date.

Martin, 54, filed for divorce last February from his wife, Jeanne, 44. They had been married 22 years.

Mrs. Martin has sought a property settlement reportedly in the neighborhood of $11 million.

An attorney for Mrs. Martin said the singer-actor, who did not appear in court personally, wanted to speed up the dissolution proceeding so he could remarry.

He told Superior Court Judge Lester Olson that he felt the financial arrangements should be settled at the same time as the dissolution. He raised the possibility that the second marriage might not succeed and there would be a three-way battle over Martin's estate.

Nearly $1.25 Million

Richardson Appeal Fails

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday dismissed an appeal by the Richardson family grain interests of Winnipeg against imposition of nearly $1.25 million in taxes on some of their 1963-67 incomes.

Mr. Justice D. C. Abbott, presiding over a panel of five judges, dismissed the case from the bench after hearing lawyers argue that arrangements made between Richardson Terminals Ltd. and Marin Pipeline and Dredging Ltd., two Richardson Firms, were proper and businesslike.

The $1,249,878 in taxes had already been paid. Richardson Terminals was appealing against the levy, and took the case to the Supreme Court after the Exchequer Court of Canada ruled against it last year.

Richardson Terminals appealed against corporate income tax levies on $3.66 million in profits from a grain terminal at the Lakehead, earned in 1963 to 1967 when the firm was acting as agent for Marine Pipeline, a Richardson firm that previously had piled up losses totalling more than $1.88 million.

The two firms had made an arrangement which Richardson Terminals' lawyers said was intended to offset the losses against the profits.

All of the firms involved in the case were wholly-owned subsidiaries of James Richardson and Sons Ltd., Winnipeg, which in turn was owned by brothers James A. Richardson and George T. Richardson, their two sisters, and members of their families. James A. Richardson retired from the position of chief executive officer when he became a federal cabinet minister in 1968.

British Convention

Labor Would Oust Polaris Submarines

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — — The Labor party pledged Wednesday a radical revision of Britain's relations with its American and European allies if Labor regains power.

It was resolved at the party's annual convention to demand the removal of the United States Polaris submarine base from Holy Loch in Scotland, and of U.S. nuclear bases from other parts of Britain.

The 1,200 delegates also unanimously proclaimed their opposition to British possession of nuclear weapons, indicating that a Labor-ruled Britain would abandon its role as a nuclear power.

They also insisted that a future Labor government must stop paying dues to the European common market and boycott the market's agencies unless that trading bloc eases the terms of British membership.

These and other decisions, if carried out, would mean recasting Britain's foreign and strategic policies to move the nation toward a neutral position.

The convention has rejected one proposal, calling specifically for Britain's withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, although it endorsed as a main aim "the dissolution of NATO and the Warsaw Pact."

The drama of the day's debates and votes centred mainly on the party's attitude toward the common market, with one major issue under scrutiny.

It was whether a Labor government should keep Britain in the market in the hope of winning new terms, or whether it should walk out at once on grounds that membership would "deny national independence to the British people."

Britain is to enter the common market Jan. 1.

All the legislation making that possible has gone through Parliament and awaits the formal assent of the Queen, expected around Oct. 17.

Barring some unforeseeable political upheaval, there is almost no chance of a national election before January that would give Labor a chance to regain power.

The Conservatives' current term in office does not expire until mid-1975, although an election can be called sooner than that.

Swingers Return To Action

SAIGON (UPI) — F-111 fighter bombers went back into action this week in North Vietnam after a five-day lull while airmen searched for the wreckage of one of the controversial swing-wing craft lost on its first combat mission in four years.

Return of the U.S. Air Force F-111s to combat was disclosed Wednesday in Washington by Defence department spokesman Jerry Friedheim.

In the ground war Wednesday, South Vietnamese troops battled through communist roadblocks and reopened the "lettuce road" from the mountain resort of Dalat to Saigon. Two other government columns were within four miles of a linkup and reopening of a central coast highway closed for 17 days field reports said.

U.S. command spokesmen in Saigon had declined to confirm that the F-111s had been out of combat during the five-day period. The Saigon spokesmen said only that the F-111s were being flown and that they were "available for combat missions."

Hearing Waived In Kidnapping

CALGARY (CP) — Louis Thomas Salon, 29, and Donald Wayne Mathseon, 27, waived preliminary hearing Tuesday and were committed for trial on charges of kidnapping with intent to hold for ransom. A third man, Michael Matheny, 27, was earlier committed for trial in the abduction of Marlene Hashman, 17.

South Korean Youths Shorn

SEOUL (AP) — More than 9,000 South Korean youths had their long hair cut at police barber shops across the country in a police crackdown against what authorities called "immoral and decadent" elements.

Ruling Just Ducky

TOKYO (UPI) — By imperial decree, members of Japan's Diet (parliament) and supreme court can catch ducks, with nets. But they will no longer be allowed to cook and eat them.

For more than 70 years, imperial duck-hunting parties have been held outside Tokyo. A trained duck is used as a decoy to lure wild ducks into a narrow creek where Emperor Hirohito's invited guests wait with nets.

The guests scooped up the ducks and then roasted them for a feast. But no more.

The imperial household agency, which controls the emperor's affairs, said Wednesday the duck hunts would be held as usual this fall, but that the wild ducks will no longer be eaten. Instead, commercial roasted duck will be served. The ruling came about because bird lovers criticized the duck-hunting parties.

Up to Nixon

Water Bill Faces Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Congress sent President Nixon a $24.6 billion bill Wednesday designed to head the United States toward pollution-free waters by 1985 — a bill the president has hinted strongly he will veto.

Final action came on a 74-0 vote in the Senate, accompanied by a near-dare from Senator Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), the chief architect of the massive measure.

"The president may choose to veto this legislation on the basis of the stringent regulations it would impose on industrial polluters . . .," Muskie told the Senate, adding the president could also give the bill a "pocket veto" by not acting on it by the time Congress quits for the year.

"But he cannot ignore the problem," Muskie went on. "And all a pocket veto will mean is that before Congress can act again, more lakes and streams will die, more rivers and bays will drown in human and industrial wastes, and more precious time will be lost in a battle where time is running out on our future."

The House approved the compromise legislation — resolving differences between separate bills approved by the two chambers — earlier in the day by a 366-11 vote.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, Democratic presidential candidate, challenged the president "to prove his devotion to environmental quality by signing the bill immediately."

Fish-Split Proposal Too Soft?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Nichol, secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said Wednesday reducing the U.S. share of salmon bound for the Fraser River to 25 per cent of the total catch may not be enough.

He was commenting on a statement Tuesday by environment Minister Jack Davis that Canada will renegotiate the international Pacific salmon fisheries treaty with a view to ending the 50-50 split of the catch — possibly cutting the U.S. fishermen's share to 25 per cent.

Nichol said: "Basically, we don't want to agree with 25 per cent because nobody has determined whether that is an acceptable figure — it may be way out of line."

Returns to U.S. fishermen have been "Fantastically out of proportion" to what the U.S. has put into the fishery, Nichol said.

"We certainly take the position that U.S. interception of Canadian-bred salmon should be halted," he said.

Nichol said the union would like to see the U.S. catch of such fish reduced as far as possible toward zero.

Strike Votes In Press Bargaining

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of five craft unions representing about 500 Pacific Press employees will take a strike vote within the next week to back negotiations on a new contract, a spokesman for the unions said Wednesday.

The current three-year contract expires Oct. 31. The five unions — mailers, printers, pressmen, stereotypers and photoengravers — bargain jointly with The Newspaper Guild, which represents about 600 other employees, including editorial personnel, at the Sun and Province.

Guild secretary Bill McLeman said his union would not be taking a strike vote at this time.

Negotiations have broken off and provincial mediator Clive McKee said no talks are scheduled.

Why should you have to sprint to get a hot shower?

An oil-fired heater can give you up to 30 gallons of hot shower water in 20 minutes.

It's morning shower time in some homes, this is what happens. Dad gets on his mark. Sets. And there he goes. If the family beats poor old Dad to the shower and uses up all the hot water, he may not get a hot shower at all. Not unless his house has an oil-fired water heater.

Oil can heat water 3 times as fast as gas; 6 times as fast as electricity. So it makes a lot of sense that an oil heater is going to give your family more hot water faster for hot showers, and washing soiled clothes. Not to mention the pile of breakfast dishes.

Oil really does heat faster. It's a fact we can prove. If you're not heating water with oil now, sprint to your phone and call us on our hot line.

Stupich:

Prime Land Shield Vital

KELOWNA (CP) — Provincial Agriculture Minister David Stupich has set protection of prime agricultural land as the No. 1 priority on a list of legislation planned by his department for the special fall sitting of the Legislature.

Stupich told a news conference here Wednesday that alienation of prime agricultural land had to be stopped. He said he planned swift action to stop greenbelts in the province from being swallowed up by industrial and residential expansion.

"This is the most important of several items which will need attention as soon as possible," he said.

Stupich said he plans legislation for the spring session that would continue the Bennett government's program to promote B.C. produce, but he said his program would be a permanent one, not one designed to run only every three years.

City Begins Talks To Clear Harbor

Victoria's plan to return part of the Inner Harbor to recreational use, is showing the first signs of success.

The plan is to move scattered commercial enterprises out of the area near the Causeway and concentrate them in a new location, somewhere further out, away from what is shaping up as a prime recreational area.

One of the firms to be brought under stricter control by the city is Victoria Flying Services Ltd. which operates three daily flights from downtown Victoria to downtown Vancouver.

At a meeting Thursday of city council's land development committee, the company agreed to open negotiations with the city as soon as possible.

Purpose of the talks will be to draw up a lease, establish a higher rate to be paid by the firm to the city, and to find a better location for the company's operations.

The firm has tentatively agreed to all three points, as long as the city doesn't curtail business by imposing restrictions that are too severe.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd. now operates from a dock right below the legislative building, where the city hopes to build a lower causeway sometime in the future.

The situation was brought to a head, some time ago, when the city was told by the federal transport department that it should take over the foreshore lease for the area in which the airline's dock is located.

Whereas the city paid nothing previously, it was now charged $990 a year. From the airline, the city received only $602 a year.

The city hasn't paid the transport department yet, but outstanding bills now come to $1,980 which it wants to retrieve from the airline.

Ecology Issues

Three Victoria area members of the B.C. Legislature will discuss environmental issues at a public meeting 8 p.m. Oct. 12 in the Newcombe Auditorium.

Attending the meeting, sponsored by the Environmental Centre of Greater Victoria, will be Conservative MLA Dr. Scott Wallace (Oak Bay), Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis (Saanich and the Islands), and New Democratic Party MLA Jim Gorst (Esquimalt).

Topics the three MLAs will be questioned on will include the greenbelt and park acquisition fund, city and regional development and pollution problems. The program marks the second National Environment Week from Saturday to Oct. 14.

September Plain Miserable

September this year won't be remembered by Victoria area residents as one of those balmy early-autumn months in which a person could bask in the front yard wearing Bermuda shorts and a light shirt.

In fact, the weatherman says, September will go on record as being colder, wetter, duller and more downright miserable than normal.

Weather officials at Gonzales Observatory's regional climate data centre said this September has been the coldest since 1933 and the fourth coldest on record, in the past 75 years.

Average temperature at the observatory during September was 54.6 degrees — .4 degrees more than the September, 1933 temperature.

Gonzales weather officials said three new low daily maximum temperatuures were set. The lowest of the record-low maximum was set Sept. 28 at 48.3 degrees — four degrees less than last year's record for that date.

A new high minimum temperature was recorded Sept. 1 at 57.8 degrees — two degrees more than the previous record for that date in 1947.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Millionaire Glenn Turner, flamboyant founder of Dare To Be Great, was sentenced to 150 days in jail for contempt of court after a flag-waving, all-girl army staged a demonstration that caused postponement of his trial.

Turner, hauled back to court from his lunch to face the contempt citation, refused to testify about who financed the 600-girl demonstration outside the courthouse.

"By your refusal to testify I take it as an admission of complicity in acts to disrupt the due process of the court," said Circuit Court Judge William Patterson, who ordered Turner booked immediately into the Pinellas County jail.

Patterson at first refused to allow an appeal bond because "to allow him to be free on bond would probably allow him to repeat what we had done today." However, Turner was freed on bond later.

The crowd of "Turnerettes," some wearing hotpants, forced Patterson to delay Turner's trial. "I didn't have anything to do with it," said the Orlando millionaire. "They just came where I am."

BCFP: Limit Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP) — B. C. in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday for an injunction to prevent mass picketing at Mackenzie, about 80 miles north of Prince George, where members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada are on strike against the firm's sawmill.

The application was adjourned to Friday at the request of the union.

The company said in a statement: "The decision to take this action was based on a number of incidents where pickets obstructed persons not directly involved in the labor dispute."

About 300 PPWC members went on strike last week over a contract dispute.

There were reports that rocks and pebbles were thrown at two vehicles crossing the picket line and RCMP said they would make regular patrols of the line.

At one point, a total of 600 men, including employees of other firms in the industrial park where the mill is located, were off the job. All but BCFP operations returned to normal after the other firms agreed no materials would be supplied to the company.

Members of construction unions employed on building a new BCFP pulp mill in the industrial park were off the job Tuesday after officials of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council met with PPWC officials and agreed not to cross the PPWC picket line.

The PPWC members have turned down a company offer of a wage increase of 87 cents an hour over two years on a base rate of $3.66 and a top rate of $5.17 for sawyers.

Jewish Explosi Once A

From UPI

A Jewish refugee relief organization in Rome received a bomb in the mail Wednesday, police said. Bomb disposal experts opened the envelope and defused the device.

Police said the envelope was airmailed from Penang, Malaysia, to the Rome office of the United Hias Service. The office director grew suspicious and called the police.

An explosives expert cautiously opened the envelope and found it contained two strips of cloth impregnanted with explosive and one thin metal sheet designed to rub against them and set them off if the envelope was torn open.

A card inside the envelope bore the name of the Black September Palestinian guerrilla organization in Arabic and English.

'Invaders' Outside And They Got Him

BREMEN, Germany (UPI) — A 41-year-old mechanic was so afraid of invaders from outer space he assembled a private arsenal of rifles, pistols and grenades and held target practice in his apartment at night, police said Wednesday.

"Men from outer space are standing outside. They want to get all of us," the man said when police came for him and confiscated 30 loaded pistols, nine rifles, several grenades and large quantities of ammunition.

"We believe he is mentally disturbed," a spokesman said.

Jewish Mail Explosive Once Again

A Jewish refugee relief organization in Rome received a bomb in the mail Wednesday, police said. Bomb disposal experts opened the envelope and defused the device.

Police said the envelope was airmailed from Penang, Malaysia, to the Rome office of the United Hias Service. The office director grew suspicious and called the police.

Police said an extremist Jewish group took responsibility for the blast which it described as its first warning that anti-Semitic terror will be met with anti-Arab terror.

It was apparently the first time a Jewish group staged an attack in France, police said.

● In West Germany, police launched a nationwide roundup of Palestinian students and workers. Arab sources said there had been several arrests.

Interior Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher also announced a ban on two Palestinian organizations, telling a hastily called new conference that the General Union of Palestinian Students and the General Union of Palestinian Workers were henceforth illegal in West Germany.

He said the government feared further terrorist attacks as a result of the Munich massacre of 11 Israeli Olympians and that "Palestinian terrorists" would use GUPS and GUPA to plan and carry out such attacks.

● Egyptian press reports said Palestinian guerrillas have withdrawn from all of southern Lebanon along the border with Israel and the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights ceasefire line with Syria.

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the guerrillas, whose activity had led to Israeli retaliatory attacks on Lebanon and Syria, have withdrawn to an undisclosed area. The Al Ahram report was broadcast by Cairo Radio. In Tel Aviv, however, military sources said Isralie troops along the front with Lebanon reported seeing no movement on the other side that would indicate the Arab guerrillas were withdrawing northward.

Storing Spuds

In the rural garden anyway, probably the most important vegetable crop for winter storrage is the potato, although personally this is one vegetable I prefer to leave to the commercial growers.

We grow just a few carlies as a special taste treat, for the flavor of home-grown baby new potatoes in a cream sauce is out of this world. Maincrop potatoes for storage, though, are something else again.

For one thing, potatoes are so cheap and plentiful to buy in winter, I would sooner use our rather limited garden space to grow vegetables which are expensive, or hard to come by, or those which lose a lot of their freshness and flavor while passing through the channels of trade.

For another, we don't have very good storage facilities in our house; our basement is too warm and too dry for potatoes. Then again, lifting potatoes by hand labor is such a wearying and backbreaking task, I'd just as soon leave the job to the big acreage commercial growers.

They have the ideal potato soil, otherwise they wouldn't be specializing in this crop, and with their know-how, their especially formulated potato fertilizers and their mechanical planters and harvesters, they can turn out a better potato than I can, anyhow.

However, if you have grown maincrop potatoes, there are a few precautions you should observe in lifting and storing your crop.

In the first place, it certainly doesn't pay to dig them up too soon, because when potatoes are not fully mature, they won't keep well in storage. Moreover, the skins come off in the cooking, and some kinds boil up all mushy and wet when harvested in an immature state. So, if your spuds are to be sacked up for winter storage, it is best to leave them in the ground until the topgrowth has ripened and lost most of its green coloring.

By the same token, you mustn't leave them in the ground too long, for when fall rains come along, it is possible that each of your new potatoes will start sprouting in the ground and start growing on its own, which ruins it for storing.

A simple test is to rub the skin with your thumb. If it rolls off like rubber, the tuber is still immature and not yet ready for harvesting.

When you go out to harvest your potatoes, leave them out in the sun and wind for a few hours to dry off a bit before sacking them and bringing them indoors. Don't leave them too long in the sun, though, or the skins will turn green, and that isn't good. About half a day of sunshine and drying wind is enough.

For storage, potatoes need a cool, dark place with good ventilation and high air humidity. The ideal temperature range is 38 to 40 degrees. A lower temperature will develop an unpleasant sweetish flavor, while warmth will start them sprouting before the winter is half over. Ideal humidity is 90 per cent. These, of course, are ideal conditions — something to shoot at — and I don't suppose one home gardener in a thousand can come anywhere near these optimum figures.

Don't go piling your sacks of potatoes in heaps. Try to space them out a bit, for spuds aways sweat a little in storage, and if you don't have good air circulation around them, they may take on a musty flavor or even go mouldy.

Another problem is tainting, for potatoes will pick up foreign smells at the drop of a hat. In my earlier days I had one crop of spuds on which a distinct suggestion of rubber boots could be detected, from winter footwear stored in the same cellar cubicle! Cleanliness and good ventilation are most important.

Henry Rules Market

NEW YORK — As everyone knows, Henry Kissinger has an overwhelming effect on America's foreign policy. But what wasn't recognized until recently is that he also seems to be responsible for the health of the stock market.

A broker friend on Wall Street named Jeckel told me, "It's now a Kissinger Market. The prices of stocks go up and down and depending on how Wall Street reads Kissinger."

★ ★ ★

"How is that?"

"Remember last week the market was down? Then Kissinger flew off to Paris to meet with the North Vietnamese. The market went up. He was supposed to stay for 24 hours. When he extended the stay the market went up again. When he came back he was smiling at the airport; the market went up.

"Then he was photographed a day later walking out of the White House frowning. Immediately the market went down."

"You mean the brokers are now buying and selling depending on Kissinger's mood?"

"Right. We no longer watch the ticker tape. We all stay glued to the TV hoping to get a glimpse of Henry."

★ ★ ★

One of Jeckel's partners came over to the desk. He was carrying a newspaper. "What do you make of this?" Jeckel looked at a photograph on the front page. It was a picture of Henry with a beautiful blonde attending a concert.

"He looks pretty happy," Jeckel said. "I think we ought to advise our clients to buy."

"But, wait a minute," the partner said. "Is he happy because he's with the blonde, or is he happy because he's got a peace deal cooking with Hanoi?"

Jeckel picked up the magnifying glass and studied the photograph. "It's the same grin he used when he got off the plane from Paris. I think it's a peace grin."

★ ★ ★

The partner turned to me. "You know Kissinger. Does he look like he got something out of his Paris trip, or does he look like he's just looking forward to a nice evening?"

I borrowed the magnifying glass. "It's hard to say. I've seen Kissinger grinning like that when he came back from Paris empty-handed. Sometimes he hates to show his feelings. At the same time he may have made some progress with the North Vietnamese, and none with the blonde."

Jeckel said, "I think we should put in an order for IBM, Eastman Kodak and American Airlines, just in case."

The partner said, "It's pretty risky on the basis of a newspaper photograph. If we could see him on TV we could get a better idea of his mood."

★ ★ ★

One of the security analysts came rushing in. "Have you seen the afternoon editions? Here's a picture of Kissinger with Nixon!"

The two brokers grabbed the paper. "Oh, my God, Henry's frowning," Jeckel said.

"But Nixon is grinning," the partner said. "How do you read that?"

I studied the picture. "The way I read it, Kissinger didn't get a deal in Paris and he had no luck with the blonde, either. Nixon probably thinks the second part of that is very funny."

Jeckel picked up his phone and shouted into it "SELL, SELL, SELL!"

JAMES BACON Reports from Hollywood

Golden Boy Goldmine

HOLLYWOOD — What about Mark Spitz's future in the movies? Unquestionably, he has a lot of things going for him. He's undeniably handsome, virile and by the magic of television, a name and face that is recognized the world over. He has just been signed by William Morris, one of the top talent agencies and one of the agency's top executives, Norman Brokaw, is supervising his career. Mark's swimming coach says he can make $5 million off his seven gold medals. Brokaw thinks that figure is conservative. Brokaw is probably right. The important thing for Mark to beware of is the quick exploitation film utilizing his Olympic fame—a Tarzan or A Son of Flipper. With Brokaw and Kirk Douglas advising him, it's doubtful that will happen. William Morris doesn't sign someone on that basis.

★ ★ ★

Hugh Hefner had the Muhammad Ali-Floyd Patterson closed circuit fight piped into his living room for such guests as Clint Eastwood, Peter Boyle, Bill Cosby, David Janssen, Jim Brown and George Raft. Georgeous bunnies served drinks and some of the fellows foolishly took their wives. Hugh lives the kind of life that Errol Flynn would have been jealous of.

★ ★ ★

Don Stroud has 15 stitches in his hand after filming a sword fight with Kirk Douglas in Yugoslavia for Scaliwag. "Kirk is not only a great director," says Don, "but he's the best swordsman since Douglas Fairbanks, Sr."

★ ★ ★

Since the column today is preoccupied with gore, how about Rosemary Murphy, the Broadway actress, and the stunt she pulled down at Jackson, Tenn.? She was filming Walking Tall for Bing Crosby Productions. Makeup man Jack Young had to make Rosemary look like she had just got two Magnum slugs through her head and eye. "I must say it was the goriest makeup job of my career," says Young. "Rosemary was so proud of it she walked right into a crowded lunchroom. She set breakfast back 20 years."

David Bailey, who does that deodorant commercial on TV where he proclaims, "I didn't use my deodorant today and may not tomorrow," is the star of Wicked, Wicked, now shooting out at MGM. Bill Orr, the producer, signed him from the commercial. Bill didn't notice that the guy is in bed alone when he says "I didn't use my deodorant today."

The biggest laugh in Peter O'Toole's The Ruling Class is when Peter as an eccentric English nobleman is asked just when he realized he was God. "When I was praying," is the reply, "and I found out that I was talking to myself."

Some great pictures just don't hold up on television. Case in point is Around the World in 80 Days, which won the Academy Award as best movie but failed miserably in the Neilsen ratings when shown recently on TV. The reason for this is the absence of the huge screen process—Todd A-O which gave "Around the World" its epic quality. It was all lost on TV. I found myself watching it for an hour and then switching to Dean Martin's show. TV is too intimate a medium for epics.

It's Wisdom We Need

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Without doubt, there can be no science. But without a sense of wonder, a spririt of reverence and a keen insight into the depths of life, there could be no religion.

We gain knowledge by the scientific method if we are willing to challenge every fact, deny every alleged truth, investigate every supposed reality. Through challenge, denial and investigation we come to learn and to know.

But to know something is not to understand it. Analysis of an idea does not necessarily give us its penetrating insight. A literary critic may dissect a poem; only a poet can create it.

This is why a photograph of a scene is not the same as the artist's painting of it. To be sure, the former attmepts to be objective, while the latter can only be personal and subjective.

But all insights are drawn from the inner world of man's thought. They are not the careful results of probes and gauges, of tests or measurements.

An artist, therefore, makes no claims of knowing anything. But he tries to understand everything. And he does this by a method that is a scandal to the scientific mind. He does this through an intimate interaction with the world that surrounds him.

He does this by being a participant and not a detched observer. If he were only eyes, he would be a camera; if only mind, a computation machine.

But he has a sense of what is good or evil, beautiful or ugly, tragic or comical, grand or paltry. He is anything but objective.

But as long as he is conserned with values and not statistics he can never completely divorce his own self from what he sees.

The moment he loses his personal sense of wonder, of amazement and awe, he destroys his art and forfeits his mission.

Mature religion is the great art of life. It has no argument with science as long as science reports what it knows.

But it suggests that beyond knowledge there is feeling; out of feeling there comes understanding sometimes even wisdom.

And it is wisdom that we need more than knowledge. Knowledge is the accumulation of facts. Wisdom tells us how we must evaluate them.

Doctors Should Repay Canada

REGINA (CP) — A new approach must be found to commit doctors to repay in some way the public cost of educating them before they can leave the province or country, Saskatchewan's health minister said Wednesday.

The problem of physicians and other health personnel causing a drain on a province's resources by moving away after being educated, occupied discussions as the provincial health ministers wrapped up a two-day conference.

While nearly all of the ministers dashed away to meet travel commitments, Saskatchewan's minister of health, Walter Smishek, remained as the lone subject for a scheduled news conference.

He said Saskatchewan had been successful before the meeting concluded, in placing on the agenda the problem of doctors leaving the province where they were educated.

"We believe the public has a big investment in physicians and they have some responsibility to return, in service, the investment that we've made," Smishek said.

"There was general agreement the same kind of problem exists throughout Canada and we agreed this item must reappear on the agenda."

A prepared statement issued by the ministers said it costs in excess of $100,000 in public funds to educate each physician. This was seen as a severe drain on the resources, especially on smaller provinces.

Smishek, reporting that in 15 years since the province has graduated doctors about two-thirds have left, said a new approach must be found to the problem.

He suggested that after doctors are trained, they be committed to provide their services for a certain period o time in the province where they were educated.

"When they leave for an other country, and particularly the United States where they receive more money they should have some responsibility to repay, not only the bursaries, but the investment we of Canada have made to make the education possible for them."

Lead Kept In Chess By Hosts

SKOPJE, Yugoslava (UPI) Romania broke Yugoslavia's five-game winning streak Wednesday in the 20th Chess Olympiad but failed to stop the Yugoslavs from widening their lead in a 16-nation race for the gold medal.

Romania tied 2-2 with the host Yugoslav team in the eighth of 15 finals rounds with drawn games on all four boards.

The tie boosted Yugoslavia's point total to 23 in 3 games — three ahead of Hungary and 4½ ahead of the Soviet Union, the defending gold medallist.

Midway through the eighth round Hungary stood at 1.5-1.5 with Denmark. The Soviet Union was tied 0-0 with Switzerland, with all four games adjourned to today.

Spanish Nab Communists

SABADELL, Spain (AP) Police reported Tuesday the arrest in this Catalonian town near Barcelona of 16 persons on charges of alleged membership in the outlawed Communist party. Police said all have been placed at the disposal of judicial authorities for legal action, including five also charged with damaging the Sanctuary of Our Lady of Health in Sabadell last month.

ALL SORTS: The U.S. government-financed PBS network can be expected to take a firm swing to the right in the near future. A management shift has brought former Missouri Republican congressman Thomas Curtis in as chairman while Voice of America official Henry Loomis will be the chief executive officer. They'll stay unless McGovern wins in November.

It Pays to Be Ignorant, a funny program in radio's golden days, may become a syndicated TV series next season. Monty Hall of Let's Make a Deal is working on the idea.

Down in Hollywood, you can buy a Women's Lib deck of cards. The Queen outranks the King and the Jack is a Princess named Jackie. Next thing you know, poker players will have to uncle, not ante. □

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer — The last of a short series of connections between TV series concerned My Favorite Martian and Courtship of Eddie's Father, both of which had Bill Bixby among their stars. As a bonus, Ray Walston was the Martian and Brandon Cruz was Eddie.

Today's question — Still in early television. Fred Astaire's specials were always first-rate; can you name the girl who was his dancing partner in each? And who starred in the series once called Toast of the Town? Answers are due Friday.

"This way, Senator."

Thursday Highlights

NOTE: Today's new seasons involve The Advocates at 8 p.m. on Channel 9, Laurence Luckinbill in Delphi Bureau on the ABC triology The Men at 9 p.m. on Channel 4 and the CBC consumers' series called Marketplace at 10 p.m. on Channel 2. There's also International Performance (see below).

C-7:00 p.m.—A special on proposals to turn a Washington state nature area into a superport—9.

C-8:00—Bob Hope's first special this season stars Bobby Fischer, David Cassidy and Mark Spitz—8.

C-9:00—Telescope looks at the Royal Ontario Museum —2, 6.

C-9:00—Hope again (see 8:00)—5.

● C-9:00—PBS starts International Performance, a music-drama series, with French ballerina Claire Motte as Stravinsky's Firebird—9.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Rosemary Wormald's Floral Creations; 7:30, You and the Law; 8:00, Canadian Forces Pacific; 8:30, Project Travel; 9:00, Bud Pauls travels B.C. Trails.

Thursday Movies

9:30 a.m.—Whistling in the Dark (1940 Red Skelton). His first solo comedy and one of his best—4.

C-12:00 noon—Veils of Bagdad (1954 Victor Mature costume stinker). Some of his films were mature, I guess, but most were overripe—13.

12:45—The Pigeon That Took Rome (terrible 1962 comedy trash), Charlton Heston. If you can find any humor in it, may the bird of paradise dedicate your statue—6. 8.

C-4:00 P.M.—Congratulations, It's a Boy (1971 fatherson comedy, pretty good), Bill Bixby, Ann Sothern, many more—5.

C-4:00—Running Man (1963 suspense), Lee Remick, Laurence Harvey, Alan Bates. Also pretty good, especially for this time of day—7.

7:30—Smashup (1947 alcoholism drama, still all right), Susan Hayward. The women's answer to Lost Weekend—13.

C-9:00—The Undefeated (1969 John Wayne). Also with Rock Hudson, but what difference does a cast make to a Wayne movie?—7.

C-9:00—Call Me Madam (1953 musical, still amusing), Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, George Sanders, Vera-Ellen—12.

11:50—Isn't Life Wonderful? (1952 English comedy), Cecil Parker, Donald Wolfit. Invention time in Edwardian England—2.

11:50—Terror on a Train (fairly good 1953 train-bomb suspense), Glenn Ford. Made in England and a nice, taut little film—7, 12.

● C-12:00—Trapeze (1956, maybe the best-ever circus film), Burt Lancaster, Tony Curtis, Gina Lollobrigida and a fine circus cast—6, 8.

C-12:30 a.m.—Tyrant of Castile (dumb 1964 dubber). Despite what you might except, this Castile crummo is not a soaper—13.

1:55—Calling Bulldog Drummond (amusing 1951 detective), Walter Pidgeon, Margaret Leighton. Why do bulldogs have bowlegs? Bill Thomas says it's because that way it's easier for them to play the cello—12.

Thursday Radio

8:00 p.m.—Encore repeats Triptych, an examination of Christmas and Easter holidays of years ago and now—CBU-FM (105.7).

8:30—Western Canada Hockey League, Victoria Cougars at New Westminster, Eric Bishop is the voice again—CJVI (900).

10:00—Ideas: where is the law headed in Canada?—CBU-FM.

●—Recommended; C—Color.

BOSUN'S CHARTERS LIMITED

INTRODUCING "DUTCH AUCTIONS"

Occasionally we have a few good but hard-to-sell boats. When this happens, ELDER BOSUN says "Hold a Dutch Auction". The starting price reflects the fair market value. It is reduced each week by $50. This continues until someone buys the boat or we give it away. This week's Dutch Auction begins with a 26' Thunderbird, in really good shape with lib, Genoa, main, cruising gear and motor which although a collector's item, is still working. Starting price is $4,000. It will be reduced to $3,950, as of 8 a.m. Sat. 23 and $3,900 on Sat. 30 and so on. If this isn't your boat look for next week's auction at

Full-Time Hansard On Way

Maurice Chazottes, who for 10 years operated a Hansard report for the Ontario provincial legislature and last spring helped edit one for the B.C. legislature, will edit a full Hansard for the 1973 B.C. session.

Chazottes' special appointment to the post has not yet been formalized, but he has been hard at work preparing for his new duties since last Monday. Chazotte lives at 8489 Lochside, Sidney.

It's doubtful, he said Wednesday, that there will be time to run a full Hansard for the special sitting of the house starting Oct. 17, but when the 1973 session opens all will be ready.

When Chazottes took on the part-time Hansard operation here last spring he also became business manager of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. This position he has now relinquished.

Chazottes said that as soon as the results of the last B.C. election were known, he wrote to then premier-elect Dave Barrett to ask if he were interested in establishment of a Hansard in the house.

Barrett, and speaker Gordon Dowding, were in full agreement with the idea and steps were launched for Chazottes' special appointment as editor.

Candidates To Parry Questions

Victoria Voice of Women and SPEC will sponsor an all-candidates meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in Victoria high school, 1260 Grant.

Federal candidates from Esquimalt-Saanich and Victoria ridings will present their views and answer questions.

□

Allan McKinnon, Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate said in a press release this week that the "well-known Trudeau shrug of indifference has spread to others in his government."

"I was astonished to learn this morning," McKinnon said in his statement, "that Bryce Mackasey admitted the deficit in the Unemployment Insurance Fund is $544 million for the first seven months of this year.

"Projecting these figures, this means the fund could have a deficit of $932.6 million this year. Surely a projected deficit for 12 months of just under $1 billion tells us how ineffective the Trudeau government has been in fightig unemployment. The shrug of indifference has spread when we see that Mackasey explains that the $544 million is just a 'drop in the bucket' ".

□

"If organized crime ever gets a foothold in Canada we should have a plan ready to cope with it," Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm said in a press release following a meeting of party workers this week.

Lindholm said, "It is time we stop treating crime as a game. We can no longer afford to, nor can we allow our laws to be weighted in favor of the criminal."

Flemming Hansen, Victoria NDP candidate said in a statement released following an open house at NDP Blanshard headquarters that, the "Liberal government's tax system has been a failure.

"The government has tried to explain that a capital gains tax offsets the lower tax rates for the rich, but this is about as logical as a magistrate allowing a confirmed shoplifter one theft a week.

"A New Democratic Party government would be committed to establishing a fair and equitable tax system", the statement said.

'Perforating' Bomb Bared

HONG KONG (Reuter) — The United States is using a new type of "perforating bomb" with a murderous effect, the official North Vietnam news agency said today. The agency said in a broadcast monitored here that the bomb, being used in "extermination" raids against towns in North Vietnam, could cause death from its many fragments, from its intense heat or from the "high pressure it engenders."

Added Expense Method By Pollen Questioned

Four city officials received an additional $240 each to help offset expenses they will incur on their current two-week European tour with Mayor Peter Pollen.

The money is in addition to a $500 subsidy each of the city officials received earlier.

The problem is that the $240 payment didn't receive council's approval. Mayor Peter Pollen brought up the subject during an informal get-together following last week's council meeting. According to Ald. Percy Frampton, the mayor said he would seek approval after he returns from Europe. The tour left last Saturday.

Frampton said in an interview Wednesday he wasn't opposed to the additional expenses, but he questioned Pollen's method.

"He should have told us during the council meeting. We would have gone along with him," he said.

When the mayor did raise the subject, there were guests present which made it impossible to discuss the matter. "All we could do was agree," Frampton said.

The four who received the additional money are Ald. Tom Christie, assistant planner Peter Crisp, Traffic Engineer Dave Campbell, and City Comptroller Jim Bramley.

Purpose of the tour is to introduce city hall staff and others interested in Victoria's development to European planning concepts.

Knife Wielder Sought

A young man armed with a hunting knife who frightened the woman proprietor of Alwyn's Antiques, 1019 Fort, Wednesday afternoon was being sought by Victoria police later in the day.

Police detectives said Wednesday night they were withholding the woman's name until today. The woman who was not injured, was badly shaken up by the incident.

Detectives said the long-haired male entered the store about 3:30 p.m. and pulled out a hunting knife. The proprietor, who was alone, fled to the back of the store.

After the woman ran away, the man promptly fled from the premises. Police speculated the man, who may have been contemplating robbery, was frightened when the woman ran away.

The man was described as six feet, four inches tall, in his early twenties, of slight build, with light brown hair and was wearing a brown jacket.

$200 Pension Cost Talks Find Snags

The NDP's campaign pledge of $200 a month for those over 65 ran into some difficulties during federal-provincial talks in Victoria Wednesday afternoon.

Norman Cragg, director general of the Canada Assistance Plan in the health and welfare department, met with provincial Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi to discuss the higher pension payment and federal cost sharing in the venture.

As he left Levi's office after about 90 minutes of talks, Cragg said some of the provincial proposals didn't meet the conditions of the Canada Assistance Plan and some did.

"They put forward a number of proposals we will consider at a ministerial level," Cragg said.

The director general said a number of alternatives were also discussed and he would report back to his minister in Ottawa.

In a message relayed through his private secretary to reporters, Levi said he was not prepared to discuss the talks "today".

The NDP pension boost would affect about 100,000 people in the province and Premier Dave Barrett said this week he hopes the first cheques will be out in time for Christmas.

Total cost of the increase for the fiscal year ending for the fiscal year ending March 31 is estimated at $40 million with B.C.'s share ranging between $15 million to $25 million.

Second Saanich Arena Premature—Curtis

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis thinks it would be "great" to have a second ice surface in his municipality immediately but such a suggestion is "premature" and he hopes council will reject the proposal.

The mayor was commenting Wednesday on a recommendation made Tuesday night by Saanich indoor recreation committee to ask council to approve a referendum in December for a second ice rink.

Saanich's G. R. Pearkes arena now is used to capacity.

"I cannot support the putting of a referendum as early as this December for any kind of major recreational facility," the mayor said Wednesday.

"I haven't singled out ice surfaces for my opposition but I just feel that we must digest the major recreational building program that now is nearing completion."

"It would be great to have another ice surface immediately. However, the duty of a council is to analyse the community's total needs in facilities and amenities and establish a priority list."

Curtis said more recreational buildings would come undoubtedly, but not within the next six to 12 months.

He said he was very much aware of the tremendous demand for ice time by minor and junior hockey and by the public at large.

Curtis

"And I know that the Colwood arena is operating at capacity already. However, so are many of our roads and so is our fire department with respect to its physical accommodation in the branch firehalls. And so are other departments of the municipality."

The mayor pointed out that when a referendum is approved it has then to be paid for.

"And we have embarked on a major sewer program, the full cost of which is yet to be experienced."

Curtis also pointed out that there is relatively little time between now and December to thoroughly research such a project.

"We would have to know the likely size of the building, the type and the approximate cost. We'd have to prepare structural and engineering requirements and even the roughest sketch plans."

The mayor said he hoped council would reject the recommendation at the next regular meeting on Oct. 16.

"But, should it go to referendum in December, I hope the voters reject the proposal to borrow at this time."

Not Legally Sane

Court Commits Sooke Man

A 27-year-old Sooke man was committed indefinitely to Riverview mental hospital last week after he was found not guilty by reason of insanity on a charge of being unlawfully in a dwelling house.

Judge M. L. T. Drake of Victoria County Court made the ruling in the case of Barry Stephen Carl Billan who was charged in connection with an incident at a James Bay house last February.

When Billan first came up for trial in May he was declared unfit to stand trial by reason of insanity and sent to Riverview. He remained there until last month when he was found fit to stand trial and was returned to Victoria.

At last week's hearing, crown counsel Brian Smith led psychiatric evidence to show that when Billan committed the offence, he was not legally sane. Drake accepted this evidence and committed Billan to Riverview again.

He will be released only when a psychiatric review board finds him to be sane.

Huge Explosion In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hurling bricks and steel beams into the air, a mammoth explosion destroyed an abandoned Brooklyn building Wednesday, lighting up the predawn sky with a huge mushroom ball of fire which destroyed a row of tenement buildings. At least 25 persons were injured and 155 left homeless. There were no deaths.

Brezhne Spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed during their talks this week that Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will visit Washington next spring probably in April.

Diplomatic sources said Wednesday that an official announcement of Brezhnev's state visit probably would be withheld until after the Nov. 7 U.S. election, but that Nixon and Gromyko settled the major details.

During his summit trip to Moscow in May, Nixon invited Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit the United States.

Soviet officials said that all three could not make the trip at once, but they indicated Brezhnev probably would be the one to visit Nixon.

Repeal of Mediation Act

King Won't Say When—or If

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

● Moore seems a shoo-in. Page

VANCOUVER — For the first time Wednesday new B.C. Labor Minister William King put some of his cards on the table for labor, but made it clear they didn't come from a stacked deck.

If he is holding any aces, however, he isn't prepared to say. In two encounters with reporters he refused to say if or when the B.C. Mediation Act (Bill 331 would be repealed. Such a move was among the campaign promises of the NDP before it was swept into office in the Aug. 30 B.C. election.

In winding up a 15-minute address to International Woodworkers of America convention delegates here, King said:

"I want to listen to your ideas and industry's ideas. I believe in justice. I don't believe in stacking the deck in terms of labor laws from one side or for the other.

"I believe all any fair-minded person can ask is for just and fair laws."

It was King's first appearance before a labor body since his appointment to cabinet in the fledgling government of Premier Dave Barrett. Barrett is to address the convention today.

In addition to disclosing some of the philosophy he is carrying into his new job, King made these points during an interview:

● He plans to introduce some minor labor legislation changes at the special fall session.

● He is adopting an open-door policy and will consult representatives of the public in advance of new legislation.

● He opposes compulsion

Life for Trafficker

Term B.C.'s most severe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joseph Donzell, 39, was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment for possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The sentence — most severe ever handed down in British Columbia for a narcotics offence — was imposed by Judge Arthur McClellan in County Court. He told Donzelli he was engaged in a "slimy business."

Police found more than nine pounds of heroin — in 146 one-ounce packages — in Donzelli's possession when they entered his home in July of last year.

The wholesale value was estimated at between $233,000 and $354,000, with a street value of more than $1 million. It was the largest heroin seizure ever made in Vancouver.

"It's frightening to think of the bodies and souls that would be prostituted and the lives that would be ruined to raise the more than one million dollars this drug represents," McClellan said.

He said no legislative body or person, no matter how permissive, had ever recommended leniency for traffickers.

Donzelli, who had no record, said the heroin was given to him by a man named "Tom or Sam" who asked him to hold it for a couple of weeks.

A spokesman for the National Parole Service said Donzelli would be eligible for parole after serving seven years.

Quinsam Ponds Ready in '74

Biggest Fish Hatchery Slated for Mid-Island

Tenders for B.C.'s biggest and most expensive fish hatchery to be built near Campbell River will be called in January.

The salmon hatchery at Quinsam River is only the second in the province and is expected to cost more than $4 million. (The Big Qualicum River establishment is not primarily a hatchery.)

A $3 million salmon hatchery has been built by the federal government at Capilano near Vancouver but George Neilsen of the fisheries service in Vancouver said Wednesday the Quinsam River project would be bigger and more expensive.

The Capilano hatchery has 10 ponds and Quinsam will have 15. He agreed that the final cost could be "around $4 million."

Neilsen said the fisheries service planned to start building the Vancouver Island hatchery next April and construction would take about 18 months.

Potential tenders were invited to pre-bid inspection tours set for Oct. 12 and 13 in advertisements in many B.C. newspapers this week.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has promised up to five hatcheries in the next few years and Neilsen said sites being considered for future projects were all off the Island.

Currently fisheries officials are studying the Chilliwack River, Indian River at the head of Burrard Inlet and Cheakamus River, a tributary of the Squamish River.

However, he said the environment department under which the fisheries service operates has just completed two small hatching ponds on the Puntledge River which runs through Courtenay.

The Quinsam hatchery will breed 1.85 million coho smolts — one-year-old fish — and 3.75 million coho fry for transplant to barren streams allowing nature to rear the fish.

Because of the low survival rate, he said only about 176,000 coho would be available for sports and commercial fishermen for exploitation.

As well, Quinsam will raise three million juvenile chinook (90 days old) and 20,000 steelhead smolts.

This is expected to produce 23,000 chinook adults and 1,700 steelhead for exploitation.

Neilsen explained that the survival rate was often less than 1 per cent, but many thousands of fish would be kept in the hatcheries for breeding purposes.

The aim of the federal fish hatchery program in B.C. is to feed the Gulf of Georgia commercial and sports salmon fishery.

Juneau Won't Switch Cable Hearing Site

● Pay TV will be run by licensed companies, says CRTC. Page 11

EDMONTON (CP) — The rates charged by a cable television company should not be primarily determined by the profits that company is making, a representative of Victoria Cablevision Ltd. said Wednesday.

Barrie Adams, lawyer for Victoria Cablevision, told a Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearing that radio and television broadcasting stations do not have their advertising rates regulated and cable companies should not be tied to low charges just because they are making good profits.

Victoria Cablevision is applying for a rate increase to $5 monthly from the present $4.50. It says the increase would be followed by more extensive service to its subscribers in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

"If the consumer feels it is worth the price to pay for that service, I think that should be the dominant fact," Adams said.

CRTC Chairman Pierre Juneau said that the CRTC believes, in the case of broadcasting stations, that revenue beyond those necessary for a reasonable profit should be used for improved service. The CRTC paid close attention to broadcasters' profits in judging what services they should give.

Juneau suggested that, in the case of Victoria Cablevision's proposed rate increase and expansion, the public might say the company can "quite easily absorb this cost and pay for it out of profits."

At the beginning of the discussion on the rate increase application, David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, and representatives of Victoria and Esquimalt argued that the case should be adjourned until Victoria Cablevision provides a financial statement to the public.

J. W. K. Shortreed, an Edmonton lawyer representing the city of Victoria and township of Esquimalt, said that without the statement Cablevision's application cannot be effectively opposed.

Groos said the case should be heard in Victoria or Vancouver so that local people

Kraft Guilty on False Ads

MONTREAL (CP) — Kraft Foods Ltd. was found guilty Wednesday of a charge of false advertising in its "Explore Canada 70" contest.

Mr. Justice Claude Vallerand set Oct. 18 to hear arguments before sentencing.

The sales promotion contest sponsored by the company offered participants "15 big chances to win" a plane trip to any Canadian city, free use of vehicles, $1,000 spending money and a set of luggage.

Chief federal prosecutor Louis-Philippe Landry said no contestant had "15 big chances to win" and 120,900 of the 271,000 entrants had simply wasted a stamp.

Prizes and weekly drawings were done on a regional basis with three prizes going to Quebec and Ontario, two to British Columbia and the Yukon Territories and one to each of the other provinces, he said.

The contest ran from January to April, 1970.

Convicts Do Surgery

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Conditions are so bad in Alabama prison hospitals, a federal judge said Wednesday, that convicts perform surgery and rags are used as substitutes for bandages.

United States district court Judge Frank Johnson ordered prison authorities to take immediate steps to provide adequate medical care for all prisoners.

Johnson said penal authorities "have clearly abused their discretion" in denying proper medical treatment to the almost 4,000 prisoners in custody.

Johnson's decision came on a suit filed by prisoners contending they did not receive adequate medical treatment.

"Unsupervised prisoners, without formal training, regularly pull teeth, screen sick-call patients, dispense as well as administer medication, including dangerous drugs, take x-rays, suture and perform minor surgery," the court said.

And, it continued, evidence showed a "chronic shortage of medical supplies throughout the prison system."

Brezhnev Plans Spring U.S. Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed during their talks this week that Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will visit Washington next spring probably in April.

Diplomatic sources said Wednesday that an official announcement of Brezhnev's state visit probably would be withheld until after the Nov. 7 U.S. election, but that Nixon and Gromyko settled the major details.

During his summit trip to Moscow in May, Nixon invited Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit the United States.

Soviet officials said that all three could not make the trip at once, but they indicated Brezhnev probably would be the one to visit Nixon.

Indians 'demand' role in Arctic love industry

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories has submitted a bitterly sarcastic brief to the territorial government to parody the idea of legalized prostitution in the North.

The paper, aiming to condemn the idea through satirical praise is designed to "expose the idocy of the whole exercise," says a spokesman for the brotherhood.

Part of the paper says:

"The government of Canada had been prostituting this country to the Americans for years. Why should the native people not be given the opportunity to participate? They could then say at last that they were enjoying the full rights of Canadian citizenship."

The territorial council last summer asked for a report on the feasibility of licensing prostitutes. Tom Butters, elected member for Western Arctic, said the plan could be a method for controlling the soaring venereal disease rate in the North.

The Indian brief says that typically in history, prostitution has been motivated by economic reasons and prostitutes and their protectors came from the ranks of the economically disadvantaged.

"It can be said that the merits of legalizing prostitution in the N.W.T. are obvious.

"Since the native people are the most disadvantaged in the N.W.T. from the economic viewpoint, and since the business of prostitution draws upon the ranks of disadvantaged, prostitution must be developed for the advantage of the native people."

The brief says that under federal guidelines northern development must have as a first priority the welfare of the native people. Legalized prostitution, therefore, was the opportunity the government has been looking for.

"If oil companies are going to import 5,000 pipeline workers, surely they must be told to hold the line.

Militant Leader Target

BELFAST (AP) — William Craig, leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Vanguard movement narrowly escaped an assassination attempt Wednesday.

Three bullets from a speeding auto hit Craig's car as he drove from Belfast to his law firm's offices in nearby Lurgan.

Craig, 48, blamed the attack on the Irish Republican Army and said: "I don't know what they wanted . . . whether to kill a loyalist leader or produce a loyalist backlash."

LADYSMITH — So that people like Percy Louie, 33, of Ladysmith can continue with his rehabilitation and preventative work is one off the vital reasons why the general public is being asked to support to the current fund drive of the Cowichan United Appeal.

Louie, married and father of four children, is a staff member of the John Howard Society and the society is one of 12 agencies dependent on the United Appeal here. He is one of two Indians who work for the society. While Louie's domain reaches from Nanaimo to Duncan his colleague's work is mainly contained to the Greater Victoria area.

Motivated by the idea to help Indian people, Louie began as a volunteer trainee with the John Howard Society about eight months ago and for the past four months he has been on the society's payroll. His training will be completed this December, but he already looks after a considerable case load. Now termed a court worker he acts as a liaison between the police, the probation service and the general Indian public.

"At the present time I am working for Indian people but I already have handled other, non-Indian cases," Louie said. When he began his working life as an employee of Overwaitea at Duncan the young case worker already had set his sights on a career which would enable him to aid his native people.

UNITED APPEAL

First he took a business course at Malaspina College and last year he enrolled in a social worker course at the same institution. Now, besides his considerable work load that takes him to courts at Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Chemainus and Duncan he still finds time to further his education at the Malaspina College in psychology and in English.

Louis plans to work for the John Howard Society for three years and then he wants to work towards a master's degree in social work. "I like to work for the John Howard Society. They are good people to work for and the society is a very worthy group to be supported by the public," Louis said.

He explained that the society utilizes the efforts of lay volunteers and professional staff and its work is concentrated in three main areas. Firstly the society provides direct assistance to men and women in their efforts to become honest, law abiding citizens following imprisonment, secondly to create citizen awareness and participation in the problems of crime control and prisoner rehabilitation.

Louie said thirdly the society is pressing for changes in legislation and penal practices which will provide society with better protection from the criminal deviant.

At the United Appeal headquarters at Duncan, executive secretary Mrs. Doreen McIntyre said that so far $3,206 has been collected but most of the donations from the business canvass are still outstanding. The business canvass began in the middle of last month and it probably will be completed the same time as the residential canvass which started Monday.

Appeal target this year is $44.000 and Mrs. McIntyre said it is heart warming to see those many volunteers giving freely of their leisure time to aid the cause. There were 300 residential canvassers last year and this year an additional 61 residents came forward to help.

Library Has Renters

DUNCAN — City council at a special meeting Monday night received two requests to rent the old library building on Kenneth Street. Council decided the old building should be rented for $250 a month on a six-month basis with option to renew a lease agreement at the discretion of council. The requests will be studied by the finance committee.

A few weeks ago council received a petition asking the city to make the old library building available for an activity centre but council at that time suggested that the request for an activity centre should be studied by the regional board.

A request from a local karate club to rent the old municipal hall on Canada Avenue for $75 a month on a permanent basis was turned down.

IWA Picks Jack

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — By Wednesday night it wasn't hard to find convention delegates willing to bet that Jack Moore will be returned by acclamation today as president of the Western Canada region of the International Woodworkers of America.

A far cry from other years and pre-convention predictions this time that Moore and his regional officers would once again be challenged for their jobs.

This convention — prior to today at any rate — has been so calm by comparison that some veteran officials have been visibly stunned on occasion.

Matters that usually bring sounds of hostility from the enemy camp have been put through the convention mill with few discouraging words.

There was a good example Wednesday when delegates passed, with no argument at all, a resolution raising the monthly regional office assessment per member from $1.05 to $1.25.

Considering that there are 42,000 members, this means a yearly increase in funds for the region of more than $100,000.

Jack Seems 'In'

VANCOUVER — By Wednesday night it wasn't hard to find convention delegates willing to bet that Jack Moore will be returned by acclamation today as president of the Western Canada region of the International Woodworkers of America.

A far cry from other years and pre-convention predictions this time that Moore and his regional officers would once again be challenged for their jobs.

This convention — prior to today at any rate — has been so calm by comparison that some veteran officials have been visibly stunned on occasion.

Matters that usually bring sounds of hostility from the enemy camp have been put through the convention mill with few discouraging words.

There was a good example Wednesday when delegates passed, with no argument at all, a resolution raising the monthly regional office assessment per member from $1.05 to $1.25.

Considering that there are 42,000 members, this means a yearly increase in funds for the region of more than $100,000.

Moore
. . . no challengers

Moore has said extra money was needed for an education program. The regional officers also wanted 30 cents of each $1.25 assessment allotted for a stepped up program in organizing (the use of six full-time organizers in the place of four. Two of the four have been off the job because of illness.

The officers got their wish. But in this case there was a touch of the old-time argument. There wasn't really much opposition to the use of six organizers but there was a faction that thought their expenses should be met in some manner other than the 30 cents per member paid the regional office.

While it went unsaid, it was obviously one of the signs of conflict born from a power struggle between the regional office and the big, strong coast locals. The locals want control, in some cases, of such operations as organizing.

Murray Drew, president of the 2,100-member Victoria local, said in an interview that his local has taken care of its own organizing drives. But Drew had also gone on record as saying the days of the regional office may be numbered—that the locals will soon be able to function adequately without such outside help.

Wednesday he said it would be "a sorry day for the membership" if Moore were unopposed today when nominations are called.

He also said, however, that there appeared to be a lack of likely challengers for the job because of an unwillingness of some to "drain the strength from the locals." The good men, he said, wanted to stay with their locals.

'Presidents Club Never Did Exist'

There are some who believe this lack of a worthwhile opposition slate has been responsible for the near silence so far of the enemy camp — The "Presidents' Club," which has normally been accepted as the presidents of some of the more influential locals.

But if you ask them, Drew, Vancouver local president Syd Thompson and Ernie Freer, president of the loggers' local, will tell you no such group ever existed — that they all go their independent ways.

All have been instrumental in the past, however, in attacking the leaderrship of Moore as ineffective.

Some of the feeling between the regional office and a few of the locals showed up briefly Wednesday when second-vice-president Jack Munro uttered what were probably the angriest words of the convention to date.

Dealing with the past reluctance of locals to release money for regional organizing, Munro said the large locals were using their own funds to "buy land and skyscrapers all over the place."

This brought some laughter and Munro admitted afterward the skyscrapers were some nice new buildings in places like Prince George and Cranbrook, but that they really didn't exceed two stories in height.

By the time the day was over delegates also approved a bylaw that would mark a big improvement in strike pay for IWA members who traditionally have been without much help in this regard.

It means strikers would get from $35 a week for a single man to $50 for a married man with a dependent wife. There would be another $5 for each child and the waiting period for strike pay would be reduced from four to two weeks.

Syd Thompson and others said the situation in the past has created bad feelings. There was a minimum of $12 a week for a single man and $18 for a married member.

Still to be dealt with is a resolution that would increase the strike fund, which now stands at $2.5 million.

RCMP To Groom Indian Constables

'Reserve' Police in Training Soon

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

Seven more Indian police constables will begin training in Victoria later this month for duties on their home reserves.

The new recruits will train at the RCMP school in Victoria for about two weeks from Oct. 16 and will bring Indian constable strength in the province to 15.

When the scheme was introduced in May last year eight Indians passed a short RCMP training course and tackled the problems of working for their band councils policing the reserves.

The seven new recruits come from reserves at Cowichan, Bella Bella, Clemtu, North Vancouver (Squamish), Burns Lake and Creston.

If they pass the course they will join existing constables in Bella Bella (Campbell Island), Quadra Island, Kincolith, Fort Simpson, Kitimat and two in the Nass River area. A constable in the Cowchan reserve was fired and the band is sending a replacement to the course.

This year the course will be longer and more involved, Staff Sgt. Bob Miles of the RCMP training school said Wednesday.

While he thinks two weeks is still not long enough, he explained that the project was still in a "fledgling state' and "enough for them to do their job on the reserves."

Miles said some of the constables had great trouble being accepted by the Indians and one was even assaulted within his home reserve.

However, "drastic action" through arrests and the Indian constables "proving themselves" turned the venture into a success.

The main offences on the reserves were assaults family disputes, curfew breaches by younger band members and violation of band bylaws, he said.

The band pays for equipment and wages and the RCMP provide the training and oversee reserve policing.

Calder
. . . 'quite satisfied"

Miles said "any job the reserve constables do is going to help relations between the police and Indians" and he summed up the first year with the words "a darn good job."

Staff Sgt. Ray Nelson, a liaison officer with RCMP E division in Victoria, is working full time on Indian policing problems and has been associated with B.C. Indians for 25 years.

Reflecting on the success of the Indian constable scheme he said the Cowichan firing was "unfortunate" as there was nothing wrong with the constable's policing and other differences of opinion could have been resolved "very easily."

(Larry Joe of the Cowichan reserve was fired after a dispute over car mileage rates. He was replaced by George Auckland who is understood to be one of the men taking the Oct. 16 course in Victoria.)

Barry Goodwin of the Indian affairs department in Vancouver said the Indian constable system was unique in B.C. because this was the only province where they had wider powers.

He explained that B.C. constables were sworn in as police officers under provincial legislation while in other provinces similar Indian constables worked under the "more restrictive" Indian Act.

The only Indian MLA in B.C., Minister without portfolio Frank Calder, said this week he was "quite satisfied" with the job done by the reserve constables.

Some had run into difficulties but they knew the job was not an easy one.

Clader said the people in the Indian villages were "getting to know what law and order is."

He listed liquor as the biggest problem on the reserves followed by thefts, street fighting, stray dogs and sanitation.

But he was strong on one point — the Indian constable system was one asked for by the reserves and not one forced on them.

EATING FISH:

No One Has Yet Told Canadians There's More Than One in Sea

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Correspondent

(Last of three parts)

How do you tell Canadians nicely that they don't know a thing about eating fish?

And what do you do about consumers in this country who don't know they are wasting many varieties of tasty fish because the market has concentrated on salmon and salmon alone at the expense of black cod, hake, tuna, ling cod, sole and halibut?

Should you tell consumers that Russian and Japanese fishermen are hauling in "fantastic catches" of these fish just off the Canadian west coast because the B.C. fleet is only an infant outside the salmon field?

Experts Trying

Now if only the press doesn't get on to these puzzles before the experts in the federal fisheries department can find a way to break it to Canadians before it's too late.

The experts are trying to find ways to get consumers to eat fish outside the "delicacy line" which Canadians demand for their diet.

Salmon is the fish and always has been on the west coast but now a new industry is struggling for growth.

Incentives are now luring fishermen to net the black cod and other fish which have up to now often been thrown away by Canadian fishermen and scooped up with a smile by the large factory fleet operations of Russia and Japan.

Few landlubbers know that there are more Russians involved in fishing off the Canadian west coast than Canadians, says one Victoria fisherman, Dick Williams, owner of the Seabeam.

Most of the salmon market for Canadian fishermen is outside Canada and this has kept prices high for local consumers.

Wide Demand

Europeans and Britons gobble most of this country's salmon exports and love it. They demand it in fact.

And while B.C. fishermen were heading for a dismal year as coho virtually disappeared this season this demand saved them from disaster.

Fish packers in Victoria Nanaimo and Vancouver paid up to $1 a pound for coho and $1.25 for spring salmon this season, setting new records, according to many fishermen.

Poundage plummeted but the purses stayed healthy.

Need Market

And while the fishing industry might be ailing, there is a clear message being repeated and gaining momentum from fishermen — diversify.

There is no use returning from days at sea with holds bulging with black cod if there is no market back in B.C. for the fish.

So you have to teach the people to eat a wider variety of fish, the fishermen say.

Aim Changes

This season more and more boats turned from the frustration of poor salmon catches to tuna, something other large fishing nations, includng the United States, have been doing well for years. Tuna catches were the best ever.

More B.C. fishermen are also eyeing abalone, black and grey cod, halibut and lesser known varieties.

In 1971, the tuna catch was 4,011,000 pounds, a sharp rise from the 1,545,000 pounds the year before. Marketed value of the 1971 tuna catch was $1,499,000 compared with $984,000 in 1970.

Cod Figures

Grey cod catches in 1971 totalled 8,749,000 pounds and had a marketed value of $1,299,000. In 1970 only 5,018,000 poumds reached the shore for a marketed value of $752,000.

Black cod is a more recent attraction. In 1971 the black cod poundage only rose 2,000 over the 493,000 pounds the year before.

Marketed value dropped from $226,000 in 1970 to $219,000 in 1971, indicating that much of the consumer sales pitch work has still to be done.

Meanwhile, the salmon catch in 1971 was 132,367,000 pounds and drew a market value of $96,926,000. This was down 22,119,000 pounds and $2,671,000 on 1970 performance.

Halibut had the second highest market value, with the 1971 catch of 25,294,000 pounds fetching $11,367,000. But here the catch was down 4,231,000 pounds and the market value up at $779,000 over 1970.

Switch Seen

One man considering black cod fishing is troller Carl Gark, a 26-year-old from Campbell River, who lives on board his boat the Starlet.

He wants a bigger boat so he can explore the "wide open industry" outside salmon. Black cod sold at 40 cents a pound in Vancouver this season and that's far better than it has been before he said.

The biggest problem facing the fishing industry today, according to William Pitre, of 6940 Sooke, is that Canadians don't eaat fish.

Boat Sold

"A great deal of premium fish are expected as that's all Canadian consumers will eat," he said.

And Pitre, who recently sold is boat Petrel through the buy-back scheme, said Canadians had such a precise attitude toward fish that you could offer to give some types away and still wouldn't have any takers.

Another fisherman said he was puzzled over an apparent consumer fixation over red flesh fish like salmon.

Red Liked

He claimed that it had got so bad that some fish packers were adding an artificial red coloring to white-fleshed cod because it helped sales.

Getting more Canadians to eat more varieties of fish is matched in concern by fishermen who feel the future of their industry is not being catered for with more large hatcheries for salmon and restocking of streams ruined by logging and pollution.

Cash Sought

Many would rather see the cash put into the buy-back scheme redirected to hatcheries and restocking and some said fishermen were even willing to work on the construction of hatcheries in B.C. during the winter.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has one hatchery almost completed at Capilano, near Vancouver, and another in the works at Courtenay. Sites for three other hatcheries were being selected and one would start annually in the years 1973, 1974 and 1975.

Commercial fishermen get into a tizzy about their not too dear friends, the hordes of sports fishermen in B.C., who they say get more direct attention from federal fisheries people and also seem to be in the position to get most from hatcheries either built or planned.

Pride also comes into conversation about the future of the fishing industry. Some fishermen say it would take "moving heaven and earth" to get them out of the business.

Talk Reveals

This group see the B.C. salmon potential as the greatest in the world.

But in talking to the gritty men of an ocean that is never still, a quieter group of thinkers emerges.

Up to Nixon

Water Bill Faces Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Congress sent President Nixon a $24.6 billion bill Wednesday designed to head the United States toward pollution-free waters by 1985 — a bill the president has hinted strongly he will veto.

Final action came on a 74-0 vote in the Senate, accompanied by a near-dare from Senator Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), the chief architect of the massive measure.

"The president may choose to veto this legislation on the basis of the stringent regulations it would impose on industrial polluters . . .," Muskie told the Senate, adding the president could also give the bill a "pocket veto" by not acting on it by the time Congress quits for the year.

"But he cannot ignore the problem," Muskie went on. "And all a pocket veto will mean is that before Congress can act again, more lakes and streams will die, more rivers and bays will drown in human and industrial wastes, and more precious time will be lost in a battle where time is running out on our future."

The House approved the compromise legislation — resolving differences between separate bills approved by the two chambers — earlier in the day by a 366-11 vote.

Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, Democratic presidential candidate, challenged the president "to prove his devotion to environmental quality by signing the bill immediately."

Fish-Split Prposal Too Soft?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Nichol, secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said Wednesday reducing the U.S. share of salmon bound for the Fraser River to 25 per cent of the total catch may not be enough.

He was commenting on a statement Tuesday by environment Minister Jack Davis that Canada will renegotiate the international Pacific salmon fisheries treaty with a view to ending the 50-50 split of the catch — possibly cutting the U.S. fishermen's share to 25 per cent.

Nichol said: "Basically, we don't want to agree with 25 per cent because nobody has determined whether that is an acceptable figure — it may be way out of line."

Returns to U.S. fishermen have been "Fantastically out of proportion" to what the U.S. has put into the fishery, Nichol said.

"We certainly take the position that U.S. interception of Canadian-bred salmon should be halted," he said.

Nichol said the union would like to see the U.S. catch of such fish reduced as far as possible toward zero.

Strike Votes In Press Bargaining

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of five craft unions representing about 500 Pacific Press employees will take a strike vote within the next week to back negotiations on a new contract, a spokesman for the unions said Wednesday.

The current three-year contract expires Oct. 31. The five unions — mailers, printers, pressmen, stereotypers and photoengravers — bargain jointly with The Newspaper Guild, which represents about 600 other employees, including editorial personnel, at the Sun and Province.

Guild secretary Bill McLeman said his union would not be taking a strike vote at this time.

Negotiations have broken off and provincial mediator Clive McKee said no talks are scheduled.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed during their talks this week that Soviet Communist party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will visit Washington next spring, probably in April.

Diplomatic sources said Wednesday that an official announcement of Brezhnev's state visit probably would be withheld until after the Nov. 7 U.S. election, but that Nixon and Gromyko settled the major details.

During his summit trip to Moscow in May, Nixon invited Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit the United States.

Soviet officials said that all three could not make the trip at once, but they indicated Brezhnev probably would be the one to visit Nixon.

Repeal of Mediation Act

King Won't Say When—or If

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — For the first time Wednesday new B.C. Labor Minister William King put some of his cards on the table for labor, but made it clear they didn't come from a stacked deck.

If he is holding any aces, however, he isn't prepared to say. In two encounters with reporters he refused to say if or when the B.C. Mediation Act (Bill 33 would be repealed. Such a move was among the campaign promises of the NDP before it was swept into office in the Aug. 30 B.C. election.

In winding up a 15-minute address to International Woodworkers of America convention delegates here, King said:

"I want to listen to your ideas and industry's ideas. I believe in justice. I don't believe in stacking the deck in terms of labor laws from one side or for the other.

"I believe all any fair-minded person can ask is for just and fair laws."

It was King's first appearance before a labor body since his appointment to cabinet in the fledgling government of Premier Dave Barrett. Barrett is to address the convention today.

In addition to disclosing some of the philosophy he is carrying into his new job, King made these points during an interview:

- He plans to introduce some minor labor legislation changes at the special fall session.
- He is adopting an open-door policy and will consult labor, management and representatives of the public in advance of new legislation.
- He opposes compulsion

Life for Trafficker

Term B.C.'s most severe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joseph Donzell, 39, was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment for possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The sentence — most severe ever handed down in British Columbia for a narcotics offence — was imposed by Judge Arthur McClellan in County Court. He told Donzelli he was engaged in a "slimy business."

Police found more than nine pounds of heroin — in 146 one-ounce packages — in Donzelli's possession when they entered his home in July of last year.

The wholesale value was estimated at between $233,000 and $354,000, with a street value of more than $1 million. It was the largest heroin seizure ever made in Vancouver.

"It's frightening to think of the bodies and souls that would be prostituted and the lives that would be ruined to raise the more than one million dollars this drug represents," McClellan said.

He said no legislative body or person, no matter how permissive, had ever recommended leniency for traffickers.

Donzelli, who had no record, said the heroin was given to him by a man named "Tom or Sam" who asked him to hold it for a couple of weeks.

A spokesman for the National Parole Service said Donzelli would be eligible for parole after serving seven years.

Quinsam Ponds Ready in '74

Biggest Fish Hatchery Slated for Mid-Island

Tenders for B.C.'s biggest and most expensive fish hatchery to be built near Campbell River will be called in January.

The salmon hatchery at Quinsam River is only the second in the province and is expected to cost more than $4 million. (The Big Qualicum River establishment is not primarily a hatchery.)

A $3 million salmon hatchery has been built by the federal government at Capilano near Vancouver but George Neilsen of the fisheries service in Vancouver said Wednesday the Quinsam River project would be bigger and more expensive.

The Capilano hatchery has 10 ponds and Quinsam will have 15. He agreed that the final cost could be "around $4 million."

Neilsen said the fisheries service planned to start building the Vancouver Island hatchery next April and construction would take about 18 months.

Potential tenders were invited to pre-bid inspection tours set for Oct. 12 and 13 in advertisements in many B.C. newspapers this week.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has promised up to five hatcheries in the next few years and Neilsen said sites being considered for future projects were all off the Island.

Currently fisheries officials are studying the Chilliwack River, Indian River at the head of Burrard Inlet and Cheakamus River, a tributary of the Squamish River.

However, he said the environment department under which the fisheries service operates has just completed two small hatching ponds on the Puntledge River which runs through Courtenay.

The Quinsam hatchery will breed 1.85 million coho smolts — one-year-old fish — and 3.75 million coho fry for transplant to barren streams allowing nature to rear the fish.

Because of the low survival rate, he said only about 176,000 coho would be available for sports and commercial fishermen for exploitation.

As well, Quinsam will raise three million juvenile chinook (90 days old) and 20,000 steelhead smolts.

This is expected to produce 23,000 chinook adults and 1,700 steelhead for exploitation.

Neilsen explained that the survival rate was often less than 1 per cent, but many thousands of fish would be kept in the hatcheries for breeding purposes.

The aim of the federal fish hatchery program in B.C. is to feed the Gulf of Georgia commercial and sports salmon fishery.

Juneau Won't Switch Cable Hearing Site

● Pay TV will be run by licensed companies, says CRTC. Page 11

EDMONTON (CP) — The rates charged by a cable television company should not be primarily determined by the profits that company is making, a representative of Victoria Cablevision Ltd. said Wednesday.

Barrie Adams, lawyer for Victoria Cablevision, told a Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearing that radio and television broadcasting stations do not have their advertising rates regulated and cable companies should not be tied to low charges just because they are making good profits.

Victoria Cablevision is applying for a rate increase to $5 monthly from the present $4.50. It says the increase would be followed by more extensive service to its sugseribers in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

"If the consumer feels it is worth the price to pay for that service, I think that should be the dominant fact," Adams said.

CRTC Chairman Pierre Juneau said that the CRTC believes, in the case of broadcasting stations, that revenue beyond those necessary for a reasonable profit should be used for improved service. The CRTC paid close attention to broadcasters' profits in judging what services they should give.

Juneau suggested that, in the case of Victoria Cablevision's proposed rate increase and expansion, the public might say the company can "quite easily absorb this cost and pay for it out of profits."

At the beginning of the discussion on the rate increase application, David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, and representatives of Victoria and Esquimalt argued that the case should be adjourned until Victoria Cablevision provides a financial statement to the public.

J. W. K. Shortreed, an Edmonton lawyer representing the city of Victoria and township of Esquimalt, said that without the statement Cablevision's application cannot be effectively opposed.

Groos said the case should be heard in Victoria or Vancouver so that local people

Kraft Guilty on False Ads

MONTREAL (CP) — Kraft Foods Ltd. was found guilty Wednesday of a charge of false advertising in its "Explore Canada 70" contest.

Mr. Justice Claude Vallerand set Oct. 18 to hear arguments before sentencing.

The sales promotion contest sponsored by the company offered participants "15 big chances to win" a plane trip to any Canadian city, free use of vehicles, $1,000 spending money and a set of luggage.

Chief federal prosecutor Louis-Philippe Landry said no contestant had "15 big chances to win" and 120,900 of the 271,000 entrants had simply wasted a stamp.

Prizes and weekly drawings were done on a regional basis with three prizes going to Quebec and Ontario, two to British Columbia and the Yukon Territories and one to each of the other provinces, he said.

The contest ran from January to April, 1970.

Convicts Do Surgery

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Conditions are so bad in Alabama prison hospitals, a federal judge said Wednesday, that convicts perform surgery and rags are used as substitutes for bandages.

United States district court Judge Frank Johnson ordered prison authorities to take immediate steps to provide adequate medical care for all prisoners.

Johnson said penal authorities "have clearly abused their discretion" in denying proper medical treatment to the almost 4,000 prisoners in custody.

Johnson's decision came on a suit filed by prisoners contending they did not receive adequate medical treatment.

"Unsupervised prisoners, without formal training, regularly pull teeth, screen sick-call patients, dispense as well as administer medication, including dangerous drugs, take x-rays, suture and perform minor surgery," the court said.

And, it continued, evidence showed a "chronic shortage of medical supplies throughout the prison system."

Indians 'demand' role in Arctic love industry

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories has submitted a bitterly sarcastic brief to the territorial government to parody the idea of legalized prostitution in the North.

The paper, aiming to condemn the idea through satirical praise is designed to "expose the idiocy of the whole exercise," says a spokesman for the brotherhood.

Part of the paper says:

"The government of Canada had been prostituting this country to the Americans for years. Why should the native people not be given the opportunity to participate? They could then say at last that they were enjoying the full rights of Canadian citizenship."

The territorial council last summer asked for a report on the feasibility of licensing prostitutes. Tom Butters, elected member for Western Arctic, said the plan could be a method for controlling the soaring venereal disease rate in the North.

The Indian brief says that typically in history, prostitution has been motivated by economic reasons and prostitutes and their protectors came from the ranks of the economically disadvantaged.

"It can be said that the merits of legalizing prostitution in the N.W.T. are obvious.

"Since the native people are the most disadvantaged in the N.W.T. from the economic viewpoint, and since the business of prostitution draws upon the ranks of disadvantaged, prostitution must be developed for the advantage of the native people."

The brief says that under federal guidelines northern development must have as a first priority the welfare of the native people. Legalized prostitution, therefore, was the opportunity the government has been looking for.

"If oil companies are going to import 5,000 pipeline workers, surely they must be told to hold the line.

Militant Leader Target

BELFAST (AP) — William Craig, leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Vanguard movement narrowly escaped an assassination attempt Wednesday.

Three bullets from a speeding automobile hit Craig's car as he drove from Belfast to his law firm's offices in nearby Lurgan.

Craig, 48, blamed the attack on the Irish Republican Army and said: "I don't know what they wanted . . . whether to kill a loyalist leader or produce a loyalist backlash."

'Fledgling' Force Successful

New Constables Swell Indian Police Ranks

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

Seven more Indian police constables will begin training in Victoria later this month for duties on their home reserves.

The new recruits will train at the RCMP school in Victoria for about two weeks from Oct. 16 and will bring Indian constable strength in the province to 15.

When the scheme was introduced in May last year eight Indians passed a short RCMP training course and tackled the problems of working for their band councils policing the reserves.

The seven new recruits come from reserves at Cowichan, Bella Bella, Clemtu, North Vancouver (Squamish), Burns Lake and Creston.

If they pass the course they will join existing constables in Bella Bella (Campbell Island), Quadra Island, Kincolith, Fort Simpson, Kitimat and two in the Nass River area. A constable in the Cowchan reserve was fired and the band is sending a replacement to the course.

This year the course will be longer and more involved, Staff Sgt. Bob Miles of the RCMP training school said Wednesday.

While he thinks two weeks is still not long enough, he explained that the project was still in a fledgling state" and "enough for them to do their job on the reserves."

Miles said some of the constables had great trouble being accepted by the Indians and one was even assaulted within his home reserve.

However, "drastic action" through arrests and the Indian constables "proving themselves" turned the venture into a success.

The main offences on the reserves were assaults, family disputes, curfew breaches by younger band members and violation of band bylaws, he said.

The band pays for equipment and wages and the RCMP provide the training and oversee reserve policing.

Miles said "any job the reserve constables do is going to help relations between the police and Indians" and he summed up the first year with the words "a darn good job."

Staff Sgt. Ray Nelson, a liaison officer with RCMP E division in Victoria, is working full time on Indian policing problems and has been associated with B.C. Indians for 25 years.

Reflecting on the success of the Indian constable scheme he said the Cowichan firing was "unfortunate" as there was nothing wrong with the constable's policing and other differences of opinion could have been resolved "very easily."

(Larry Joe of the Cowichan reserve was fired after a dispute over car mileage rates. He was replaced by George Auckland who is understood to be one of the men taking the Oct. 16 course in Victoria.)

Barry Goodwin of the Indian affairs department in Vancouver said the Indian constable system was unique in B.C. because this was the only province where they had wider powers.

He explained that B.C. constables were sworn in as police officers under provincial legislation while in other provinces similar Indian constables worked under the "more restrictive" Indian Act.

The only Indian MLA in B.C., Minister without portfolio Frank Calder, said this week he was "quite satisfied" with the job done by the reserve constables.

Some had run into difficulties but they knew the job was not an easy one.

Calder said the people in the Indian villages were "getting to know what law and order is."

He listed liquor as the biggest problem on the reserves followed by thefts, street fighting, stray dogs and sanitation.

But he was strong on one point — the Indian constable system was one asked for by the reserves and not one forced on them.

Sooke District

$3 Million Goal In Schools Vote

Sooke school district has asked permission to put a capital referendum for close to $3 million before the voters on Dec. 9, district superintendent E. E. Hyndman said Wednesday.

The referendum would cover construction of a junior high school in the eastern portion of the district, Hyndman said, "probably on the north side of the highway near Goldstream or Millstream."

A school district press release noted that growth in Elizabeth Fisher and Belmont senior high schools has been phenomenal over the past six years, the former having increased 53 per cent in enrolment, the latter 95 per cent.

This growth pattern is unique in the Greater Victoria area, the release stated, and the projected population for 1981 in that area is 30,530 compared to the 1961 figure of 13,717.

Present enrolment at Elizabeth Fisher is 880 and is expanding at the rate of 9 per cent annually. Belmont's enrolment is 600 and is expanding at a rate of 16 per cent.

At the start of the next school year the combined pupil population of the two schools will be 1,652.

Present capacities of the two schools are 1,590 students. Five years from now it is estimated the combined pupil population will be 2,600.

The school district's release called the referendum "a positive blueprint prepared by a board anticipating growth and attempting to meet it by a staged school construction schedule.

"Passage of the capital referendum will mean schools will have the necessary space for pupils living in this booming 'housing start' community."

Heckling Greets Candidates

Speakers encountered an attentive and polite crowd during their allotted time for speeches and rebuttals at Victoria area's first all-candidates meeting Wednesday night.

However, candidates for the Oct. 30 federal election faced light-hearted heckling and name-calling whenever they strayed over allotted times for speeches and during later questioning.

The meeting at Camosun College, sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Committee for an Independent Canada, was to discuss foreign economic influences in Canada.

Eight candidates for the Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich ridings were at the meeting, which attracted about 70 persons.

Only candidate absent was David Groos, incumbent Liberal MP for Victoria, which left Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm holding the fort for his party against an often raucuous audience.

Groos was in Edmonton attending a Canadian Radio and Television Commission hearing.

The candidates who stuck mainly to the topic of the meeting, often engaged in amicable off-the-podium banter among themselves.

Roger Smith, New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said in his speech, "If you're shipping out raw materials, you're shipping out jobs." He mentioned a national unemployment figure of 500,000.

"The only party that has consistently followed a Canadian policy is the NDP and the party that has consistently sold out the Canadian people is the Liberal party," Smith said.

Flemming Hansen, NDP candidate for Victoria, said American companies respond to American and not Canadian needs and pointed out they do not always work within the framework of Canadian law.

The candidate said private Canadian companies should receive more assistance from the Canadian Development Corp., federal exchange account fund monies could be used "to buy back the resource industry" and there is no effective screening agency to prevent new foreign investment in Canada.

Lindholm, defended the Liberal government's past record. He acknowledged the accuracy of NDP facts and figures but said there "is no simplistic solution" to foreign economic influence in Canada.

Pointing out Canadian consternation in 1970 over the U.S. plan to offer companies tax concessions to help fight American unemployment, Lindholm said Canada would not be prepared to pay the "massive unemployment costs" of NDP proposals.

ROAD TO OTTAWA 72

"What we must do in the short run in this country is not to own all manufacturing plants in this country but achieve effective control over the resources of this country," Lindholm said.

Donald Munro, Progressive Conservative candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said, "I am unabashedly nationalistic," pointed out Canada must be an independent world partner and advocated a revival of the shipbuilding industry to export secondary industry goods abroad.

Munro said there should be regulations governing foreign acquisition of Canadian businesses and called for more incentives for Canadian-owned industries.

Allan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative candidate for Victoria said his party would require all federally-incorporated companies to have at least three Canadian directors.

After pointing out that he personally feels that a majority of directors should be Canadian, McKinnon said his party would require all foreign and Canadian private companies to make financial disclosures to ensure tax equity.

Clifford Stretch, Social Credit candidate for Victoria, who spoke against federal or provincial borrowing, said "We must never, never mortgage our country to a foreign land."

Stretch, who criticized pollution and the national debt, said that the Bank of Canada could be used to eliminate the national debt. "If the Bank of Canada can do it for foreign countries, they can do it for us," he said.

John Tisdalle, Social Credit candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, criticized both "old-line parties" for leading Canada deeper into debt.

Daniel Heffernan, Progressive Independent candidate for Victoria, said he wanted to depart from the meeting's stated topic because there are more important issues at hand.

EATING FISH: No One Has Yet Told Canadians There's More Than One in Sea

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

(Last of three parts)

How do you tell Canadians nicely that they don't know a thing about eating fish?

And what do you do about consumers in this country who don't know they are wasting many varieties of tasty fish because the market has concentrated on salmon and salmon alone at the expense of black cod, hake, tuna, ling cod, sole and halibut?

Should you tell consumers that Russian and Japanese fishermen are hauling in "fantastic catches" of these fish just off the Canadian west coast because the B.C. fleet is only an infant outside the salmon field?

Experts Trying

Now if only the press doesn't get on to these puzzles before the experts in the federal fisheries department can find a way to break it to Canadians before it's too late.

The experts are trying to find ways to get consumers to eat fish outside the "delicacy line" which Canadians demand for their diet.

Salmon is the fish and always has been on the west coast but now a new industry is struggling for growth.

Incentives are now luring fishermen to net the black cod and other fish which have up to now often been thrown away by Canadian fishermen and scooped up with a smile by the large factory fleet operations of Russia and Japan.

Few landlubbers know that there are more Russians involved in fishing off the Canadian west coast than Canadians, says one Victoria fisherman, Dick Williams, owner of the Seabeam.

Most of the salmon market for Canadian fishermen is outside Canada and this has kept prices high for local consumers.

Wide Demand

Europeans and Britons gobble most of this country's salmon exports and love it. They demand it in fact.

And while B.C. fishermen were heading for a dismal year as coho virtually disappeared this season this demand saved them from disaster.

Fish packers in Victoria Nanaimo and Vancouver paid up to $1 a pound for coho and $1.25 for spring salmon this season, setting new records, according to many fishermen.

Poundage plummeted but the purses stayed healthy.

Need Market

And while the fishing industry might be ailing, there is a clear message being repeated and gaining momentum from fishermen — diversify.

There is no use returning from days at sea with holds bulging with black cod if there is no market back in B.C. for the fish.

So you have to teach the people to eat a wider variety of fish, the fishermen say.

Aim Changes

This season more and more boats turned from the frustration of poor salmon catches to tuna, something other large fishing nations, including the United States, have been doing well for years. Tuna catches were the best ever.

More B.C. fishermen are also eyeing abalone, black and grey cod, halibut and lesser known varieties.

In 1971, the tuna catch was 4,011,000 pounds, a sharp rise from the 1,545,000 pounds the year before. Marketed value of the 1971 tuna catch was $1,499,000 compared with $984,000 in 1970.

Cod Figures

Grey cod catches in 1971 totalled 8,749,000 pounds and had a marketed value of $1,299,000. In 1970 only 5,018,000 pounds reached the shore for a marketed value of $752,000.

Black cod is a more recent attraction. In 1971 the black cod poundage only rose 2,000 over the 493,000 pounds the year before.

Marketed value dropped from $226,000 in 1970 to $219,000 in 1971, indicating that much of the consumer sales pitch work has still to be done.

Meanwhile, the salmon catch in 1971 was 132,367,000 pounds and drew a market value of $96,926,000. This was down 22,119,000 pounds and $2,671,000 on 1970 performance.

Halibut had the second highest market value, with the 1971 catch of 25,294,000 pounds fetching $11,367,000. But here the catch was down 4,231,000 pounds and the market value up at $779,000 over 1970.

One man considering black cod fishing is troller Carl Gark, a 26-year-old from Campbell River, who lives on board his boat the Starlet.

Switch Seen

He wants a bigger boat so he can explore the "wide open industry" outside salmon. Black cod sold at 40 cents a pound in Vancouver this season and that's far better than it has been before, he said.

The biggest problem facing the fishing industry today, according to William Pitre, of 6940 Sooke, is that Canadians don't eat fish.

Boat Sold

"A great deal of premium fish are expected as that's all Canadian consumers will eat," he said.

And Pitre, who recently sold his boat Petrel through the buy-back scheme, said Canadians had such a precise attitude toward fish that you could offer to give some types away and still wouldn't have any takers.

Another fisherman said he was puzzled over an apparent consumer fixation over red flesh fish like salmon.

He claimed that it had got so bad that some fish packers were adding an artificial red coloring to white-fleshed cod because it helped sales.

Cash Sought

Getting more Canadians to eat more varieties of fish is matched in concern by fishermen who feel the future of their industry is not being catered to with more large hatcheries for salmon and restocking of streams ruined by logging and pollution.

Many would rather see the cash put into the buy-back scheme redirected to hatcheries and restocking and some said fishermen were even willing to work on the construction of hatcheries in B.C. during the winter.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has one hatchery almost completed at Capilano, near Vancouver, and another in the works at Courtenay. Sites for three other hatcheries were being selected and one would start annually in the years 1973, 1974 and 1975.

Commercial fishermen get into a tizzy about their not too dear friends, the hordes of sports fishermen in B.C., who they say get more direct attention from federal fisheries people and also seem to be in the position to get most from hatcheries either built or planned.

Pride also comes into conversation about the future of the fishing industry. Some fishermen say it would take "moving heaven and earth" to get them out of the business.

Talk Reveals

This group see the B.C. salmon potential as the greatest in the world.

But in talking to the gritty men of an ocean that is never still, a quieter group of thinkers emerges.

These men would "move heaven and earth" to keep their sons from entering a dead-end industry. Besides, they say, it is so costly to get into the business now that few of the young men with the stamina for the trade have the cash.

And most agree the industry is already too heavily over-capitalized without more men risking their necks.

Bennett Tabs Richter

Former mines minister Frank Richter has been appointed acting house leader for Social Credit after a telegram from W. A. C. Bennett who has been vacationing in Padua, Italy.

And the telegram also confirmed the recommendation of former MLAs Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy as executive assistant to the opposition leader and research assistant respectively.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said Thursday afternoon he had a "pleasant chat" with Richter on the telephone about the appointments and orders-in-council would be prepared for the Campbell and McCarthy jobs.

The acting-leader appointment is expected to be discussed at a caucus meeting set for Oct. 12 and 13.

Former attorney-general Leslie Peterson had at one stage been approached for the party leadership and was reported to be interested.

Richter said Thursday he had accepted Bennett's job offer: "As I am the senior minister I had no reason to reject the request."

Regional boards might be given a share of revenue from B.C. timber licences and other sources sometime in the future so that they can assume a more meaningful role, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer says.

In an interview this week, the minister said he is in favor of granting regional
